TRIAL TO OUST LA FOLLETTE UP TO COMMITTEE

Senate Gets Charge of Disloyalty of Wisconsin Man.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The movement for the expulsion of Robert M. La Follette from the United States senate for disloyalty is now in the hands of the senate committee on privileges and elections. Senator Pomerene of Ohio is chairman of that committee.

There will be a meeting of the committee next week to consider the petition for La Follette's expulsion, filed by the Minnesota committee on public safety, headed by Gov. Burnquist, and to decide whether the charges and the available proof warrant the institution of proceedings.

If the committee should decide that expulsion is warranted Chairman Pomerene, according to the plan now favored, would be instructed to introduce a resolution providing for the removal of La Follette from his office. The resolution then would be referred to the committee on privileges and elections, which would proceed to try the accused senator and report its verdict to the senate.

[illegible] AID TO THE ENEMY.

La Follette's expulsion was formally proposed to the senate today on the ground that he is a "teacher of disloyalty and sedition, giving aid and comfort to our enemies and hindering the government in the conduct of the war."

The petition accusing La Follette was presented in the senate shortly after the body convened by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, who is identified, as La Follette has been, with the progressive wing of the Republican party.

CONFERS WITH MARSHALL.

The formal presentation of the expulsion petition followed a conference attended by Vice President Marshall, Senator Kellogg, Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, and Senator Pomerene, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections.

The charge upon which th. Minnesota body bases its position is that La Follette in his speech to the Nonpartisan league convention in St. Paul on Sept. 20 uttered disloyal opinions which "have already served to create treasonable sentiment in the state of Minnesota and, being spread through the public press, can have no other effect than to weaken the support of the government in carrying on the war."

SIGNED BY STATE OFFICIALS.

The resolution was signed by the following officers of the Minnesota public safety commission:

J. A. A. Burnquist, governor ex-officio, chairman.
Lyndon A. Smith, attorney general ex-officio.
C. W. Ames, St. Paul.
John Lind, Minneapolis.
John F. McGee, Minneapolis.
C. H. March, Litchfield.
A. C. Weiss, Duluth.
John S. Pardee, secretary.

THE OUSTER PETITION.

The petition follows:

"Whereas, Senator Robert M. La Follette made an address of a disloyal and seditious nature at a public meeting before a large audience at the Nonpartisan league convention in St. Paul on the 20th of September;

"Whereas, The utterances of Senator La Follette, with all the prestige of his high office as a senator from the United States, made under protection of a guarantee of the president of the Nonpartisan league that no disloyal expressions would be permitted during the alleged conference between producers and consumers on the high cost of living, have already served to create treasonable sentiment in the state of Minnesota, and, being spread through the public press, can have no other effect than to weaken the support of the government in carrying on the war; be it hereby

"Resolved, That the Minnesota Commission of Public Safety respectfully petition the senate of the United States to institute proceedings looking to the expulsion of the said Robert M. La Follette from the senate as a teacher of disloyalty and sedition, giving aid and comfort to our enemies and hindering the government in the conduct of the war. Be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolu-

AIRMEN FIGHT HOUR'S BATTLE OVER LONDON

Germans Make New Attacks and Meet Hot Fire.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Hostile airplanes raided London again tonight. Several attacks on the city were made.

The raiders were met by a heavy barrage from anti-aircraft guns.

Police Sound Warning.

An official communication from the home office on the latest raids says:

"Hostile airplanes crossed the coasts of Kent and Essex in groups between 8 and 9 o'clock. Several attacks were made upon London and some bombs were dropped in the northeast and southeastern districts. Bombs were also dropped at various places in Kent and Essex. No reports of casualties have yet been received."

London's warning of an impending raid was given quickly by policemen riding through the streets with "take cover" signs on their breasts, and every one hurried to shelter.

Bombs Begin to Fall.

Soon the distant roar of guns was heard. Then the explosions of guns and the crack of shrapnel bursting in the air came nearer. The flash of the bursting shells in the night was incessant. From all directions the defense guns boomed.

Mingled with the sound of the guns the whirring of Gothas was heard overhead. Bombs began to drop, as could be told by their peculiar explosion.

The fire of the anti-aircraft guns seemed heavier than on any previous raids, and it was obvious that barrages were being thrown up to defeat the purpose of the raiders. At this time it appears that the barrages at least prevented the raiders from having their own way.

Hear Flyers Fight.

During the raid the staccato rattle of machine guns high in the air was evidence that the raiders were being hotly engaged by the British fliers.

In the brilliant moonlight civilians who ventured to look up were unable to see anything of the machines, although they could hear directly overhead the whirr of the engines. In another hour the guns were roaring in the distance and then ceased entirely.

When the signal "all clear" was given London came out of its shelters and went home to bed. The moon was still brilliant, although a fog, which was favorable to the raiders, began to set in. Some cautious persons remained near shelter, fearing that another raid might occur before morning.

FIRES IN RIOT CENTER; THREE MEN ARRESTED

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Three men were arrested in East St. Louis tonight following fires in six homes formerly occupied by Negroes.

The burned houses are in the district which was the center of the East St. Louis race riots last July.

It became known today that 350 East St. Louisans have been subpoenaed as witnesses in the trials growing out of the race riots, which began Monday at Belleville.

American Ambulances Begin Work in Russia

PETROGRAD, Friday, Sept. 28.—[Delayed.]—The first new group of hospital ambulances donated by Americans, largely through the efforts of Col. Andrew Kolpaschnikov, ex-commander of the twenty-first mobile column of the Red Cross on the battlefront, will be in service in close contact with the American mission to Roumania within a fortnight. Col. Kolpaschnikov has just returned from an extended tour of the front and he is hopeful regarding the ability of Russia to extricate herself from the present military dilemma. He regards it "a great mistake to allow pessimistic feelings to obscure one's whole scope of the picture of the war on this front."

Miss Wilson Earns Enough to Equip Six Ambulances

New York, Sept. 29.—[Special.]—President Wilson's daughter, Margaret Woodrow Wilson, has already earned enough as a singer to equip six ambulances for the American Red Cross in Russia and to donate besides $10,000 to other relief funds.

10,000 CRIMES ARE CHARGED TO THE I. W. W.

Counsel for Defense Hurries to Aid Captives.

More than 10,000 individual crimes are alleged against members of the Industrial Workers of the World in a vast criminal campaign of sedition. This information was authoritatively given out from government sources yesterday.

It is declared that the conspiracy laid to the I. W. W. chiefs contemplated no less a general object than the hampering of every objective of the government in its war aims. The allegation of 10,000 distinct crimes is said to grow out of discoveries of minor conspiracies within larger ones, like wheels within wheels, whereby each local branch of the I. W. W. would render itself sufficient unto the treasonable objects in its own particular territory.

28 MORE ARRESTS.

ternational Workers of the World in yesterday and brought to face the indictments against them. These, in addition to the nine taken in Chicago on the day before represent the arrests made in a list of 166 persons indicted for activities under the I. W. W. banner of destruction and sabotage.

For the first time the government has permitted the publication of the precise charges against the I. W. W. organization. These are included:

Hindering the act of 1916 and 1917 of congress making appropriations for certain fortifications and for the purchase of arms, by interfering with the carrying out of the manufacturing of the necessities for the carrying out of the provisions of the act.

Preventing the carrying out of contracts between the United States government and coal companies for fuel for shipping purposes of all kinds.

Hindering the manufacture of torpedo nets.

Planning and interfering with the manufacture of clothing for soldiers and sailors.

INTERFERE WITH HOSPITALS.

Interfering with the manufacture of medical and hospital supplies.

Proposing and designing to prevent registration under the draft law with a view to weakening the United States army, and actually preventing the carrying out of orders.

Seditious articles printed in "Solidarity," the I. W. W. organ.

Vicious articles printed in various organs of the I. W. W., printed in fifteen different languages.

Stopping the felling and shipping of spruce trees, the lumber exclusively used for the manufacture of airships.

Stopping the felling of lumber for the construction of the cantonments and camps throughout the country.

FOMENTING DISLOYALTY.

Discovery of certain efforts on the part of the members of the I. W. W. to create among those who had registered a feeling of disloyalty and insubordination.

Abusing the mail in distributing throughout the United States with the slogan, "Don't be a soldier, be a man."

Instead of striking, using destructive methods, such as breaking up machinery in factories.

Distributing book on "Sabotage," written by Emil Pouget, which the government terms the "most vicious book ever printed."

Interfering with the operation of oilfields which were supplying oil burning warships of the United States navy and oil burning engines on the railroads.

Ruining harvests by putting phosphorus on the grain and completely destroying the crops.

DEFENSE STARTS ACTION.

Upon the arrest of "Big Bill" Haywood, organizer, secretary, and treasurer of the international organization, and the members of his immediate "official family," frantic preparations were made to institute defensive measures. Otto Christensen, attorney for the I. W. W., aplied to District Attorney Clyne for a list of those arrested with the plea that he wished to appear for them. This was at first denied, but later given out.

Mr. Christensen explained that he would be assisted by Attorney F. A. Van

GRADE CROSSING FORMS A DEATH TRAP FOR CHILD

Evanston's Demands for Safeguards Go Unheeded.

There will be a gap in the ranks of "Gen. Pershing's soldiers of France" when the fourth graders of the Orrington public school of Evanston meet for battle maneuvers at recess periods this week. Perhaps the wooden "muskets" will lie idle for a while, as will the "general's" broomstick handle sword. The "general" is dead.

Eight years old he was, and his name was Earl Dean Howard, Jr., son of Prof. and Mrs. Dean Howard of Northwestern university. He was wearing his regalia of office yesterday—a khaki uniform—when he was ground to death beneath the wheels of a Northwestern hour-car elevated train at an unguarded crossing at the city limits of Evanston and Wilmette. The crossing has long been regarded as hazardous.

Goes to Meet Father.

It was a holiday. Prof. Howard, with his other son, Allen, was spending the day on the course of the Evanston golf club. About 2 o'clock Earl left the home at 2436 Orrington avenue to join them.

He marched away and down to the Isabella street crossing of the Northwestern elevated tracks, which are also used by North Shore electric trains. The Isabella street crossing bears very heavy traffic. The station there is the last before Central street, which is four blocks away. The golf grounds encompass it on both sides.

The father in his round of the course had reached a point about 100 feet southeast of the Isabella street crossing. Earl saw him and waved at him and then attempted to cross the tracks to join him. The train, speeding southward, struck him and dragged him seventy-five feet. He was decapitated.

Prof. Howard was overcome and could not bring himself to look upon the body. A number of women, who saw the accident, became hysterical.

Citizens Protest "Death Trap."

Citizens living near the Isabella street crossing have sought for many months to have some sort of protection afforded. At present there is neither gong, gates, lights, nor watchman. It is a grade crossing and trains pass there at high speed. The crossing is astride the boundary line of Wilmette and Evanston and that has made it harder to bring action to bear on the railroad company, citizens say.

Earl was one of the brightest pupils in the school and was far advanced for his age. He was a manly little fellow and had many friends. The inquest will be held Monday morning.

Motorman I. Rosier, 6045 Prairie avenue, Chicago, is being held on a charge of assault. The train was in charge of Conductor Charles McIlvoi, 1143 East Sixty-fifth street.

PAPAL AID DENIES CALLING WILSON PLAN A DREAM

ROME, Sept. 29.—Denial that he called President Wilson's plans for international peace a "dream" was made by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, today.

He said he was not merely misquoted, being of mind contrary to the allegation, but he emphatically denied having made such a statement.

The interview in question was published last week, an American press association crediting Cardinal Gasparri with the statement that "President Wilson's proposal to reduce armaments and impose international arbitration by force through a society of nations is a dream."

Glancing Bullet Strikes Down Little Girl at Play

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—While at play with her four small sisters on her father's farm near Crown Point, Ind., Edna, 7 year old daughter of August Schneider, was shot down by a hunter today. She was taken to a Gary hospital. The sheriff is holding Fred Heising, a photographer, and Henry Kreiger of Chicago Heights under $3,000 bail, which each furnished. Heising stated that he fired a shot at a squirrel's nest and it glanced, striking the girl. The men were hunting without license.

Bomb Jars Flat Building; Janitors' War Is Blamed

An explosion of a bomb placed near a flat building at Sixty-second street and Ingleside avenue at midnight last night broke windows and caused a panic among the occupants, but none was hurt, according to the police. It is suspected the bomb was placed because of some janitors' union difficulty.

INSURANCE MAN SLAYS PATRON IN ROW OVER $9

Self-Defense Is Plea of P. D. McBride After Shooting H. Erbe.

Following an altercation over $9, Hugo Erbe of 5000 Glenwood avenue was shot and killed last night by P. D. McBride, an insurance man, of 4863 Winthrop avenue. The shooting took place at Diversey boulevard and Clark street.

A crowd of several hundred persons rushed from neighboring cafés and saw McBride standing, revolver in hand, over the body of his victim, awaiting the arrival of the police. Upon the arrival of the patrol wagon McBride handed over his revolver.

Insurance Policy.

"I recently sold an insurance policy to Erbe," McBride told the lieutenant. "He failed to make all the payments and still owed me $9. I had endeavored to collect this sum and placed the account in the hands of a mercantile agency. When he saw me on the street car he became enraged and wanted to quarrel with me about the matter.

"Customarily I leave the Clark street car at Aldine avenue. But to get away from Erbe I went to the front platform and left the car at Diversey, a half mile before my regular stop. Erbe also left the car, by the rear platform, and insisted on quarreling with me. He reached for his pocket and I thought he was about to draw a revolver."

Erbe Shot Three Times.

Erbe was shot three times—through the head, shoulder, and body. He died instantly. No weapon was found in his clothing. Erbe was 45 years old and until recently was president of the Wrightway Clothes Cleaning company, 1153 Wilson avenue.

McBride is 55 years old and has been for several years connected with the Mutual Life Insurance company. He has been in the police records before on a charge of stabbing David D. Einstein of the law firm of O'Keefe & Einstein over a legal fee.

McBride was arrested and held on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, but the matter was adjusted.

$200,000,000 ADDED TO BILL BY CONFEREES

Huge Levy Reported to House; To Senate Tomorrow.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The war revenue bill, the greatest single tax measure in history, designed to raise more than $2,600,000,000 in addition to the ordinary revenues of the government, for the current fiscal year was completed by the senate and house conferees tonight and reported to the house of representatives.

It will be laid before the senate for final approval on Monday and the prospect is that the measure will be signed by the president before the end of the week.

The conferees estimate that $1,110,000,000 will be derivable from the war profits tax. Next in volume of yield stands the income tax at $842,000,000 in addition to the taxes now being derived from that source.

CORPORATION TAX RAISED.

The normal tax on corporations is raised from 4 to 6 per cent and "information at the source" is substituted for "collection at the source" of all income taxes except the tax free covenant bonds of corporations.

The conferees added approximately $200,000,000 to the yield of the bill as passed by the senate. Of this amount $50,000,000 is represented by increases in the war profits tax. Under the plan adopted by the conferees the war profits tax will be a percentage of the profits upon capital invested in excess of from 7 to 9 per cent.

The huge revenue to be derived from the measure may be indicated in concrete form by the fact that if it fell equally on every person in the country it would cost each man, woman, and child $26.

NEW INHERITANCE TAX.

A new system of graduated inheritance taxes was written into the bill in lieu of the house plan and despite the senate's rejection of such taxes. The new rates on inheritances, with those of Americans in military service exempted, range from one-half of 1 per cent on $50,000 estates, to 10 per cent on estates of $10,000,000 or more.

The bulk of the increases of between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000 made by the conferees in the senate bill was secured from the postage, public utilities, and manufacturing sales section and the new inheritance taxes.

With few exceptions the new taxes are effective with the passage of the act.

Both Senator Simmons and Representative Kitchin, heading the senate and house conferees, tonight expressed satisfaction with the conference revisions and they believe the compromise measure an improvement over both the senate and house bills.

EXCESS PROFITS [illegible]

In the bill agreed on the rates [illegible] on individual incomes are [illegible] the same as in the senate [illegible]

On excess profits the conferees agreed upon a minimum deduction of 7 per cent and a maximum of 10 per cent instead of the 6 to 10 per cent fixed by the senate. Other exemptions are $3,000 for corporations and $6,000 for individuals. Corporations, partnerships, and individuals having no capital stock would pay a flat rate of 8 per cent on net profits in excess of $3,000 for corporations and of $6,000 on individuals and partnerships.

Miscellaneous income tax amendments inserted by the senate were generally adopted, including the so-called Jones amendment for a tax of 10 per cent on corporations' undistributed surplus, without allowance for income taxes paid. The 10 per cent tax would not apply to undistributed income actually invested or employed in business or invested in federal securities after Sept. 1, 1917, and a 5 per cent penalty for surplus retained, but not employed, is provided.

LOWER MUNITIONS TAX.

In making provision for administration and collection of the new and existing taxes, the conferees provided that the special tax of 12½ per cent on war munitions manufactures shall be reduced to 10 per cent, but retained to Jan. 1, 1918. It now yields about $29,000,000 annually and the senate had proposed its repeal.

Increased senate rates on whisky and beer were virtually retained and that on wines somewhat reduced. The tax on distilled spirits was made $2.10 per gallon when for beverage use and $1 less for industrial purposes, estimated to raise $135,000,000. The amendment prohibiting importation of distilled spirits for beverage use was retained.

Floor taxes to reach withdrawn liquors were approved. Beer was taxed $1.50 per barrel additional, to raise $46,000,000, an increase of 25 cents per barrel over the house rate. Present wine taxes were doubled.

Compromise on Beverage Tax.

Taxes on nonalcoholic beverages were compromised. On prepared sirups and extracts the taxes graduated from 5 to 25 cents, instead of from 3 to 12 cents a gallon, were adopted. Grape juice and other soft drinks are taxed 1 cent per gallon, as provided by the senate in reducing the original 2 cent rate of the house.

Senate rates on cigars and cigarets were retained, but those on snuff were increased from 4 cents to 5 cents a pound.

Stamp Taxes Agreed On.

Stamp taxes agreed on were:

Bonds of indebtedness, 5 cents on each $100.

Indemnity and surety bonds, 50 cents.

Parcel post packages, 1 cent for each 25 cents of the cost of transportation.

Capital stock, original issues, 5 cents per $100.

Sales and transfers, 2 cents per $100.

Sales of produce on exchange, 2 cents for each $100 value in merchandise.

Drafts, checks payable other than on sight or demand, promissory notes, except bank notes for circulation, and renewals, 2 cents for all sums below $100 and 2 cents for each additional $100 or fraction thereof.

Conveyance papers, 50 cents aetween $100 and $500 and 50 cents for each additional $500.

Custom house entries, from 25 cents to $1.

Entry for withdrawal from bonded warehouses, 50 cents.

Passenger vessel tickets for ports other than those in the United States, Canada and Mexico, between $10 and $30, $1; between $30 and $60, $3; and above $60, $5.

Voting proxies, 10 cents.

Power of attorney, 25 cents.

Playing cards, decks of not more than 54 cards, an additional 5 cents on the present rates.

Tax on Messages.

House and senate provisions for a tax of 5 cents each on telegraph, telephone, and radio messages costing 15 cents or more, and designed to raise $7,000,000, were retained, but the house tax on gas, electric, and telephone service was eliminated.

Taxes on life insurance, eliminated from the house bill in the senate, were amended and reinserted, raising about $5,000,000. Effective Nov. 1 the new taxes on new insurance policies issued are 8 cents per $100 or fraction thereof on life insurance and 1 cent per $1 on the premium charge on marine, casualty, fire, and inland insurance.

Put Tax on Amusements.

Amusement taxes agreed upon provide that all persons entering places of amusement free, except employés and officials on duty and children under 12 years of age, would pay a tax rate of 1 cent on each 10 cents or fraction thereof, of the admission charge. This tax also would apply to cabarets and similar performances where the cost of entertainment is included in other costs such as service. Holders of annual box seats would pay 10 per cent of the annual rental.

Nickel theaters, and shows, rides and other outdoor park amusements, with a maximum admission of 10 cents and benefit entertainments and agricultural fairs were exempted.

After Nov. 1, 1917, members of all clubs except certain fraternal orders paying more than $12 annual dues would be subject to a 10 per cent tax.

Text of Important Sections.

To give a clear idea of the form in which some of the much disputed sections of the bill now stand—and it is assumed these are now in the form in which they will be enacted into law, the text of these sections is given herewith.

WAR PROFITS TAX.

In addition to existing taxes there will be collected for each taxable year upon the income of every corporation, partnership, or individual the following tax:

Twenty per cent of the amount of the net income in excess or the deduction provided for hereinafter and not in excess of 15 per cent of the invested capital for the taxable year.

Twenty-five per cent of the amount of net income in excess of 15 per cent and not in excess of 20 per cent of such capital. Thirty-five per cent of the amount of the net income in excess of 20 per cent and not in excess of 25 per cent of such capital.

Forty-five per cent of the amount of net income in excess of 25 per cent and not in excess of 33 per cent of such capital.

Sixty per cent of the amount of net income in excess of 33 per cent of such capital.

Exemptions in Levy.

The exemptions from the tax are:

In the case of compensation or fees received by state or federal officers and employés.

Corporations exempt from tax under the provisions of section 11 of title 1 of the act of Sept. 8, 1916, as amended by this act, and partnerships and individuals coming within the same description.

Incomes derived from the business of life, health, and accident insurance combined in one policy issued on the weekly premium payment plan.

That when in this title the term "corporation" includes joint stock companies, or associations, and insurance companies.

The term "domestic" means created under the law of the United States or of any state, territory, or district thereof, and the term "foreign" means created under the law of any other possession of the United States or any country or government.

The term "United States" means only the states, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and the District of Columbia.

Th term "taxable year" means the twelve months ending Dec. 31, except in the case of a corporation or partnership which has fixed its own fiscal year, in which case it means such fiscal year.

Tax Year Ends with 1917.

The first taxable year shall be the year ending Dec. 31, 1917, excepting in the case of a corporation or partnership which has fixed its own fiscal year it shall be the fiscal year ending during the calendar year ending 1917.

If a corporation or partnership prior to March, 1918, makes a return covering its own fiscal year, and includes therein the income received during that part of the fiscal year falling within the calendar year 1917, the tax for such taxable year shall be that proportion of the tax computed upon the excess profits during such full fiscal year which the time from Jan. 1, 1917, to the end of such fiscal year bears to the full fiscal year.

The prewar period includes the years 1911, 1912, and 1913. If a corporation was not in existence, or an individual not in trade, for the whole period, then whatever years it was in existence shall be the basis.

SECOND CLASS POSTAL RATES.

That on and after July 1, 1918, the rates of postage on publications entered as second class matter (including sample copies to the extent of 10 per cent of the weight of copies mailed to subscribers during the calendar year) when sent by the publisher thereof from the postoffice of publication or other postoffice, or when sent by a news agent to actual subscribers thereto, or to other news agents for the purpose of sale.

[A] In the case of the portion of such publication devoted to matter other than advertisements, shall be as follows: (1) On and after July 1, 1918, and until July 1, 1919, 1¼ cents per pound or fraction thereof; (2) on and after July 1, 1919, 1½ cents per pound or fraction thereof.

Rates on Advertising.

[B] In the case of the portion of the publication devoted to advertisements the rates per pound or fraction thereof for delivery within the several zones applicable to fourth class matter shall be as follows [but where the space devoted to advertisements does not exceed 5 per centum of the total space the rate of postage shall be the same as if the whole of such publication was devoted to matter other than advertisements]:

[1] On and after July 1, 1918, and until July 1, 1919, for the first and second zones, 1¼ cents; for the third zone, 1½ cents; for the fourth zone, 2 cents; for the fifth zone, 2¼ cents; for the sixth zone, 2½ cents; for the seventh zone, 3 cents; for the eighth zone, 3¼ cents.

[2] On and after July 1, 1919, and until July 1, 1920, for the first and second zones, 1½ cents; for the third zone, 2 cents; for the fourth zone, 3 cents; for the fifth zone, 3½ cents; for the sixth zone, 4 cents; for the seventh zone, 5 cents; for the eighth zone, 5½ cents.

[3] On and after July 1, 1920, and until July 1, 1921, for the first and second zones, 1¾ cents; for the third zone, 2½ cents; for the fourth zone, 4 cents; for the fifth zone, 4¾ cents; for the sixth zone, 5½ cents; for the seventh zone, 7 cents; for the eighth zone, 7¾ cents.

[4] On and after July 1, 1922, for the first and second zones, 2 cents; for the third zone, 3 cents; for the fourth zone, 5 cents; for the fifth zone, 6 cents; for the sixth zone, 7 cents; for the seventh zone, 9 cents; for the eighth zone, 10 cents.

Publisher Must File Copy.

[C] With the first mailing of each issue of each such publication the publishers shall file with the postmaster a copy of such publication, together with a statement containing such information as the postmaster general may prescribe for determining the postage chargeable thereon.

AUTOMOBILE TAXES.

There shall be levied, assessed, collected, and paid upon all automobiles, automobile trucks, automobile wagons, and motorcycles sold by the manufacturer, producer or importer a tax equivalent to 3 percentum of the price for which so sold.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

Upon all piano players, graphophones, phonographs, talking machines, and records used in connection with any musical instrument, piano player, graphophone, phonograph, or talking machine, or importer, a tax equivalent to 3 percentum of the price for which so sold.

MOVING PICTURE FILMS.

Upon all moving picture films (which have not been exposed) sold by the manufacturer or importer, a tax equivalent to one-fourth of 1 cent per linear foot; and upon all positive moving picture films (containing a picture ready for projection) sold or leased by the manufacturer, producer, or importer, a tax equivalent to one-half cent per linear foot.

JEWELRY.

Upon any article commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation, sold by the manufacturer, producer, or importer thereof, a tax equivalent to 3 per centum of the price for which so sold.

German Foreign Minister Praises Pope Peace Move, but Is Mum on Prospects

BERLIN, via London, Sept. 29.—[British Admiralty per Wireless Press.]—The German secretary for foreign affairs, Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, speaking before the main committee of the reichstag, said he could not venture to say what would be the immediate outcome of the papal steps toward peace.

"This courageous initiative of the pope," the secretary said, "will mark an epoch in the history of this tremendous battle of nations, and will appear as an unfading page in the annals of vatican diplomacy. The pope threw the word 'peace' into the turmoil of battle at a time when events threatened to transform Europe into a place of blood stained ruins.

Welcome Move by Vatican.

"The German people and the German government, whose consciousness of their strength and internal security always made it easy for them to emphasize their willingness to conclude an honorable peace, have reason to welcome gratefully the initiative of the Curia, which made it possible for them to set forth again their national policy in a clear, unambiguous manner. I say intentionally 'national policy,' as I hope and believe the reply of the German government, both as regards its form and contents, embodies the desires of an overwhelming majority of the Germans.

"For our purely German development, the note is also a landmark. It is the first result of the collaboration between all the factors of the government and the representatives of the German parliament.

United on Policy.

This collaboration, added the secretary, both with regard to its principle and results, is of a kind which a statesman having the German foreign policy at heart might regard with perfect confidence. He denied that there is in Germany today one policy of the government and another policy of the people and declared that this legend could not be destroyed if the reichstag stood behind the policy represented in the reply to the pope.

Dr. von Kuehlmann also denied that there existed in the government various views or that there was divergence of opinion and aim among the leading men or between the imperial administration and the field marshals.

Can't Divide Germans.

"The principles of the reply to the papal note as presented by the government," the secretary continued, "appear acceptable to the representatives of all the parties. Consequenty, I believe I can say with full right that all attempts of the enemy to drive a wedge between the German people and the German government on the question of the heads of our foreign policy and by the propagation of the fiction that the German people do not stand behind the kaiser, and the imperial chancellor will be repulsed in the most crushing manner by the support given to this document."

Won't Free Belgium.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 29.—Germany has not announced its willingness to evacuate territories it now occupies, including Belgium, Chancellor Michaelis announced, according to Berlin dispatches today.

After the meeting of the main reichstag committee yesterday, the dispatches said, Michaelis made a formal announcement.

This was as follows:

"The statement that the imperial government has already communicated to a hostile government announcement of its willingness to evacuate occupied territory, thus abandoning the most valuable advantages for peace negotiations, is untrue.

"I declare that the imperial government's hands are free for eventual peace negotiations. This also refers to Belgium."

[The disclaimer above evidently refers to a story emanating early this week from Berne, announcing receipt of official dispatches there, in which Germany agreed to share in indemnifying Belgium and to evacuate occupied lands under certain conditions.]

INCOME TAXES

Revenue Bill Approved by Conferees Provides a 2 Per Cent Levy on More than $2,000 for Married Persons and on More than $1,000 for Single Persons.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—The income tax section of the revenue bill was adopted virtually as written by the senate. The new 2 per cent normal tax on incomes of more than $2,000 for married persons and $1,000 for single persons is in addition to the present law exempting incomes of less than $3,000 for single persons and $4,000 for married persons.

Thus, those between the new low exemption bases and the present exemptions will pay only the new 2 per cent tax, but single persons having an income of $3,000 or more and married persons whose income is $4,000 or more would pay the full 4 per cent normal tax.

The senate income provision allowing an additional exemption of $200 for each dependent child to heads of families subject to the present law was retained. The exemption for children, however, does not apply to those subject to the new reduced taxes with the $2,000 and $1,000 exemptions, respectively, for married and single persons. Surtaxes [in addition to the normal 4 per cent] were agreed upon as follows:

| | Per cent. |
|---|---|
| Between $5,000 and $7,500 | 1 |
| Between $7,500 and $10,000 | 2 |
| Between $10,000 and $12,500 | 3 |
| Between $12,500 and $15,000 | 4 |
| Between $15,000 and $20,000 | 5 |
| Between $20,000 and $40,000 | 7 |
| Between $40,000 and $60,000 | 10 |
| Between $60,000 and $80,000 | 14 |
| Between $80,000 and $100,000 | 18 |
| Between $100,000 and $150,000 | 22 |
| Between $150,000 and $200,000 | 25 |
| Between $200,000 and $250,000 | 30 |
| Between $250,000 and $300,000 | 34 |
| Between $300,000 and $500,000 | 37 |
| Between $500,000 and $750,000 | 40 |
| Between $750,000 and $1,000,000 | 45 |
| Incomes exceeding $1,000,000 | 50 |

LITTLE "DEAL" IN RUBBER SNAPS UP FARMER'S $5,000

When Frank McHard, a prosperous farmer of Aledo, Ill., asked a stranger in Rockford the direction to a sanitarium some time ago he was surprised at finding a gentleman so pleasant to talk to. The stranger was so entertaining that McHard took him along to visit with Mrs. McHard, who was ill. Last night McHard and a detective went to Rockford in quest of the pleasant stranger.

McHard and A. D. Bridgeford, president of the Farmers' National bank of Aledo, visited Chief of Detectives Mooney yesterday and told them the story.

The Rockford individual went under the name of B. D. Frohman, and said he was the traveling representative of the Para Rubber company and that his home was in Omaha. With $10,000, he said, he could corner the rubber market.

McHard went to Rockford some time later and met Frohman, a second man introduced as Mr. Montgomery, president of the chamber of commerce, and a third who went under the name of Miller, and who posed as a wealthy promoter. They said that if McHard would provide $5,000, they could clean up $175,000 on the rubber market. McHard provided the money, and the check was cashed at a Rockford bank.

The farmer was instructed to meet Frohman at the Plymouth hotel in Chicago and collect his share. When he reached Chicago there was a wire telling him to go to Springfield, where he was to find Frohman. But Frohman was not there.

Patriotic Rally at Pier Meets with Quick Response

Response by American citizens of Swedish birth or descent to the call for the mass meeting today at 3 p. m. on the municipal pier has been so general the committee in charge has arranged for overflow meetings on other parts of the pier.

A chorus of 500 Swedish-American singers, the Swedish-American band of 50 pieces and 100 high school cadets of Swedish-American ancestry will be present and take part in the program.

The principal speakers will be Chief Justice Harry Olson of the municipal court, and Victor Olander, member of the state council of defense. Seats will be reserved for relatives of those who have volunteered or been drafted.

Auto Stolen Every Two Hours in City Yesterday

Auto thieves renewed their activities with vigor yesterday after a quiet day or two. Twelve machines were stolen in twenty-four hours, according to police reports.

ASK CHICAGO FOR $420,000,000 ON NEW WAR LOAN

This District, However, Is Expected to Offer $700,000,000.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Chicago and adjacent territory is expected to buy $420,000,000 worth of the new issue of Liberty bonds. Secretary McAdoo has hopes of even greater results and says he believes Chicago may subscribe for $700,000,000 worth.

Treasury officials announced the apportionment of the second Liberty bond issue, to be offered next Monday, among the various federal reserve districts of the country tonight. Virtually two-thirds of the loan is expected to be raised by the New York, Boston, Cleveland, and Chicago districts, with one-half apportioned to the first three named districts.

Apportionments indicate only what each district is expected to do and may be entirely upset, as in the case of the first Liberty loan, by the actual subscriptions. In making the apportionments officials used two bases of subscriptions, the minimum of $3,000,000,000 and an "expected amount" of $5,000,000,000.

Apparently, in offering the second issue, officials hope to realize a $5,000,000,000 response.

The Apportionment.

Here is the apportionment by federal reserve districts, as announced by the treasury department:

| Dist. | Per cent. | Minimum. | Expected amount. |
|---|---|---|---|
| N. Y. | 30 | $ 900,000,000 | $1,500,000,000 |
| Chicago | 14 | 420,000,000 | 700,000,000 |
| Phila. | 8¼ | 250,000,000 | 415,000,000 |
| Cleve. | 10 | 300,000,000 | 500,000,000 |
| Boston | 10 | 300,000,000 | 500,000,000 |
| Richmd. | 4 | 120,000,000 | 200,000,000 |
| Atlanta | 2¾ | 80,000,000 | 135,000,000 |
| St. Louis | 4 | 120,000,000 | 200,000,000 |
| Minn. | 3½ | 105,000,000 | 175,000,000 |
| Kas. C. | 4 | 120,000,000 | 200,000,000 |
| Dallas | 2½ | 75,000,000 | 125,000,000 |
| San Fr. | 7 | 210,000,000 | 350,000,000 |
| Tots. | 100 | $3,000,000,000 | $5,000,000,000 |

Based on Districts' Wealth.

In each case, the announcement reads, "the amount has been computed on the percentage basis, and while the banking resources of each district—that is, the total resources of the national banks, state banks, and trust companies—have been given large consideration, other factors have been taken into account, such as the income tax collected from each district, the assessed value of property therein, the subscriptions received from each district to the first Liberty loan, and the amount of bonds allotted on such subscriptions, the capital available for bond investment in each district, and its population."

The basis of apportionment thus varies materially from that used in the first Liberty loan, when the banking resources of each federal reserve district were the sole basis of calculation.

British Tighten Blockade; Sweden and Holland Hit

LONDON, Sept. 29.—A still more vigorous blockade of Germany is to be enforced by the entente allies as a result of the conference of Lord Robert Cecil, British minister of blockade, with the French minister of blockade. Today the king signed a proclamation prohibiting the exportation of certain articles to Sweden and Holland. The king's approval also was given to other measures to make it more difficult for the enemy to obtain supplies through neutral countries.

Plowman Wins After 20 Years, Only to Lose Out

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 29.—After twenty years of striving to win a plowing match Maurice Williams of Big Rock won the championship yesterday at Wheatland, only to lose it today on a rejudging of the plowing. The laurels which the old plowman believed his were awarded to Frank Boardman of Wheatland. Williams was the oldest man to compete by many years. He is approaching his 53d year.

HOUSE TALKS OF BIG TASK GIVEN HIM BY WILSON

Collecting War Data Shows Peace Is Not Even in Sight.

New York, Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Col. Edward M. House will begin next week the gathering of the data for which he has been commissioned by President Wilson. The fact that he is undertaking the work is an indication that peace is not even yet in prospect.

"Such a task as this," Col. House said today, "could not even be well begun in less than a year's time. That it is being undertaken now may be taken as an indication that there are yet no signs of the ending of the conflict."

Official statements from Washington have indicated the general character of the work to which Col. House will address himself. He added today, however, some details that throw new light upon it.

Wide Information Sought.

"If you will ask yourself," the colonel said, "what sort of data, what sort of information, you would like to have at your elbow if you were sitting in a conference that was to bring peace to an entire world, I think your answer would be just about the one you want from me. I shall ask myself that question, at any rate, and as I answer it I shall be governed in going about this work.

Some of the things I shall want will be political. Some of them will be historical. Some of them will be economic. Whom I shall call to help me will depend upon developments as I go along. How many I shall call is, in just the same way, a matter yet to be determined. But of this I am already sure:

"I shall have nobody about me who has any theory to prove, who has any obsession affecting any of the things we inquire into. I want men with open minds, men who will get facts without any coloring.

Wants to Confer with Lansing.

"My first step will be to have a conference with Secretary Lansing. Although the matter has been in its present form for some weeks, I have not had time to take it up with any one but the president, and obviously the matters with which I must concern myself very largely lie within the province of the department of state. I hope that within another week I may have this conference with Mr. Lansing.

"This sort of thing is already well under way among the powers of Europe. Much of the information they shall want comes to them in the regular course of their diplomatic affairs. Much more of it, however, must be especially gathered, and some of them have been at this for two years."

U. S. AGENTS SEEK ARMY STATUS OF F. O. BUTLER'S SONS

Federal investigators yesterday began work on the cases of Paul and Julius Butler, sons of Frank O. Butler of the J. W. Butler Paper company, who aroused the indignation of residents of Hinsdale by not registering. The war committee of the Union League, of which club Frank O. Butler is a member, turned the case over to the federal authorities.

Attention of the authorities was also called to the case by Robert L. Henry, 140 South Dearborn street.

The first step will be to determine if the brothers are in the service of the United States, Walter L. Furbershaw of Mr. Clabaugh's department said last night.

That both young men are in government service and were when registration took place, was the declaration last night of Dr. L. L. McArthur, commanding base hospital unit No. 14. He said they are members of the unit and insisted that, inasmuch as one was enrolled before registration, and that the other joined as soon as he arrived in this country, their status was entirely satisfactory.

Find Farmer Killed Self.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—A coroner's jury which inquired today into the death of John Conover, an insane farmer of Yorkville, Ill., who was besieged in his barn by home guards and deputy sheriffs, agreed that he shot and killed himself.

CURB SUGAR PRICE

International Body Formed to Arrange for Control and Protect Consumer.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—Plans for an international control of sugar prices and distribution were announced tonight by the food administration. The aim is to stabilize the trade through an international sugar committee, which will arrange for refiners' purchases in the West Indies and in the American insular possessions.

"This coöperative buying between the refiners and those purchasing raw supplies for England, France, Italy, and Canada, with the resultant elimination of competitive buying," said the announcement, "is expected to save consumers many millions of dollars, and to prevent the rapid fluctuations in prices."

The members of the committee have been named as follows. Sir Joseph White-Todd and John V. Drake of England, representing the European allies, and George M. Rolph of San Francisco; Earl D. Babst, president of the American Sugar Refining company, and William A. Jamieson of Arbuckle Brothers, representing the United States.

The margin of profit for the jobber and the broker will be regulated, it is announced, like that of the refiner, but the control ends here and no measures can be taken by the food administration directly to control retail prices. The food administration's hope is to keep retail prices down by publicity.

A house to house canvass of the 22,000,000 families in the United States and the enrollment of every man and woman of the nation in a mighty food conservation army that will win the war is the task that the food administration has undertaken for the week of Oct. 21 to 28.

Trade Union League Asks Cut in Cost of Living

Reduction of the cost of living was urged yesterday in resolutions adopted at the fourth annual conference of the Woman's Trade Union league held at the Bowen Country club on the outskirts of Waukegan yesterday. Sixty delegates attended.

Among the speakers was Mrs. Raymond Robins, who told of the challenge present conditions hold for women of efficiency and urged them to rise to the emergency as have women of Europe. Miss Agnes Nester was chairman of the meeting and Miss Olive Sullivan acted as secretary.

An appeal was addressed to the Chicago Federation of Labor to join the league in asking the Chicago war board and the State Council of Defense to make a complete survey of the available man power of the city in order that the women may know what is to be expected of them.

Noted Woman Missionary Dies.

Hackensack, N. J., Sept. 29.—Mrs. Frank P. Gilman, one of the best known American Presbyterian missionaries in China, died here today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. Byron Ferguson. The Rev. Mr. Gilman was a classmate of President Wilson, whom he and Mrs. Gilman went to visit on Tuesday prior to their intended departure for China next week. Mrs. Gilman was born in Perthamboy, N. J., 69 years ago.

ARMENIANS OF COLLEGE SLAIN BY TURKS' AXES

March Men Out at Night to Massacre in Asia Minor Town.

New York, Sept. 29.—The slaughter with axes of all the Armenian faculty members of Anatolia college, Marsovan, northern Asia Minor, together with 1,200 others, by Turkish peasants, whose pay for the work was the privilege of stripping the clothing off their victims' bodies, was described here today by the Rev. George M. White, president of the college, who recently returned to this country.

Massacres at Night.

The massacres were committed at night by order of the Turkish government, he said, the Armenians being sent out in lots of 100 and 200 to their doom and their bodies rolled into prepared burial trenches.

"One group of our college boys asked permission to sing before they died, and sang 'Nearer, My God, to Thee,' then they were struck down," Mr. White said.

Turkish Officers Brutal.

"On the pretext of searching for deserting soldiers, concealed bombs, weapons, seditious literature, or revolutionists the Turkish officers arrested about 1,200 Armenian men at Marsovan, accompanying their investigations by horrible brutalities. There was no revolutionary activity in our region whatever."

35 WITNESSES INVOLVE SCORES IN GRAFT CHARGE

Five of Hoyne's Aids Quiz Men Who Admit Payments.

Gamblers, saloonkeepers, cabaret owners, keepers of "shady" hotels and houses of vice in the Twenty-first district, Francis A. Becker's stamping ground, kept the trail hot to the office of State's Attorney Hoyne yesterday afternoon and last night. Thirty-five of the first 100 for whom subpœnas were issued yesterday had been dragged in by detectives before midnight. Their stories involved scores of other lights of their own world.

A battery of five assistant state's attorneys took them into various offices, and questioning will be kept up today and tonight. According to the questioners, it is an amazing and sordid tale of graft, giving up, and shaking down that has been told, and a police captain or two, maybe a couple of lieutenants, and a number of patrolmen and plain clothes men have been named.

Detectives Seek Becker.

Policeman John J. McKune of the Summerdale station, formerly of the East Chicago avenue station, and Luke J. Brennan, a North Clark street saloonkeeper, have been arrested on warrants charging conspiracy. Detectives were searching the city yesterday and last night for Becker himself.

Operatives said they believed him in Chicago, but several tips as to his whereabouts proved in error.

"Twenty out of the first twenty-five brought in and questioned admitted that they had 'paid' in some form or other," said Assistant State's Attorney Marvin Barnhart last night. "We are convinced that keepers of vice resorts were the largest contributors.

"We are paying special attention to questioning saloonkeepers who lost their licenses and later got them restored and those who interceded with Becker and paid restaurant licenses as a subterfuge to sell liquor on Sunday."

Confessions Reported.

It was said that a surprising number of those brought in purged themselves with wholesome confessions. There seemed to be no fixed levy against the various ones compelled to pay. The investigators declare that after a survey of the place owners were asked for "all the traffic would stand."

The business of shaking down, said Mr. Barnhaft, started off early in Mayor Thompson's administration. It picked up, he said, early in 1916 and at the beginning of 1917 was a vast and well organized business.

With the appointment of Chief Schuettler last February and the activity of First Deputy Westbrook it got a body blow. Transferral of certain captains, lieutenants, patrolmen, and detectives disrupted the organization.

Recent Difficulties.

In recent months it has become a hazardous occupation and the hitherto protected resorts, saloons, and cabarets did a dwindling business. Some were closed entirely and one by one they lost their "privileges." Capt. James Gleason and Lieut. Schoemaker have assisted in the gradual weeding out, though conditions even today are not what they should be.

Among those questioned yesterday are Detectives Sidney Sullivan, Julius Rohrhoff, and William Burns, all of whom were transferred from the East Chicago avenue station in recent months. Burns for a long time traveled with McKune as his "partner."

Action Was Expected.

"All right, we've been expecting you; knew you'd get around sooner or later," men and women would wearily remark to Sergeant Thomas Sheehan and Detective John Murphy, who were serving the subpoenas yesterday, they say. In the haunts where vice has been bobbing up its head they almost all expect to be asked to tell their stories.

"According to some of the stories told some money was paid direct to Becker, some to policemen who acted as collectors, and some to others whose names I do not think it wise to divoulge at present," said Mr. Barnhart.

Many contributions are said to have been made under the guise of getting up a "campaign fund."

"Becker had some kind of a campaign fund going about all the time," said an assistant state's attorney. "One man we had in today said he never had kicked in a dollar. We looked him up on Becker's blacklist and found his name recorded there."

Hundreds Involved.

It was said last night that new information coming in might result in several hundred persons being questioned. Almost every man or woman mentions someone else who "knew the ropes" or told "how to fix it up."

The evidence gathered will be submitted to the October grand jury, which will be sworn in tomorrow before Justice George Kersten in criminal court. Mr. Hoyne left his office yesterday afternoon declaring that he was "dead tired" and wouldn't be back before Monday. His assistants, Marvin Barnhart, John Morton, John Lowery, Walter Stanton and Henry Eckhart are doing the present questioning.

THE REPUBLICAN DECLARES MAYOR IS NOT ITS BOSS

The Republican, a weekly newspaper backed by Mayor Thompson's friends, is not the official organ of the city hall and the mayor does not direct its policies.

This was the announcement in yesterday's issue over the signature of Walter F. Rohm, who declared that he was editor and sole owner. The announcement said that the paper reserved the right to criticise the mayor as well as any other public official if his acts needed criticism.

On another page were several letters written to the mayor commending his stand in opposing the war. Reporters for the daily newspapers have tried time and time again to get these letters, but were refused them. No reason was given at the mayor's office as to why they appeared in the Republican.

One of the letters was from William Bayard Hale. Others came from nearly all parts of the United States.

"THE COLONEL'S LADY AND JUDY O'GRADY"

They were both there when the Seventh Illinois left for Houston yesterday, despite the order that no farewells be said at the station. Col. Moriarty and his officers found it was difficult to shut out the women folks when the loved ones were off on the journey that probably will take them to France.

UNIFORM

Policeman McKune Is Ordered Into "Harness" Just in Time to Get Out.

PATROLMAN JOHN J. McKUNE, arrested as one of Francis A. Becker's first aids, may find himself all dressed up in his first new uniform in years next week and no place to go. Policeman McKune has been on the uniformed list since 'way back before they put water in the river.

But he has been referred to, now that he has hopped into the spotlight, as "the copper who never wore a uniform."

"When I asked him the other day where his uniform was, he said he hadn't had one in twenty years," said First Deputy Westbrook last night. "I ordered him to get one and get into it.

"It took me eight months to find out how he did it."

"Has he been suspended?" Mr. Westbrook was asked.

"No, we have heard of his arrest. Probably we will be officially notified Monday morning. His suspension would follow such a notification."

LEARN TO BE OF USE TO NATION AT WAR SCHOOL

A school through which women—and men, too—may learn how they may be of service to the country is to be opened tomorrow in the library of the Defense building at 120 West Adams street. Mrs. Lambert O. Wile, head of the lecture extension bureau of the woman's committee of the council of national defense, is to be the head, and she has arranged a series of valuable talks on the work of the various departments of the committee.

All of the speakers are authorities in their fields. On Monday, Oct. 1, Miss Harriet Vittum will speak on organization of the woman's committee, Mrs. Roy Dickey on registration, and Mrs. Jacob Baur on finance and Liberty loan. On Tuesday Miss Agnes Nestor will speak on industrial standards and Mrs. W. S. Hefferan on courses of instruction. The lectures are free.

Girl Says U. S. Enemies Slew Secret Service Man

Portland, Ore., Sept. 29.—Frank B. Ratisseau, whose body was found in the woods near Portland yesterday, was a secret service man, murdered by enemies of the government, according to the statements tonight of Miss Bessie Barton of Seattle, his sweetheart.

ORTHODOX JEWS PRAY TOMORROW FOR U. S. VICTORY

Feast of Tabernacles to Be Marked by Patriotism.

Jewish residents of Chicago have inaugurated a patriotic movement, which is to be started tomorrow, the first day of the Feast of Tabernacles, in all the orthodox synagogues in the city. Noted speakers are to exhort the worshipers to put forth their best efforts to help the United States through the war. A special prayer for the nation is to be offered in many of the synagogues.

The speakers will ask support for the second Liberty Loan, voluntary support, and enlistment in various branches of the government service, and unflinching loyalty. Civilians will be asked to aid the government in every way possible.

Prayer for the Day.

The special prayer follows, in part:

"O, Lord of the universe, thou, before whom there is no concealment, thou knowest that neither for conquest, nor for gain have these United States of America proclaimed war; that the sword unsheathed by this nation is but an instrument wherewith to cut the fetters of iniquity and to break the yoke of arrogant oppressors, and to bring about a larger freedom for the inhabitants of thy earth.

"On this great and sacred day we draw nigh, O Lord of Hosts, to present our supplication unto thee; be thou with our hosts! Spread thy protecting wings over them, shield them from the enemy's sword, from captivity, and from pestilence, and let their valor break the obstinacy of the oppressors. Grant that they carry thy freedom to the remotest parts of the earth.

"Vouchsafe thy peace unto these United States of America, unto all the nations of the earth and unto the children of Israel among them. Amen."

The Speakers.

The speakers include Levy Mayer, Judge Samuel Alshuler, Judge Hugo Pam, Judge Henry Horner, Judge Joseph David, Judge Harry M. Fisher, Nathan D. Kaplan, Judge P. P. Bregstone, Emil N. Zolla, M. M. Korshak, Max Shulman, Leon Zolotkoff, and H. Steinberg.

Services in the synagogues are to be followed by a series of patriotic meetings in all parts of the city. Jewish women are taking an active part by organizing Red Cross branches. The first of these was formed Friday night at the Lawndale club.

T. R. JOINS CROWD IN NOISY GOOD-BY TO THE SEVENTH

Regiment's Departure for South a Family Affair.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, back from addressing loyalty meetings in Minnesota and Wisconsin, joined the crowd at the union station yesterday in giving the Seventh regiment, I. N. G., on its way to Houston, the noisiest heart warming ovation that any departing soldiers have had in many a week.

Irish flags waved with American flags as Col. Daniel Moriarty's men entrained. From the armory at 3401 Wentworth avenue to the Union station crowds cheered the marching men and traffic was halted until the column filed past.

Col Roosevelt passed through the station from his train as the first of the Seventh arrived. He was recognized and the men fell in and presented arms. The colonel stopped and exclaimed:

"By George, I wish I were going with you!"

Farewell Plans Changed.

Any plans that had been made for the last farewells to be said at home were evidently overlooked in the bustle of departure. An insistent crowd packed the streets about the station, filled the waiting room, and somehow worked its way past the men at the gates to the long trains of Pullmans.

Col. Moriarty it was who announced the plan for home leave taking, but Mrs. Moriarty and the colonel's daughter were among those who waved the first section out of sight.

A Family Farewell.

The farewell given the regiment was more like one great family party than a city's farewell to a regiment. Priests from every parish from which the men left were on hand to wish the boys luck. Firemen and policemen, many of them former members of the regiment, were there. Scores of men from the dusky Eighth marched to the station to see their military neighbors leave.

The regiment left in three sections made up entirely of Pullmans. The first was in charge of Maj. M. J. Holway, the second, of Maj. J. Moore, and the third was commanded by Lieut. Col. John M. Clasby.

Trains Are Late.

Although the scheduled time for departure was 1:25 p. m., the congestion around the station and the difficulty of getting the men through the gates delayed the departure of the first section until 2:30 p. m. and the others left within half an hour of each other.

The leaving of the regiment was in decided contrast to the departure of the National army men for Rockford, a sight to which the Union station had become accustomed.

Thirty Lake County Slackers.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 29.—Thirty slackers in jails in Lake county are to be taken to the nearest army post at once. This order was given to local government agents today.

SHRAPNEL

Miss Julie Elizabeth Kellar, harpiste, was the feature of an entertainment and farewell party given at the Glencoe school gymnasium last night to several of the men in training at Fort Sheridan and the Great Lakes naval training station by the young ladies of Glencoe.

Two hundred and ten bundles of old sheets, bed spreads, and tablecloths were collected in Evanston yesterday by the members of the National surgical dressings committee. They will be transformed into dressings and sent to base hospitals in France.

Chicago is to lose an active member of the local army aviation headquarters. Capt. Reinhold Siewe, one of the heads of the Chicago division of the aviation section of the army, has been detailed to duty at the army aviation school near Mount Clemens, Mich. Announcement of the transfer was made yesterday by Maj. Ira A. Rader, in charge of the Chicago army aviation headquarters.

14 DIE IN GULF COAST STORM

New Orleans, La., Sept. 29.—At least fourteen persons lost their lives in the hurricane which swept the east gulf coast yesterday and property damage inland apparently was greater than first supposed.

Some of the storm stricken area, notably Pensacola, Fla., still was cut off from wire communication tonight and no report has been received as to casualties or property loss.

Nine fishermen were drowned in Sister lake, near Houma, La., by the capsizing of a shrimp schooner, while Crestview, Fla., reported that five persons had been killed there.

Food Gone at Isle of Pines.

HAVANA, Sept. 29.—Refugees from the Isle of Pines arriving here today report that a hurricane which swept the island practically destroyed its food supply. The property damage is estimated at more than $2,000,000. A relief committee has isseud an appeal to the Cuban and American governments for help for the homeless and destitute.

To Dedicate Gary Churches.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 29.—Two bishops will be in Gary tomorrow. The Rt. Rev. John Hazen White of the diocese of Michigan City will dedicate St. Antonio's Italian Episcopal church. The Rt. Rev. Herman J. Alerding of the diocese of Fort Wayne will dedicate St. Luke's Roman Catholic church.

Charges Means Planned to Burn Mrs. King's Body

New York, Sept. 29.—Assistant District Attorney Dooling, back today from North Carolina, said he had received information that it was G. B. Means' plan to have Mrs. Maude A. King's body cremated after it was shipped to Chicago, where the autopsy was performed which led to the charge she had been murdered.

"This plan," said Mr. Dooling, "was blocked by a telegram to Chicago which opened up the entire matter."

The grand jury investigation in New York county which was interrupted to permit Mr. Dooling to go south to attend the Means hearing will be resumed next week. Mr. Dooling said he believed he had evidence sufficient to involve eight persons.

HERE ARE WORDS OF LA FOLLETTE HELD DISLOYAL

Excerpts from Speech on Which the Charges in Senate Are Based.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 29.—The speech on which the Minnesota commission on public safety based its charges of disloyalty, which may result in the expulsion of Senator La Follette from the United States senate, was delivered here on Sept. 20.

Senator La Follette began his address with the declaration that political parties had failed to give the people representative government.

"Many of you who stood up and bared your heads when 'America' was sung a few moments ago, have forgotten the sacrifices that were made for that liberty in 1776 and 1861, some of you are testifying to a devotion to liberty you do not feel," he said.

"Who is abroad crying in the loudest tones? Business, which is making money? The new prophets of patriotism are masquerading in the livery of heaven while you are serving the devil.

"When you can gather in state after state great meetings like this under the auspices of the nonpartisan league it means that there is some power between the people and government and the people are not getting representation under partisan domination.

Sees Wrong in Government.

"Here at the head of the valley of the Mississippi, in what was the old northwest, there was formed the great grange movement, the first movement in the history of the world to go out and grapple with corporate power and seek to restore to the people representative government.

"That assertion of a public right was the logical result of a farmer's thinking as he followed the plow. That was a wonderful piece of reasoning on the part of the farmer. Our whole wonderful philosophy and development has likewise had its basis in the fruitage of the farms.

"In this nonpartisan movement I believe there is sown the seeds of a great political and social advancement, and other crop of the seeds from which a great grange movement sprang.

"This movement could not be unless there is something fundamentally wrong with the government. And there is something fundamentally wrong with the government.

"Democracy of Profits."

"I know that the fellows who are waving the flag most frantically, bloated profiteers of wealth, are trying to invest this country with a new form of democracy, a democracy based not on equality and liberty, but on profits.

"But they can't succeed when you can enlist men in such a cause as this. And you can't enlist the intellectual, conservative people of the old northwest in such a movement unless they are stirred, and stirred deeply, and unless the reason is sound.

"And that reason is to be found in these very men who are shouting democracy at the tops of their voices as though she had not been the heritage not only of your farms, but your factories and your shops.

"We are in the midst of war. I wasn't in favor of beginning the war. We had grievances. The German government had interfered with our rights to travel the high seas—as passengers on the munition ships of Great Britain.

Calls Grievances Small.

"On these grievances, which were insignificant, considering the consequences and rights involved, chiefly that of our citizens to ride on foreign munitions ships, we went to war. We had a right to ship munitions, but I wasn't for the riding."

During the speech some one interrupted. "Shame on congress."

"Yes, and on an administration that approved it," returned the senator as he proceeded.

"Congress has taken what the administration sent down, looked at it popeyed, and swallowed it all. And the founders of this government looked on the legislative branch as the great repository of the liberties of the people.

"Congress was supposed to have the right to declare war. You know what happened.

"And in this day, in the year 1917, with flags all about us, commemorating the creation of our constitutional liberties, we are prohibited even from discussing the war, to see if there is not some way to stop slaughter and carnage. If Lincoln, Webster and Clay were patriots, you have the right to discuss freely whether this war might be brought to a close."

DANCE FOR ARMY RELIEF

Women Arrange Military Ball for Oct. 9 at Fort Sheridan.

Plans are practically completed for the great military ball for the benefit of the army and navy relief work arranged for the Fort Sheridan gymnasium on Oct. 5. Prominent women of north shore circles will act as patronesses and have assisted in the arrangement of details for the entertainment. The ball will be open to those interested in the work at an admission of 50 cents each, which will be devoted to the relief fund.

GREAT PROGRAM IS PREPARED FOR CHICAGO DAY

A three part entertainment, beginning early in the afternoon and lasting until after midnight, will be the contribution of the National Veterans' Reserve corps and the Daughters of the Republic to the general observation of Chicago day, Oct. 9.

The organizations have obtained the use of the municipal pier and have planned a program with variety enough to attract all classes.

The afternoon entertainment will consist of an international exhibit. All of the allied countries with representation in Chicago will take part. There will be folk dances and drills in the national costumes. There will also be a concert by the Grant park camp band and jackies from the camp will perform. All G. A. R. posts in the city will be guests.

Musicians of note have volunteered for the concert. They include Charles W. Clark, Maximilian Pilzer, Edouard Dufranse, and others. John Hubbard, who gained fame in civil war days by singing new national songs, will sing "Old Shady."

After the concert there will be a military and naval ball at which men from all the army and navy camps around Chicago are expected.

Ald. J. O. Kostner Gets Commission National Army

Chicago's city council will have one of its members in the national army.

Ald. Joseph O. Kostner was officially notified yesterday that he had been commissioned a captain. He apppeared before Federal Judge Alschuler and was sworn in.

Two days after the United States declared war on Germany, the alderman filed an application for a commmission. He passed the mental and physical examinations with high marks.

The alderman will report for duty within thirty days. He is beyond the draft age.

Woman Speaker Drafted.

Gary, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Kate Wood Ray, park commissioner of the city of Gary, has been drafted to speak for three weeks in southern Illinois under the auspices of the woman's section of the Illinois state council of defense.

M'ADOO TO TELL CHICAGO OF NEW LOAN ON TUESDAY

All the details concerning the second Liberty loan of $3,000,000,000 in 4 per cent bonds will be explained next Tuesday evening by Secretary of the Treasury W. G. McAdoo.

A reception committee of seventy members has been selected to welcome him to Chicago and escort him to Orchestra hall, where the meeting will be held. Secretary McAdoo will speak on the part the United States is playing in the war.

A committee will meet outside the city and act as escort. The members are James B. McDougal, governor of the federal reserve bank of Chicago; E. K. Boisot, W. A. Heath, Howard Fenton, Solomon A. Smith, Joseph E. Otis, H. L. Stuart, and Charles H. Schweppe.

Tuesday afternoon a detachment of 300 jackies from the naval training station will parade through the loop district with banners advirtising the meeting.

2 Women, 3 Men Held in $3,000 Silk Robbery

Miss Anna Yuknis of 1620 South Union avenue, Mrs. Elizabeth Davis of the same address, William Zick of 570 West Eighteenth street, August Roegel of 2006 String street, and Charles Dugnas of the same address are under arrest in the detective bureau on charges of stealing $3,000 worth of silk from the Oriental Kimono company, T[illegible]tation building.

TRIAL TO EXPEL LA FOLLETTE UP TO COMMITTEE

Disloyalty Charges Filed in Senate by Board of Minnesotans.

FROM THE PEOPLE.

Other communications addressed to the president of the senate are:

From Washburn Loyalty league, Washburn, Wis.—One thousand citizens of this community hereby unite in appealing to the senate of the United States that our senator, Senator Robert M. La Follette, be impeached for his treasonable utterances and disloyalty to our government. With regret do we hereby indict the senator for criminal sedition.

From W. A. Coombe, attorney, Washington, D. C.—As a citizen of the United States I most strongly urge the expulsion of Robert M. La Follette from your august body upon the grounds of seditious and treasonable utterances.

FROM SOLDIER'S FATHER.

From C. W. Cannon, 35 Clairmont avenue, New York—I have a son now in the aviation corps in France fighting for his country, flag, and world freedom. As a good American citizen I ask for the impeachment of Mr. La Follette. After his seditious speech of yesterday he is not a fit man to represent us in our senate. When our sons are giving up their lives for the cause of their country should they be compelled to listen to such traitors in our midst?

From D. M. Jones, Washington, D. C.—I wish to enter my protest against the utterances of Senator La Follette in St. Paul, Minn., as coming dangerously near treason.

Senator Kellogg, in presenting the petition for the expulsion of La Follette, made no statement beyond informing the senate that he acted upon the request of the governor of Minnesota. He declined tonight to make any comment upon the move to punish La Follette for his utterances.

LA FOLLETTE SECLUDES SELF.

Senator La Follette was not present when the petition was submitted and referred to the committee. He entered the chamber shortly afterward apparently unconcerned over the move to expel him, of which he had just been informed.

After busying himself with some papers at his desk for a few minutes he abruptly left the chamber and did not return. The senator secluded himself in a secret office room in the capitol of which he makes use and refused to be interviewed.

Whether it would be possible to obtain the necessary two-thirds majority of the senate to expel La Follette is a question upon which there is much speculation in official Washington tonight. The attitude of the Wisconsin senator since the war began has alienated some even of the few friends he had left. His sentiments on the war are repudiated by an overwhelming majority of the senate.

Many Senators Hesitate.

Many senators, however, who deplore the attitude of La Follette would hesitate to vote for his expulsion unless it should be established conclusively that his abuse of the license of free speech had instigated treasonable activities by individuals or organizations.

In determining whether expulsion proceedings against La Follette are warranted the privileges and elections committee will inquire particularly into the charge of the Minnesota public safety commission that his utterances have bred treasonable sentiments among the people of that state. The Minnesota body is reported to be prepared to furnish such evidence in abundance.

The committee also will scrutinize with care the speech La Follette delivered in St. Paul and several other addresses in other parts of the country which will be brought to the attention of the senate. La Follette has asserted that his St. Paul speech appeared in print in garbled form. The Minnesota public safety commission, however, procured a stenographic report of the speech, copies of which were forwarded to Senators Kellogg and Nelson for submission to the senate.

The Senate's Power.

The senate has power to expel or otherwise punish a member under the following provisions of the constitution:

"Each house shall be the judge of the election returns and qualifications of its own members.

"Each house may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish its members for disorderly behavior, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member."

Fifteen senators have been expelled from the senate since the foundation of the government.

MISSING

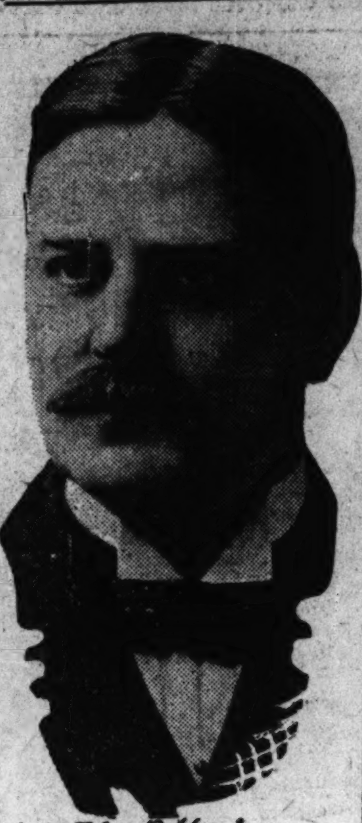
No Trace Found of Attorney Since Disappearance Four Weeks Ago.



John D. Hood.
—STAFFORD PHOTO

A SEARCH that has lasted a month has failed to give any clew to the whereabouts of John D. Hood, an attorney at 39 South La Salle street. Mr. Hood has been missing since Aug. 28, when he said good-by to his son, Davidson, a member of the First Illinois infantry, who left for Camp Grant on that date. Mr. Hood is a son-in-law of William F. Cochran, secretary of the Booth Fisheries company, with whom Mrs. Hood and her daughter, Virginia, are staying at Lake Bluff. Detectives have been working on the case, but no explanation has been found for the disappearance. Mr. Hood was especially devoted to his son and physicians have expressed the belief that he is the victim of amnesia induced by the shock of parting.

Socialists Called to Nominate Circuit Judge

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—Under the provision of a law enacted by the last general assembly, Secretary of State Emmerson issued a call today for a convention of Socialists to be held next Wednesday morning to nominate a candidate for Circuit judge to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Lockwood Honoré. The convention is to be held in the Mid-City Bank building, Chicago.

U. S. HELPS SOLVE GERMAN PRESS WORK IN FRANCE

Bolo Pasha, Suspected, Arrested; Handled $8,000,000.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Bolo Pasha, the Levantine resident of Paris, who has been the object of a judicial investigation concerning his supposed relations with the enemy, was arrested today at his hotel, where he had been confined to his rooms for several days by illness, as the result of new information received from the United States.

An official communication issued by Premier Painleve this afternoon read:

"The Bolo affair is going to enter into a new phase. Capt. Bouchardon has just received from the United States important information hitherto unknown here. It concerns particularly the origin of funds to a considerable amount held by the accused. In consequence of this information Bolo was placed under arrest."

Some Funds from U. S.

In today's issue the editor of Action Française declares the German government turned over to Bolo Pasha about $8,000,000, part through the former Khedive of Egypt, in Switzerland, and part through an American channel. The money, it is stated, was intended to subsidize the press in the interest of a premature peace.

According to statements printed in the afternoon newspapers, funds amounting to $2,000,000 have been traced back from Bolo Pasha to the Deutsche bank.

Two police inspectors are keeping close watch upon Bolo in his apartment, while a physician designated by Capt. Bouchardon, Dr. Socquet, is engaged in conferences with the arrested man's doctor as to whether the condition of the prisoner will permit his transfer. If the decision is a negative one he will remain under close watch until he is able to be removed to prison.

Appeals to Premier.

Immediately after his arrest, Bolo Pasha wrote a letter to Premier Painleve which was delivered to the premier by Jacques Bonzon, Bolo's counsel. The letter read:

"M. Painleve, minister of war, supreme head of military justice: I beg of you to finish with the affair. I have been tortured for eight months and nothing reprehensible has been found against me. I have accepted all investigation regarding my fortune, going back from yesterday to a remote period, and have given all facilities to justice. My health has given out now that I am before my judges, and I charge Maitre Bonzon to hand you this letter."

Diamonds Must Go Higher Say Experts

THE famous Roberts Victor and other S. African diamond mines are flooded, as they stopped the pumps. They will probably not be pumped out and new shafts sunk until war ends.

The expense of so doing will be enormous. And to this must be added heavy war duties and increased labor cost.

The market price of diamonds must rise proportionally.

Anticipating this we have accumulated a matchless assortment of perfect blue gems from the Roberts Victor mines, each gem personally selected and exquisitely mounted.

They invite an early visit from those who seek to purchase as an investment.

RUSSIA IS WITH KERENSKY, HIS SECRETARY SAYS

Reception at Congress Assures Premier; Is Still Vigilant.

PETROGRAD, Friday, Sept. 28.—[Delayed.]—The attitude of Premier Kerensky and the other members of the provisional government today is that the premier's bold address and his dramatic reception by the democratic congress is evidence that the nation is with him. There has been no relaxing, however, of the Kerensky forces' efforts to combat the Bolsheviki left and the uncertain center faction, led by M. Tchernoff, spokesman for the workmen and soldiers.

M. Souskis, Premier Kerensky's secretary, in a statement to the Associated Press, declared:

"The nation is with Kerensky. The opening of the convention proved that. Of course, the Bolsheviki minority is only a small part of the people of Russia. The center, led by M. Tchernoff, professes to be for the premier but against any coalition of the ministry, including Constitutional Democrats. That is impractical and impossible. The government stands firmly against any trickery."

Watch the Committees.

The government closely watched sessions of the committees of the congress which are preliminary to its organization tomorrow (Saturday). It is said that Premier Kerensky again will speak before the close of the congress if he considers it necessary to combat the opposition of the Bolsheviki Left and the Center group, led by M. Tchernoff.

The Minamalists and the Social Democrats voted 81 to 77, in favor of a coalition cabinet to include representatives of the bourgeoise, but 86 to 51 against the inclusion of the Constitutional Democrats. The revolutionary Socialists voted in favor of a coalition, excluding the Constitutional Democrats, 91 to 87.

Premier Kerensky conferred with representatives of the Moscow industrial group regarding their possible entry into the cabinet. They replied they would participate if the cabinet was wholly independent of any party or political association.

In addresses before the congress Premier Kerensky and his minister of war, Gen. Verkhovsky, pledged final victory over Germany if the discipline in the army is restored.

The general's reference to the return of discipline and his announcement that the officers would be named by their superiors, instead of elected by the soldiers, was applauded only mildly, but his address as a whole evoked more cheers than did the premier's.

When the premier declared that the good of Russia necessitated the observance of order and discipline one of the most dramatic heckling incidents which punctuated the address occurred.

Called Mischief Worker.

He had reached a pause in his address when a loud voice in the gallery shouted:

"You are the great mischief worker of the country."

From a bedlam of hisses and applause, voices from the floor challenged the heckler to arise. A common soldier in the back gallery arose, and, with arms folded across his brown blouse, stood calmly facing a torrent of hisses from the supporters of Premier Kerensky. This was only one of the unusual scenes.

Cheer Stand of Allies.

The section of Gen. Verkhovsky's speech concerning the efforts of Germany to obtain peace at the expense of Russia provoked great applause.

"Our gallant allies," the war minister said, "have replied to the dastardly offer by unconditionally rejecting it, believing, as I believe, that the Russian army still will bare its breast to free the fatherland."

The general said he would handle the army without gloves, although it had plenty of good intentions. He pointed out defects, saying:

"The Twelfth army before Riga did not refuse to fight and die, but we need them to fight and win victories. The fleet does not refuse to fight, but at the same time it murders its officers. We hear many worthy words about the army and fleet, but we have a great many deserters. The glorious victories on the southwest front in July terminated in a disgraceful retreat.

Fear Reinforcements!

"In the rear we have reinforcements, but the men at the front do not accept them because they bring discord and regiments with historic records cannot accept such men."

The war minister is a young man about the age of Kerensky. He spoke in a low, even voice and referred frequently to notes, gradually working up to the climax, when he declared in a ringing voice:

"The war must be continued until with certainty we have achieved the peace desired by all—peace with freedom."

U. S. TO CURB TREASON PRESS UNDER NEW ACT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The government completed preparations tonight for the big drive against seditious and disloyal newspapers and other publications under the provisions of the recently enacted trading with the enemy law. This measure is now in the hands of the president for signature.

German and Hungarian newspapers, and not a few pacifistic and pro-German publications in the English language, will be the first to feel the iron hand of the government, which, with the approbation of all loyal Americans, is determined to put an end to the aid and comfort being given to the enemy in an insidious manner within the American household.

RUSSIANS MUST KEEP UP WAR OR LOSE U. S. HELP

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Russia has been made aware that continuance of American aid is conditioned upon Russia's continuance in the war against Germany. There is no suspicion here regarding the intentions of the Kerensky government, and this country has received ample assurances that the provisional authorities are determined to fight on. War Minister Verkevsky, who has the confidence of the Bolshiviki, is himself in favor of pressing the war to victory, according to advices received here.

Zinc and Lead Prices to Be Fixed Next by U. S.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Lead and zinc are the next sinews of war slated for government price fixing. Representatives of the lead and zinc industries of Pittsburgh conferred today with members of the federal trade commission regarding the cost and production inquiry to be made by the commission.

Lake Forest mothers of members of the Junior Red Cross attended a party and exhibit of the work of the kiddies for the soldiers yesterday in the home of Mrs. Charles Garfield King. Not only was there a large exhibit of the handiwork of the youngsters in knitting of various articles or wear, but the children were not slow in giving demonstrations of their art. As a part of the program there was story telling by Georgene Faulkener.

MEN UNJUSTLY CALLED FOR WAR TO GET REDRESS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—A method of relieving hardships in cases where men who should have been exempted have been ordered to report for military service or have entered camps has been prescribed by Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder.

If a local or district board believes a man has been wrongly ordered to report for duty it may reopen the case on its own initiative and revoke the former action.

If the man has already entered the service he may be discharged only by order of the army adjutant general, who will act on recommendations of local or district boards.

Another ruling provides that thousands of aliens who registered June 5, and who since that date have declared their intentions of becoming citizens, are now subject to selection.

SERGT. EMPEY TO TAKE CHICAGO "OVER THE TOP"

Chicago will literally be taken "Over the Top" at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Oct. 11, by the soldier-author, Sergt. Arthur Guy Empey.

An improvised trench will be arranged on the stage of Orchestra hall. In it will be placed a dummy, representing the savage Hun. Empey, rifle in hand, will charge the trench, and, as he goes "Over the Top," he will stab the enemy with the dreaded bayonet. Gas masks, hand grenades, trench raids, star shells, persuaders, come-alongs, and shell-shock will be among the many things that Empey explains by means of speech and demonstration.

MARTIAL LAW FOR ARGENTINA TO KILL STRIKE

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 29.—With Argentina tonight even more completely prostrated industrially by the general strike than heretofore, President Irigoyen was reported authoritatively to have decided on a declaration of national martial law on Monday.

Such a step, his adherents pointed out, would enable him not only to control internally but would likewise enable him to dominate Argentina's national policy toward Germany, since congress, by constitutional provision, is to die at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

President Irigoyen is believed to be firmly committed to a policy of complete neutrality toward Germany.

Today the remaining street car employés in Buenos Aires joined the strike. The taxicab drivers already are out.

Conditions here are grave. Food supplies are running low, due to the railroad tieup, and industry is completely at a standstill.

Madame Horta to Picture the Belgian Tragedy

Mme. Victor Horta, a Belgian woman, who is here on a lecture tour under the auspices of the Belgian government, will speak tonight at Orchestra hall for the benefit of the Belgian children, through the medium of the American Aid for Homeless Belgian Children. Mme. Horta was in the war zone during the first eighteen months of the war. Since then she has been traveling through Sweden and the eastern part of the United States lecturing for the children of the country.

BRYAN PROTEGE LANGUISHES IN RUSSIAN CELLS

Former Vice Consul at Liege May Die of Food Want.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
(Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.)

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 29.—Victor H. Duras, a Nebraskan, aged 26, a member of Bryan's Sunday school class and later Bryan's appointee as vice consul to Liege, Belgium, has been a year in Russian prisons on the vaguest charges, and nobody in Russian governmental or American diplomatic circles manifests sufficient interest to get him either tried or released.

After the Germans occupied Belgium Duras was assigned as legation attaché at Bucharest. Last autumn he started by way of Russia for Norway to take ship for America, but at Byeloostrov, a customs station on the Russian-Finnish border, the Russians arrested him on the plea that he had American consular note paper and a governmental stamp in his baggage. They sent him to a Petrograd prison.

Reports Case to Embassy.

It was then that W. G. Shepherd, a correspondent for the United Press, saw Duras being marched down the street between two Russian soldiers. Shepherd reported this to the American embassy, with the result that a leisurely investigation was brought.

After two months the old régime denied they had Duras in custody, but after five months the old régime permitted our Petrograd embassy's second secretary, Armour, to see him at the general prison.

Following the triumph of the revolution, Duras was released, getting as far south as Kiev, where he was taken into custody again. By this time Duras' passport had disappeared, hence he had no status. He was again imprisoned at Petrograd, but smuggled out word to the embassy, and the case was assigned to the embassy's first secretary, Bailey, three months ago.

But there were no results either in securing his trial or release.

Sneers by Officials.

Two American correspondents just from Petrograd declare they heard American officials in Petrograd, whose names they will not permit me to use, speak sneeringly of Duras as "one of those Bryan appointees," adding "we think he's for peace." Another American official, called him a German agent, and an American military official said: "I guess he ought to be in prison, anyway."

My informant said: "I don't know the rights or wrongs of the Duras case, or whether he is guilty of anything, but it is heartless how he is being allowed to languish. He ought to be tried promptly and sentenced or released."

Correspondent Browne of the Chicago News said: "Duras will die unless we get action. Anybody who knows how the Petrograd population's food is can imagine what Petrograd prison food is." Bassett Digby of the Chicago News says Duras is of good character.

Deny Laxity in Case.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—State epartment officials denied today that the American embassy at Petrograd had been lax in its efforts to effect the release of V. H. Duras, former vice consul at Liege, who has been imprisoned in the Russian capital for a year.

A bulky volume of correspondence has been exchanged in efforts to gain liberty for Duras, officials said, but charges of insanity made against Duras had blocked efforts to gain his release.

The Duras case is still in negotiation, officials said.

PLEDGES JAPAN TO KEEP CHINA DOOR WIDE OPEN

Ishii Announces Monroe Doctrine for Far East.

New York, Sept. 29.—Japan not only will not seek to assail the integrity or the sovereignty of China, but eventually will be prepared to defend Chinese independence against any aggressor, Viscount Ishii, head of the Japanese imperial mission to the United States, declared tonight in proclaiming a Monroe doctrine of the far east in an address at a banquet given in honor of the envoys as the culminating event of their visit to New York.

Viscount Ishii's address was regarded as the most important he has delivered since the arrival of the mission in the United States. He discussed frankly his country's aspirations and desires as they relate to China, and denounced as propaganda of ill-will "the persistent cry of the closed door." He did not hesitate to assert that in seeking the trade of China his country possessed natural advantages in trade by means of which it was bound to succeed in China "unless we are very stupid or very inactive."

Door Always Open.

"The door of Japan is always open," said Viscount Ishii. "It has always been open; it always must remain open, not only to the guest who comes to trot around our little island for a round of pleasure, but to the representatives of these vast commercial interests represented so well in this gathering of kings of commerce.

"In spite of all the effort to make you believe that Japan as she grew stronger was always trying to close the door, I tell you that there never has been an hour when our common sense or our sense of our own responsibility failed us. Why close our door in violation of our pledges or endeavor to close our neighbors' door when we are in honor bound to protect it?

"Gentlemen, I assure you that a closed door in China has never been and never will be the policy of my government.

Must Protect Self.

"Circumstances for which we were in no sense responsible gave us certain rights on Chinese territory, but at no time in the past and at no time in the future do we or will we seek to take territory from China or to despoil China of her rights. Yet we must at all times for self-protection prevent other nations from doing what we have no right to do. Not only will we not seek to assail the integrity or the sovereignty of China but will eventually be prepared to defend and maintain the same integrity and independence of China against any aggressor. For we know that our own landmarks would be threatened by any outside invasion or interference in China.

"The Pacific ocean is our common highway. We guard the Pacific ocean together with our ships, but more than this and better than the ships or the men or the guns, is the assurance of the notes exchanged between your secretary of state, Elihu Root, and our Ambassador Takahira, in 1908, in which it was mutually agreed and formally resolved to respect the territorial possessions belonging to each other in the region of the Pacific ocean.' Gentlemen, Japan is satisfied with this. Are you? If so, there is no Pacific ocean question between us."

Germans Bury French Air King Near Battle Front

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Sept. 29.—A German airman, brought down wounded and taken prisoner last night, asserted that Guynemer, the famous French air fighter whose fate has been uncertain since he disappeared behind the Teuton lines, was killed in battle with a German airplane. Guynemer was buried, the prisoner said, just behind the front line.

Russian Envoy Asked to Help Free White House Picket Serving 30 Day Sentence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The Russian ambassador has been appealed to by Miss Vera Samaradin, a young Russian woman living in Baltimore, Md., to intercede on behalf of her sister, Nina, who is serving a thirty day sentence in the workhouse at Occoquan for picketing the White House with suffrage banners in company with several members of the Woman's party.

"The severity and cruelty of the treatment she is receiving at Occoquan," wrote Miss Samaradin in a letter received by his excellency today, "are so much greater than she would have to suffer in Russia for the simple political offense she is accused of having committed that I hope you will be able to intercede with the officials of this country for her.

"Her offense was carrying a banner and standing in front of the house of the president of the United States asking for the women of America the political freedom which all Russian women now possess."

BELGIAN GIRLS ARE MISUSED, BARON CHARGES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—"Not a young girl in Belgium above 17 years old has escaped misuse by German authorities, according to Baron Van Der Noot de Moorsel in a report to the Red Cross today.

"No one can imagine the sufferings of the Belgian people," said the Belgian nobleman. "The people are actually deprived of everything. They are living from hand to mouth. They watch, week by week, for the America relief ships to bring them supplies.

"They kneel before the Stars and Stripes and pray to it as they would to the flag of a church."

GERMANS HANG 150 RUSSIANS

LONDON, Sept. 29.—According to a Central News dispatch from Petrograd, 150 Russians belonging to various Socialist, Lettish, and other political organizations have been hanged by the Germans since their occupation of Riga.

Turks Hang Arab Leaders.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 29.—Reports from Turkey show that Djemal Pasha, commander of the Turkish forces in Syria, has caused to be hanged all the members of the committee of Arabs in Syria who before the war were engaged in directing the Arab national movement.

ILLINOIS GERMAN ALLIANCE VOICES LOYALTY TO U. S.

Branch of National Society Holds Tenth Gathering in Chicago.

A dominating note of patriotism marked the tenth annual convention of the Illinois branch of the National German alliance, which began a two day session yesterday afternoon at the Lincoln Turner hall, 1005 Diversey boulevard. This note was expressed in the decorations, which were solely of American flags, and in the address of greeting of President Charles Christman, who said in part:

"The spirit of this gathering is wholly and devotedly patriotic, a reflection of the ideal that animates all true Americans of German blood. We stand today as we have always stood, for our nation, harmonious and undivided, and our beacon light of Americanism for the present and for the future is to do all that lies within us to exemplify our devotion to the sentiment expressed by that great American of German birth, Carl Schurz: 'Our country, right or wrong; if right to be kept right; if wrong to be set right.'"

150 Delegates Attend.

The convention was attended by 150 delegates representing thirty-five local branches of the alliance throughout the state, and by about fifteen visitors from Michigan, Missouri, Minnesota, and South Dakota.

Harry B. Miller, city prosecutor, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the mayor, and praised the patriotism and devotion to country of the German-Americans.

Last night a banquet was tendered to the visitors at the same hall, at which Dr. Herman Gerhardt acted as toastmaster. About five hundred were present. No reference whatever was made to the war, either in the convention or at the later banquet.

To Preserve Customs.

The purpose of the convention is to unite more closely American citizens of German birth or ancestry, and to preserve German songs, customs, and language in this country. The question of the discontinuance of the teaching of German in the public schools was discussed, but no action taken.

The convention will be resumed this morning at 9 o'clock.

Imagine an Upright for a Recital!

Think of the difference in tone. How keenly you would miss the majestic lines of the Grand, which alone on the largest stage, seems sufficient unto itself, like a Sarah Bernhardt, or a Forbes-Robertson or a Franz Liszt.

Why, then, be content with an upright in your home? No matter how tiny the room in which the piano stands, no matter how moderate your means, you can bring the tonal beauties and the estheticism of a Grand into your home—at about the cost of the Upright, without sacrifice of floor space.

GERMANS STRIP NORTH FRANCE; RETREAT NEAR?

Send Looms and Machinery Out; Wreck Immovable Things.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The possibility that the German army is about to withdraw from western Flanders and northern France is suggested by a recent government telegram from a source considered reliable.

It is stated in this message that in Roubaix and Tourcoign, near Lille, looms and machinery are being removed from the textile mills and sent to Germany. Machines which cannot be removed and transported are being destroyed with hammers, and in some instances dynamite has been used. Similar things have occurred near Courtrai.

All mills in Flanders have been ordered to furnish a list of their machinery. This means that the measures which have been applied in the north of France will shortly be carried out in all Flanders. The textile fabrics even in small retail stores have been requisitioned by the military authorities, as have woolen blankets found in private houses. Wine has also been requisitioned.

NEWS LID HOLDS FAST.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

At a late hour the ban on press dispatches from the Franco-Belgian front had not been raised and the world was left to guess whether the interdiction was intended to conceal some military movement of prime importance or whether there was a relatively inconsequential reason for it.

The official statements afforded no clew to the mystery. Field Marshal Haig's report in the forenoon, for instance, was of the routine character that ordinarily excites no comment, merely announcing reciprocal artillery fire. The Berlin statement was similarly unilluminating.

From the French front there was an absence of any interesting news, except that violent artillery activity was reported east of the Meuse in the Verdun region.

Italians Make New Gain.

The official statement from Rome shows Gen. Cadorna giving his infantry rein again, with the result that an important gain was effected in the Monte San Gabriele region, northeast of Goritz.

A surprise attack carried out with complete success gave the Italians a line rectified to their advantage between Sella Di Dol and the northern slopes of Monte San Gabriele, 224 prisoners and a few machine guns being captured in the operation. The new line was solidly maintained in the face of several Austrian counter attacks.

The Italian air operations were again of importance, the airmen once more sweeping over the Austrian naval base at Pola, where the arsenal and submarine base were bombed by a big squadron. Austrian military establishments in the Carso zone were also successfully attacked from the air.

Wilson Names Three for Interstate Shipping Body

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—The following were nominated today by President Wilson to the three vacancies on the interstate commerce commission:

Clyde B. Aitchison of Oregon, for the term ending Dec. 31, 1921.

Hampson Gary of Texas, assistant solicitor of the state department, was nominated to be consul general at Cairo, Egypt.

OFFICIAL STATEMENTS ISSUED BY VARIOUS NATIONS AT WAR

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, Sept. 29.—Yesterday by a completely successful surprise attack our troops rectified our line between Sella di Dol and the northern slopes of Monte San Gabriele. Eight officers, 216 men, and a few machine guns were captured. The position was maintained and strengthened notwithstanding the fact that the enemy, having recovered from his surprise, repeatedly counter attacked.

AVIATION.

Our air attacks were concentrated on the military zone of the Carso, which was effectively bombarded with about three tons of bombs, and on the fortified naval center of Polo, where the submarine base and arsenal were again bombed with numerous projectiles by a strong bombarding squadron.

An enemy machine was forced to land near Tolmino and was subsequently destroyed by our artillery.

Last night hostile aircraft dropped incendiary bombs on the town of Palmanova. Very slight damage was done and there were no casualties.

FRENCH FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—There was great activity of the French and German artillery on the right bank of the River Meuse last night.

Enemy surprise attacks on our advanced posts southeast of St. Quentin in the region of Ailles and north of Caurieres wood were repulsed by our fire.

In upper Alsace, to the east of Seppois, we succeeded in penetrating the German lines and, after destroying enemy shelters, returned with war material.

There was nothing to report on the rest of the front.

AVIATION.

German aviators last night dropped bombs in the region of Bar-Le-Duc.

NIGHT STATEMENT.

There was no infantry action. The artillery action was quite intense on the Aisne front, particularly in the sectors of Pantheon and Hurtebise. On the right bank of the Meuse the bombardment continued violent on both sides in the region north of the Bois le Chaume.

AVIATION.

On Sept. 27 two German airplanes were brought down by our pilots. Our escadrilles bombarded on the same day aviation grounds at Staden, Roulers, and Courtemarck and cantonments in that region.

BELGIAN.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—There was the usual activity on the part of both artilleries. On the day of Sept. 28 and the night of Sept. 28-29 a violent bombardment occurred between Nieuport and Dixmude. Numerous German patrols attempted to raid our lines, but the attempts were without success except at Landmark 16 on the Yser, where the enemy entered one of our sapheads, but was driven out immediately.

Our artillery has carried our fires of destruction on several enemy batteries, some of which had been engaged in heavy shelling near Knocke.

AVIATION.

Today our airplanes have been active. Two Belgian aviators pursued last night enemy machines which were proceeding in the direction of Dunkirk and Calais.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht—On the Flanders coast and between Houthulst wood and the Lys the artillery activity was of varied intensity.

Violent drum fire in the evening east of Ypres was followed only by local British infantry attacks at Zonnebeke, which were repulsed. On the Ypres-Passchendaele road, the enemy was driven out of the crater line which he still held there. In the region of the Yser, our reconnoitering parties returned with prisoners from an encounter with Belgians.

Front of the German crown prince—Northeast of Soissons and before Verdun the artillery battles increased considerably at intervals. Along the Meuse they also continued lively during the night. Several forefield engagements led our shock troops into the French positions with success.

Front of Grand Duke Albrecht—Near Bisel, in Sundgau [Alsace], a few prisoners remained in our hands after a French advance.

AVIATION.

London and several places on the English south coast have been attacked with bombs by our aviators.

BRITISH.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—This morning the enemy attempted to raid two of our posts on hill 70, north of Lens. The attacks were repulsed after a sharp fight; we captured a few prisoners. Two of our men are missing.

We also secured a few prisoners during the night as a result of patrol encounters in the neighborhood of the Bapaume-Cambrai road.

The artillery has been active during the day on the Ypres front. The enemy's artillery also has shown considerable activity at different points between the Ypres-Comines canal and St. Julien.

AVIATION.

On Sept. 28 artillery and photographic work was continued by our airplanes. Over four tons of bombs were dropped on the enemy's airdromes at Gontrode and at Carmieres and on hostile dumps, billets, and railways. Another six tons were dropped on similar targets, including airdromes at Gontrode, where the enemy's anti-aircraft guns, machine guns, and searchlights were most active. In spite of the heavy barrage which was put up over the airdromes all our machines returned.

During the raids our airplanes again used machine gun fire to good effect against all the enemy troops and transports seen.

As a result of the air fighting nine German machines were brought down and four others were driven down out of control. One machine was brought down by anti-aircraft guns. Three of our airplanes failed to return.

DAY STATEMENT.

There was the usual artillery activity on both sides. There is nothing of interest to report.

ADMIRALTY STATEMENT.

On the night of Sept. 27-28 there were bombing raids by naval aircraft on the following objectives: The lock gates at Zeebrugge, the St. Denis Westrem airdrome, the Gontrode airship shed, the Houttav airdrome.

The bomb dropping at Zeebrugge appeared to be good, while at Houttav bombs fell among hangars and huts on the southwest side of the airdrome. Seven tons of explosives were dropped. All the machines returned.

FIGHTING ON ISONZO FRONT

2—Italians report successful surprise attack on northern slopes of San Gabriele in which they straightened out their line. Eight officers, 216 men, and machine guns were captured.

RUSSO-ROUMANIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 29.—On the northern, western, southwestern, and Roumanian fronts there were fusillades and reconnoitering.

AVIATION.

Recently our airmen downed four enemy machines. One of our machines fell inside the enemy's lines. In the Fokshani region a Roumanian airman downed an enemy airplane.

Our airmen dropped a few hundredweight of bombs on the enemy's supply depots, along the River Stokhod and on the villages of Cigany and Losyach, while southwest of Huslatyn our airmen dropped several hundredweight of bombs on Sorostkoff, where fires broke out and a panic was observed.

All our bomb droppers returned safely, notwithstanding the attacks of enemy airmen and a terrific fire from anti-aircraft guns.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Front of Prince Leopold: The fighting activity, which in general has been light, increased only temporarily during reconnoitering enterprises, two north of Duena and west of Lutsk and one at Zbrocz.

Front of Field Marshal von Mackensen: Russian detachments, which had been put across the Sereth and the St. George's branches of the Danube by boats, were driven back through a quick counter attack.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—Yesterday on the Struma, in the region of the Vardar, there was quite marked artillery activity on both sides during the night, intermittent in the day. Patrol encounters took place along the Struma and in the Devol valley.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—There is nothing of importance.

TURKISH FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 29.—On the Caucasian front, southwest of Ognott, our volunteers attacked several Turkish posts and took prisoners. Twenty miles northwest of Wanne one of our vanguard detachments was encircled by a strong party of Kurds, but succeeded in getting free and driving the Kurds from Erazseyall heights.

BRITISH.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Naval aircraft made a bombing raid Thursday on storehouses, etc., on the southwestern side of Beirut harbor [Syria]. Many direct hits were observed and fires were started. It was observed that the damage caused to a shed as a result of the August raid was in the course of repair. All our machines returned safely. The storehouses on the mole were afterwards shelled by a cruiser and set afire.

EAST AFRICAN FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Our troops yesterday occupied Nahungo, an important German supply base eighty-two miles southwest of Kilwa, after considerable resistance. Our advances in the Lukeledi valley and the forward movement of the Belgians on Mahenge are continuing steadily.

In the Molemkuru valley we were engaged throughout Thursday on the road from Nakiku to Napungo, north of the river.

In the Lukeledi valley the enemy evacuated his strong positions near Mtuma, twenty-two miles southwest of Lindi, and retired during Wednesday night to Mtuma-Ne-Nyangao.

SUPPLEMENTARY

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Up to the present no fighting of any importance is reported from any of the fronts.

British Casualties 104,598 for Month of September

LONDON, Sept. 29.—British casualties reported during the month of September totaled 104,598, divided as follows:

|---|---|
| Officers killed or died of wounds | 636 |
| Men | 18,302 |
| Officers wounded or missing | 2,151 |
| Men | 83,509 |

The severity of the fighting in which the British have been engaged during September is indicated not only by the total casualties of more than 104,000 but by comparison with the August figures, which were 59,811.

The total compares favorably, however, with the figures for September, 1916, the third month of the battle of the Somme, when the casualties were 119,549.

New Cadillac Embodies Advanced Refinements

Five Self-Acting Features Little Known

Cadillac owners take perfection so much for granted that they seldom note the little things that make perfection.

Things that work on for years without calling themselves to your attention—there are scores of these in the modern Cadillac Eight. Many are exclusive and patented—found only in the Cadillac.

Self-Filling Radiator

You need put water in a Cadillac radiator only when you clean it out. It loses no water (or alcohol mixture) by evaporation. The evaporated water is all condensed in an overflow tank and sucked back into the radiator, as it cools.

Self-Raising Top

Yes, after one push from behind the top on an open Cadillac will spring briskly forward and settle into place. It's a "one girl" top for all the effort it requires. And it folds down just as easily as ordinary tops.

Self-Correcting Cooling

Note that word "correct." Some motors overheat in summer; others are too cool in winter. Fact is a motor can't be right unless the temperature is uniformly correct. Automatic correct cooling is one of the reasons for Cadillac motor efficiency.

Cadillac double pump circulation assures a properly cool motor in hottest weather. Cadillac thermostatic control of circulation assures a warm motor in winter—a motor that quickly reaches its highest efficiency when starting.

Self-Adjusting Spark

Racing drivers will tell you the proper adjusting of the ignition spark is a fine art. Few ever learn it; none needs to who drives a Cadillac. The performance of the Cadillac does not depend upon the "hunches" of amateur drivers as to spark control. You forget it, but the Cadillac spark is doing the right thing just the same.

Short Circuit Warning

If carelessness or a poorly constructed electrical accessory should short circuit the electrical apparatus of a Cadillac, you are not stalled in the dark till you find a blown-out fuse. No fuse is blown; there are no fuses. A vibrator absorbs the excess current and makes a loud ticking noise till the "short" is corrected.

Tilting Headlights

Another Cadillac feature of safety is the new headlight tilter. By a lever on the steering column the rays of the headlights are instantly thrown down on the road, as required by new legislation.

Cadillac Refinements Lead

It is little things like these—countless in number—individually unimportant—scarcely ever mentioned—that produce the Cadillac satisfaction you hear so much about. Obviously it is a satisfaction you cannot buy in any other car.

New Year 'Round Types

And in body types Cadillac advancement is as marked as in mechanical safeguards. The latest year 'round types, of which the Landaulet is illustrated above, show refinements every gentlewoman at once remarks. Your inspection is invited.

KENTUCKY HILLS GIVE FIGHTERS TO KAISER FEUD

Visitor Describes How Whitley County Folk Answered Call.

BY EDWARD B. FULLERTON.

The call had come from Frankfort, the capital, for Whitley county's quota of Kentucky's 40 per cent to present themselves for service in the national army. The district committee in the little town of Williamsburg had forwarded the call to the men selected. A few of them had been reached by mail, the majority by courier, and to the rest the word went out over the hills, passed along into the distant heights by a string of mountaineers.

With the call there went to each of the selected men an invitation "to bring along your folks and be visitors with the town." Each was told to report the day before that set for the start to the training camp.

Early in the afternoon the arrival began. Those who were close enough to the "big road" came in jolt wagons, drawn by a span of mules; others rode down the rock strewn, gullied dirt roads on their bare backed mules, many of them with their "women folks" behind, likewise astride. Still others came down the "tote roads" from behind Jellico mountain and Mount Morgan. They came afoot.

Quota 60; All Report.

Whitley county's quota on the call was sixty, and before the early dusk fell the sixty had reported. They were a quiet lot. Most of them had never been out of the county; for a few it was the first visit even to the little county seat. They were tall, spare, and bronzed from the hill winds. Most of them stooped a little as they walked, the result of hard climbs up the steep hills under heavy "totes."

There may have been some doubt in their mind what it was all about, but the nation had called and they came, even if a few of their friends "were down in Frankfort for a spell," because they sought to square matters in their own way instead of calling on the law when an enemy had done an injury to his or friend, or if others, perhaps, had fallen into trouble with the "revenuers" for converting corn into a form more easily carried, without troubling about a federal license.

Boys and Dogs at Feast.

Inside the iron fence around the courthouse yard a beef, split in half, sizzled over a hot fire in a dugout oven. Nearby coffee was boiling, and on the long tables the boys and their relatives were being served with huge slices of beef, scalding hot coffee, and bread and butter in Gargantuan slices. Restless children, clad in one piece calico slips, barefooted and bareheaded, slipped down from the benches and chased about, waving beef bits nearly as big as themselves and stopping their shrieks only long enough to try to get a little more of the meat from the bones.

They dodged through the crowd followed by dogs of all degree, wild with the excitement and the smell of the roasting meat. Now and then there would come a loud yell. It was from a child robbed by an overtempted dog. Usually this was followed by yelps from the dog as retribution, in the shape of a well swung boot from the father of the child, descended upon the despoiler. The dog's owner would come to the front, but the night was too great for a fight, even over the sacrilege of kicking another's best "houn' dog."

Outside the iron fence gleamed two rows of glistening white. They sagged up and down and twinkled at times like stars. They were the teeth and eyes of the black folk. No "Jim Crow" sign showed on the fence, but it was there by unwritten law.

Back of them on the very verge of the light could be seen the horses and mules tied tight to the hitching racks which lined the streets surrounding the square.

When the last of the "vittles" was gone, the crowd surged into the circuit court room on the second floor of the courthouse. Up the stairs they swarmed and pushed, and through the door until the room, built to hold a hundred, held several times that number. It was a hot night. Ninety-nine out of a hundred there toiled on little mountain side holdings, and nearly all lived in primitive log cabins. Nearly all of them had walked to town under a broiling hot sun or had ridden bareback on mules or horses.

"Old Glory" Saluted.

The only open space was a few feet between the judge's bench and the chosen sixty who sat in a semi-circle facing it. The chairman could not be heard above the hum of voices, so he turned to the band. It was a six piece band and apparently believed that a note or two, or a measure or two, made no difference between friends, but before the first bar of "America" was finished, every one in the room was standing. The doors swung open and the commander of the local G. A. R. bore forward a flag. As he reached the front each selected man was at salute. Where they learned the position no one knew.

The "speaking" began. It was simple words to a plain people by men who long since had ceased to be "foreigners" and had won the confidence of the hill people, suspicious of all not born or raised in the mountains. There was no need to raise oratorical periods about "spurlos versenkt," nor of the "scrap of paper," nor yet of "restoration and restitution." These were practically unknown up there. Even the Monroe doctrine was a bit confusing, and to some perhaps suggested "something to do with them Presbyterians outside with which we have no truck."

War's Tragedies Told.

In plain talk, understood by the smallest there, President Wood of Cumberland college, the struggling school in which Williamsburg is trying to bring the outside world to the mountain boys and girls, told why we are at war. Then Prof. Gorman Jones of the school recited the tragedies of Belgium, of Poland, of Louvain and Reims, and of the others crushed before Prussianism and militarism, and as the details came forth there could be seen in the faces of the listeners a sudden determination. They were of the people who had come to America to escape oppression and in the later generations had retreated into the mountains still in search of freedom, at the expense of wealth or comfort. Still later the fathers or grandfathers had fought for the nation in the war of the sections, and a few of their brothers had gone out to serve in the unpleasantness with Spain in '98. Unlettered and illiterate, many of them, but the spirit of their forefathers had come down into their hearts.

College Ranks Depleted.

The speakers did not mention it, but all of those there knew that the college itself had done its part, that both faculty and student body were depleted when the men and boys had left for the aviation training camps and the officers' training camps.

Judge Rose, tall and every inch a mountain man, spoke to the boys in their own dialect. He told them of the hard training they will get, the dangers which they will face, and of the work they must do. He gave a little history of the mountain counties and how they fought. His peroration was:

"Boys, we mountain people have always fought for the right. We are going into the greatest war of the world for the right. Sixty of you go at this call. A few have gone before. Many more are to follow. Of your sixty, thirty-eight are my blood cousins. I am proud, yes, glad, to see you go. Go to it, and may God bless you."

The prosecuting attorney relieved the tension and brought the only laugh of the meeting. His story, used to illustrate America's unpreparedness, was of the preparedness of the hill man who defied the rattlesnake, shaking his jug of "mountain dew" and daring him to bite.

Then arose the pastor of the Baptist church, the chairman of the meeting. To all of those present he is "Brother Wright," either in the church or on the high road. He replied to those insinuations and charges meant to discourage the honor men, which have reached even to that remote corner, carried by friends of the enemy or the peace at any price faction. "England is not doing her share," "Entry on the battlefield means certain death to all"; these and a dozen others he answered, and at times seemed hard put not to break into phrases out of keeping with his calling, so great was his anger.

The roll was called and each chosen soldier stepped to the front. To each was presented a small khaki clad Bible, the gift of Cumberland college, and the boys, with those of their relatives not taking the long journey home that night, were billeted on the townspeople.

On Their Way to France.

The next morning the recruits gathered at the courthouse and marched two abreast up the street to the railroad. On the sidewalks beside them marched nearly all of the inhabitants of Whitley county. On the platform the band struggled through all the patriotic airs and as the boys mounted the cars turned to "Dixie" and finally to "My Old Kentucky Home."

A window opened, a head stuck out: "Don't worry, folks, we'll be back"; and they were gone to join at Corbin the special train carrying the boys from Breathitt, Knox, and the other mountain counties on the way to Camp Zachary Taylor at Louisville, there to meet the boys from the bluegrass region and from Indiana and Illinois, the first step to "somewhere in France."

TRIPLETS

Infant Americans Face Chance of Losing Even Some of Their Total Poundage of 18.

Antonio, Angelina, and Jakey Gagliano

Jakey, Angelina, and Antonio are three newly arrived Americans in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gagliano of 211 West Twenty-second place. They weigh 7, 6, and 5 pounds, respectively, but there is a chance they will weigh less if some one does not lend a hand. They arrived on Thursday, and there was glee in the household. The glee had a tinge of sorrow, however, for poverty stalks meagerly in the Gagliano household. The father is out of work, and there is a scarcity of food. The nights are chill, and there are few coverings for the family. In addition to the triplets, there is an older child of 3 years, and he, too, requires food.

KU KLUX TACTICS AND HORSEWHIP IN PALOS PARK

Say Negro Children Were Barred from Public School.

"Ku Klux Klan" warfare in peaceful Palos Park, miniature race rioting, horsewhips, the arrest of Mrs. Bertha Thomas, champion of equal rights, and the closing of the village school over racial disputes have made that suburb a haven of discontent.

Tomorrow Mrs. Thomas will be tried before Justice Kendall on a charge of brandishing a whip about the person of Miss Bernadette Bremner, the school teacher. Most of the town will be there, for most of the town is interested.

Prosecutor Interested.

Yesterday Mrs. John McCord, wife of the president of the village board and owner of a large farm adjoining the school property, conferred with Assistant State's Attorney Charles Center Case Jr., who said he would have a representative at the trial.

The trouble is said to have started when Mrs. Thomas, a member of the schol board, charged Miss Bremner, who is a niece of one of the officials of Bremner Bros., biscuit manufacturers, with teaching card games, such as euchre, rhum, and "twenty-six," to her pupils. Mrs. Thomas also charged that Miss Bremner declined to accept as her pupils the children of Richard Eaton and James Douglas, Negroes.

Miss Bremner once resigned nad was prevailed upon to return. The school board voted 1/ to 1, the one being M-s. Thomas. Mrs. Thomas charges that Mrs. McCord called upon Mrs. Eaton with an ultimatum that her children must not attend the school with the white children. However, the Negro children did go to school.

Mrs. Thomas' Story.

"I was driving to the school," Mrs. Thomas said, "when I met the Negro children running away. They told me that two men swathed in white sheets had told them to get out and never come back. I took them back and demanded of Miss Bremner what she meant by such work. I suppose I slammed my whip around a little.

"When I left the school, I met Mrs. McCord and two men. We talked for a while and I told them what I thought of such un-American practices. The men jumped out of Mrs. McCord's car and took my whip from me and whipped me with it. I was rescued by some farm hands working nearby."

Mrs. Eaton told a reporter she had been to see the state's attorney, and that she would see that her children attend the Palos Park school, "if I have to sit on the school steps."

Mrs. McCord admitted she read to Mrs. Eaton a certain letter in which it was ordered that the Negro children should not attend the school.

No Rule Against Negroes.

"I received the letter through the mail," Mrs. McCord said, "and I suppose from the school board committee. I read it to Mrs. Eaton but I do not know where the letter is. But there is no rule against Negro children attending the school."

Although the school has been closed for the greater part of the last two weeks, it was announced last night it would reopen tomorrow with Miss Bremner in charge. She still declares she will not teach Negro children. An investigation was made to determine who were the two "Ku Klux Klan" personages, but no identification could be made.

Mrs. Thomas denies she struck Miss Bremner, but alleges the trouble is the result of Mrs. McCord's ambition to "run the town."

Rosie Gibalda Acquitted of Slaying Her Own Babe

Rosie Gibalda, who lived in a rooming house at 1240 West Huron street, was acquitted yesterday by a jury before Judge Kickham Scanlan on a charge of murdering her newborn boy. It was charged by the state that on April 1, 1917, she murdered the boy, wraped it in a gingham apron, and placed it in a trunk.

Our Hudsons Are About All Gone

Number of Super-Sixes at present prices limited. Practically all makers have already increased prices.

We now see the last of the Hudson Super-Six cars we will be able to sell at present prices. The factory has given us definite allotments. On at least two models they have notified us that final shipments will be completed within two weeks.

When those cars are sold it means that the last Hudson Super-Six to be had at the present base price of $1,650 for the seven-passenger phaeton has gone. Then a new price will become effective. That price will be based upon material costs that are much higher than were those of the present production.

As a single example of the greater cost of an automobile today as compared to the cost of a year ago, consider the item of iron. Its low price for the years of 1915-1917 was $12.27 a ton. Today it sells at $52.90 a ton. Iron is used in making the finest steels, the frame, the motor, the body, etc. Its use in a fine automobile constitutes a large item. You can get from this some idea of the tremendous need for automobile price increases.

Then when you think of the number of cars that have gone up in price in the last few months you get a further understanding of the great opportunity you have in buying a Hudson Super-Six now. More than fifty makers have advanced prices within the past two months. Cars which formerly sold at $1,200 and $1,300 now cost about as much as a Super-Six. There was no question as to which was the preferred car then, though because of the lower price many such cars were sold. Now that there is no price advantage, Hudson sales are at their highest. People realize more than ever before that a Hudson offers the greatest value on the market. They are taking advantage of the opportunity that the present market condition offers. You, too, can save as they are saving if you act promptly. We know how many cars we are to get, but we do not know how much longer we can accept orders at present prices.

Be guided by the experience of the past as it affects the Super-Six. Buy now. It is like buying any other staple on which you have positive knowledge that there is soon to be a price increase.

Surely there need be nothing said in this connection to persuade you to a Super-Six. It has already established its reputation on every speedway, in every endurance test, in the most difficult mountain climbs, in the most arduous road trips, and, most of all, in the minds of more than forty thousand users.

THE ANGELUS PLAYER PIANO

"The Angelus Player Piano offers the possibility of producing any desired shading in expression, dynamics, and color of tone."
FRITZ KREISLER.

"There are so many wonders in the Angelus that one can only speak of the ensemble effect—it is perfect. The Phrasing Lever is marvelous, almost beyond belief, in its control of the tempo; the Melodant brings out the melody exquisitely; while the touch and tone coloring are the height of artistry. It is incomparable."
ANNA PAVLOWA.

"My strongest impression of the Angelus is its perfect reflection of the personality of the performer. Through the Phrasing Lever, almost without conscious effort, you impart to the playing your own tempo nuances, while the Melodant automatically brings out the melody. I find the utmost freedom in giving to it just the degree of emphasis that I desire. It seems incredible that so much in the way of music as an art can be accomplished with so little effort."
EMMA TRENTINI.

THE endorsement of the ANGELUS by three artists of world-wide distinction—Vocalist, Violinist, Premier Danseuse—each one demanding from the instrument the highest artistic qualities of widely divergent character, and all finding them in the ANGELUS in the superlative degree, is conclusive proof of the supremacy of the ANGELUS as the world's artistic player.

The ANGELUS gives you command of the piano, enabling you to play with the skill and the freedom of personal interpretation of an accomplished pianist.

This is possible because of the patented devices and exclusive features of the ANGELUS which give a control of time and melody otherwise impossible.

We cordially invite you to play an ANGELUS playerpiano.

Bonds Are Sought.

Haywood still is held under bonds of $25,000, and the others on bonds equally heavy, according to their importance in the I. W. W. scheme of things. Attorney Christenson announced he would immediately set about obtaining sureties for the release of all those under arrest.

"The I. W. W. members are guiltless of unpatriotic actions," Christenson stated. "The organization was started ten years ago, for economic purposes. Its functions are no different now than they were in peace times. The I. W. W. is not a war or an anti-war organization. It is not a religious or an anti-religious organization. It is only concerned in the welfare of its members.

"The growing strength of the I.W.W. in certain industries of this country and the activity of its members to better their working conditions has earned the enmity of certain gigantic business interests, who have stopped at nothing in attempting to crush the I. W. W. organization."

Arrests in Chicago.

One of the latest Chicago arrests was that of Paul Pickett of Cleveland, O. He was arrested in the home of his mother, at 2736 Augusta street. He is said to have changed his habitation half a dozen times in the last week, in an endeavor to keep out of the way of federal agents.

Another surprising feature is said to have been disclosed by the federal investigation in the discovery that many wealthy and influential persons have been brought into sympathy with the I. W. W. Mr. Clyne was inclined to the belief that pressure has been brought to bear in many cases of this kind. It was said, however, that if evidence is found sufficiently strong there will be action taken against these influential persons seeking their prosecution on charges of accessory.

U. S. Officials Relieved.

Mr. Clyne declared government officials have felt a great sense of relief at the wholesale indictment and arrest of I. W. W. members. The feeling is said to have existed that a clarified situation would result with the discovery of positive evidence as to operations of a seditious nature. The government now is prepared to act swiftly.

Among the charges is that of the passage of a resolution in a Chicago conference months ago in which the anti-war program was laid down for the guidance of all members of the organization.

It is said that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn of New York is one of those indicted and yet at large. She is the author of a volume on sabotage which is said to have had a wide influence on members of the organization.

Flight of many members of the organization from Chicago and other cities in which there are considerable memberships followed the eruption of Friday, in which Haywood and his aids were taken. But this was expected and secret agents are now engaged in a wide roundup which is to continue until all are taken.

Relations with Germans.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 29.—Louis Parente and George Speed, Industrial Workers of the World officials, were arrested today by a deputy United States marshal on alleged evidence that the organization maintained illegal relations with German prisoners at Fort McDowell, near here. Speed is the secretary of the San Francisco branch of the organization. Parente is president of the Italian branch of the body.

Two Years for Sabotage.

Bemidji, Minn., Sept. 29.—Jess Dunning, ex-secretary of the I. W. W. local, convicted last night on a charge of sabotage, was sentenced to a maximum of two years in the penitentiary by Judge C. W. Stanton today. An appeal will be taken.

Harvard Student Held.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 29.—Roy S. Fanning of Chattanooga, Tenn., a member of the sophomore class of Harvard university, was arraigned before a federal commissioner here today on an indictment returned in Chicago charging conspiracy against the government. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $10,000 bail.

Ettore Gianini of Lawrence, arrested yesterday on a charge of conspiring against the operation of the draft law, also was arraigned today and pleaded not guilty. He was held in $10,000 bond.

Roundup in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 29.—Deputy United States marshals, under Marshal Joseph Howley, this afternoon began to round up I. W. W. leaders in the Pittsburgh district. All information concerning the names of the men arrested was withheld.

New York Leader Taken.

New York, Sept. 29.—Three of the most prominent I. W. W. leaders in the United States were arrested here tonight by agents of the department of justice, acting with Chicago warrants. They are Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, militant I. W. W. agitator; Carl Tresca, her associate, and Arturo Giovanetti.

John G. Baldazzi, member of the organization committee, also was taken.

The government agents ransacked the homes of these leaders, seizing truckloads of literature.

Haywood Kin Taken.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 29.—Charles McKinnon, brother-in-law of W. D. Haywood; Fred C. Riter, and H. A. Giltner, members of the Industrial Workers of the World, were arrested here today on federal indictments returned against them at Chicago.

PRO PATRIA

Girls of Minnesota Town, Gathering Fame, Return to Early Scenes to Aid Red Cross.

TWO little girls left Mankato, Minn., about fifteen years ago to carve out their fortunes in the great world. One of them already has made her mark in the world of music and is well known throughout the country and abroad. She is Florence Macbeth, a prima donna of the Chicago Opera company last year.

The other is Laura Kittredge Kennedy, for several years director of outside amusements at Ravinia Park, now secretary of the Illinois Highway Improvement association, and also engaged in charge of the sale of season tickets for this year's season of the Chicago opera.

Tuesday evening both of these young women will again be at Mankato in behalf of the Red Cross, Miss Macbeth to be the "headliner" in the most ambitious entertainment ever held in the little Minnesota city, and Miss Kennedy to act as business manager of it.

HOUSE LEADERS CHECK NEW ROW ON GERMAN PLOT

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Careful management by house leaders prevented the wrangle over the German "slush" fund, which yesterday resulted in a fight between Representative Heflin of Alabama and Representative Norton of North Dakota, from getting beyond a threatening stage today.

Sudden adjournment after repeated attempts by Representative Norton to obtain permission to address the house found both Norton and Heflin on the floor, with two undelivered speeches before them, anxiously awaiting an opportunity to renew verbal hostilities.

They may talk Monday, provided house leaders relax their vigilance, but at present plans are to prevent either man from taking the floor and permitting the proposed inquiry into Heflin's charges that "several members have acted suspiciously" to die a natural death.

Chairman Pou of the rules committee presented a letter from Secretary Lansing declaring the state department had no evidence indicating members of congress had any connection with Count von Bernstorff's $50,000 fund.

'Roberta' front-lace—perfect lines

at no cost in corset comfort

If you have worn a front-laced corset, and have been delighted with the ease it afforded, but dismayed at your ungraceful figure—the effect of high, square stomach and broad, lower back——and you therefore discarded the front-lace for the less comfortable but more presentable back-lace style—

—you will be interested to learn that the "Roberta" laced-in-front corset retains all the advantages of the back-lace, with none of its disadvantages.

Self-adjusting shield under the laces prevents bulge of flesh

The front is as graceful as the back. Freedom above the waist allows deep breathing. A variety of models for figures particularly difficult to corset. Prices, 3.50 to $12.

Most of This Year's Buyers of Detroit Electrics Formerly Drove Gas Cars

Consider this fact,

Most of those buying Detroit Electrics for the first time this year formerly owned gas cars.

That proves that gas car owners are changing over to the Detroit Electric.

But are Detroit Electric owners going back to gas cars? The fact is, they are not.

Because once having known the advantages of a Detroit Electric they remain Detroit Electric owners. No gas car could satisfy them.

But gas car owners—in greater and greater numbers—are coming to appreciate the superiorities of the Detroit Electric—its usable utility for the entire family's service, both Winter and Summer; its simplicity and ease of operation; its flexibility in crowded traffic; its conservative elegance; its low upkeep cost.

They see gasoline advancing in cost—72% in less than two years. But electricity does not advance.

They read interviews given out by federal officials which intimate the gasoline supply may be taken under government control.

But electricity for Detroit Electric power will not be threatened by extraordinary conditions such as we now confront.

We would like to talk to you further about the modern Detroit Electric. Come in and see the new models.

Is Your House the "Ice-Box" in your row?

In every community of homes there is one house colder than all the others.

When the north wind howls and the snow banks up against the windows—this "ice-box" home is uncomfortable in spite of all the coal used to heat it.

If your home is the "ice-box" of your group, "Dunhamize" your heating system.

A Dunham System of Heating, built around that little guardian of the coal-pile the Dunham Radiator Trap, gets every last bit of heat from the coal you burn. And it saves coal because it never lets the fire burn more than is necessary. It prevents overheating and underheating—maintaining a uniform temperature during the day, and at night keeping the temperature of the house between two predetermined levels.

A Dunhamized house cools off at bedtime and the temperature rises again at getting-up-time—all without anyone going to the cellar to regulate the dampers. You merely set the Dunham Thermostat (in your living room) as you would an alarm clock.

The Dunhamized home is absolutely free from the nuisance of gurgling, hammering, spurting, hissing radiators.

Learn more about the Dunham System of Heating, NOW. It will make your coal-pile last longer. Ask your architect.

Free Booklet. Property owners, tenants, real estate men, architects, heating contractors and builders should read our latest book, "Dunham Heating For The Home." It tells why. Write, phone or call.

The DUNHAM SYSTEM OF HEATING

The DUNHAM Radiator Trap

This device is one of the fundamentals of the Dunham Home Heating System. It is known the world over to heating engineers as the device that revolutionized Vacuum steam heating. Leading architects everywhere use it.

BASIS OF PARLEY TO AVERT LAKE STRIKE REACHED

Walkout of 10,000 Men May Be Decided Today.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Developments of the next twenty-four hours will decide whether the threatened strike of 10,000 great lakes seamen, scheduled to go into effect Monday, can be averted through government mediation.

A form of agreement arranged after conferences between representatives of both sides with Raymond B. Stevens, vice chairman of the United States shipping board, was drawn up tonight, but still lacks full approval.

Decision will be reached tomorrow morning. If the agreement is accepted Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Seamen's union, and Thomas Conway, secretary of the Marine Firemen's union, will send out telegraphic orders postponing the strike.

Official Is Hopeful.

Vice Chairman Stevens was confident tonight the strike would be averted, or at least postponed pending investigation. The tentative agreement provides that a new wage schedule shall be drawn up by the shipping board that will be binding on both sides; that the discharge book provision of the welfare plan shall be modified if investigation by the shipping board shows the need of such modification; that the question of recognition of the union and the application to the great lakes of the so-called Atlantic agreement shall be taken up for further consideration after investigation by the shipping boards.

Only two points of real disagreement remained after the close of the second day's conferences tonight, and both revolved around one point, recognition of the union.

The representatives of the Lake Carriers' association surprised shipping board officials by their antagonism to the seamen's union, as the ship owners refused to treat with the men. Ship owners were adamant in refusing to recognize the union.

Raise Seems Certain.

The present rate of wages to seamen on the lakes is $72 a month. The ship owners have agreed to pay $35 a month, while the men demand $95. There were indications tonight they would receive the wage figure they ask, and it was believed that winning this $23 a month increase in wages would compensate the men for failure to gain immediately their other demands.

U. S. TAKES ACTION.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Attempting to call a strike of the great lakes branch of the Marine Firemen and Tenders' union, Ivan Hunter, business agent, on Saturday engaged a launch and began to notify all the members of the union on freighters passing this port to report at headquarters. He was stopped by a government patrol boat.

Hunter had prepared a number of large placards with the inscriptions: "Strike declared for Oct. 1." and "Report to Headquarters on Oct. 1," painted in colors and easily read at a distance. He had a megaphone with which he shouted further orders.

But government officials heard of the scheme and dispatched a fast boat, which forced the launch with the union official aboard to tie up at a dock.

MRS. J. K. SEBREE WINS FIGHT FOR WIDOW'S DOWER

In a decision handed down yesterday by Judge Henry Horner in the Probate court he finds that Mrs. Josephine Bennett Sebree is the widow of the late James K. Sebree, former owner of the Saratoga hotel, and is entitled to her dower under the statute in lieu of the provisons made for her in the will of Mr. Sebree.

In the will she was bequeathed $25,000. The estate is valued at between $250,000 and $300,000.

Mr. Sebree died Nov. 17, 1913. For thirteen years Mrs. Josephine Bennett, as she was generally known, was his housekeeper at the Sebree home, 1130 South Michigan avenue.

Shortly after Mr. Sebree's death Mrs. Bennett was committed to the state hospital at Kankakee, from which institution she was discharged the following September. It was contended by Mrs. Bennett and her counsel, George H. White, that she was "railroaded" there.

She claimed to have been the common law wife of Mr. Sebree, but her claims were called "hallucinations" by the children of Mr. Sebree, Miss Mabelle and Roy Sebree.

Boy Loses Leg Under Train.

Albert Opendick, 13 years old, 2423 West Forty-sixth street, was found unconscious yesterday on the track of the B. & O. railroad at Forty-sixth and Leavitt streets with his left leg cut off above the knee.

Even the Pennies Count When the Men Over There Need Smokes.

PROCEEDS of two subscription lists were added yesterday to THE TRIBUNE's tobacco fund. A penny collection was taken up among employés of the telephone engineering department of the Western Electric company and the total amounted to $10.05.

Another list was circulated among employés of the display advertising department of THE TRIBUNE and fifteen signed for $1 each.

Yesterday's contributions to "Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund" were as follows:

Baby Plague Checked After Ward Celanup

The health commissioner was pleased yesterday over the showing his department has made toward preventing a general spread of infantile paralysis cases.

The commissioner pointed to the Seventeenth ward situation as an example of the effectiveness of the department's precautionary measures. On the commissioner's recommendations this ward was given a thorough cleaning.

Eight new cases of the disease were reported during the day.

NIGHT MEETING FAILS TO SETTLE GARY RAIL STRIKE

Original Demands Toned Down, but Offer Is Declined.

Striking switchmen on the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad failed to come to terms last night with S. M. Rogers, vice president of the road, in another conference held in his office.

As the result, the breach between the men and the road became wider than ever, and the steel mills in Gary and South Chicago, which depend on the road for fuel to operate their furnaces, now face the prospect of a serious curtailment of their production, which is largely the manufacture of basic war supplies.

Talk of Compromise.

The strike committee of ten which met Mr. Rogers at first held out for their original demands, but subsequently, it was stated, talked of a compromise in the matter of wages.

"I told them that the company stood pat on its answer yesterday—that they return to work and present their demands in the regular way," said Mr. Rogers. "They said they would report my answer to meetings of the men at South Chicago and Gary, and would let me know tomorrow morning how this was received."

Determination to remain on strike was the decision of the men at the Gary and South Chicago meetings. Bitter speeches denouncing the railroad for not boosting the switchmen's wages, and comparing their stipends to the increased wages of Steel corporation employés, were made.

Mills Affected.

In the meantime, it was reported that the situation with regard to operation of the steel mills had grown more serious. It was stated by company employés, according to these reports, that many of the mills were running at about 50 per cent under normal capacity, and that some might be forced to close should the strike continue.

Reports were also current that the United States government was keeping a keen eye on the situation, and that if it appeared that government contracts would be interfered with, drastic action would be taken. There were also unconfirmed rumors that men might be employed to take the strikers' places, under government protection.

Six Men Killed.

Because of the shutting down of one of the furnaces in the Gary mills eight men were sent into it to remove clogs. While they were at work a gas valve was either broken or sprung a leak. Two of the men managed to crawl out through a small opening that served as the only means of egress.

The remaining six could not crawl out in time, and before help could reach them they were dead from asphyxiation. The dead included Emory Padgett, a night superintendent.

During the day the strikers held mass-meetings and defied the order of Thomas R. Dodge, acting president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, to which many of them belong, that they return to work and let the union present their grievances through regular union channels. They also disparaged such advice from officials of the Switchmen's Union of North America, in which the remainder hold membership.

"They've run wild with the bit in their teeth," one regularly elected union official is reported as saying. "I guess they'll have to learn a lesson that unorganized, mob rule strikes without the sanction of bona fide unions won't get them very far."

COAL OPERATORS AND MEN BREAK AT PAY PARLEY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—A wide division developed today between coal operators and miners of the central competitive field, in conference here, discussing a proposed readjustment of wage scales.

The miners demanded an immediate tentative increase in wages awaiting the fuel administration's decision as to an upward revision of coal prices, but the operators refused their request and proposed a ten days' suspension of negotiations.

The conference finally adjourned until Monday.

Dr. H. A. Garfield, the fuel administrator, will take up the proposed coal price revisions next week as soon as the operators have furnished complete cost of production figures. Today he gave his attention to the Kentucky-Tennessee situation, where strikes are halting production.

Rail Girls on Strike.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The girl oilers, greasers, and engine wipers employed in the local yards of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad have gone on strike. According to the girls, of whom there are fifty, the company made overtures in the shape of a new wage plan, but it calls for piece work. The girls say they never could average a fair wage under the plan.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29.—More than 10,000 of 15,000 union steel metal workers quit work in ninety-eight shipyards and contract shops here today. The men, knowing that two United States adjustment boards, one headed by Secretary of Labor Wilson, are soon to arrive in Seattle, feel, it was said, that the strike will be ended speedily. Three of the largest steel yards in the United States are among those tied up. Yards and shops which have signed the metal workers' scale employ 5,000 men, and these will continue at work.

Few Return to Work.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 29.—But a handful of men responded when the Union Iron works and other structural concerns here opened for business today, following official announcements last night that the strike of 30,000 iron workers and other mechanics in the San Francisco Bay region was at an end. The Iron Trades council said official notice to definitely end the strike did not reach them in time.

Schuettler Says Coppesses Do Best Work on the Force

Chief of Police Schuettler doesn't agree with the September grand jury that the work of policewomen should be limited to cases of women and children.

"Why," said the chief, "the policewomen have even cleaned up murder cases. We have an exceptionally competent lot of policewomen, and they have done the best work of the police department."

The jury recommended that the policewomen's activities be confined to cases involving their sex.

RECOGNITION BY BAKER ELATES NAVY LEAGUE

Officials of the Navy league now in Chicago are congratulating themselves on the fact that although one member of the United States cabinet has not wanted their services, another member has openly come out and asked for them. William H. Stayton, general secretary of the league, said yesterday:

"Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, intimated that the work the Navy league has done is wonderful, and expressed a wish that the organization would do as much for the army. The Navy league wrote him and told him that if he would make a formal request to that effect the Navy league would be glad to consider it favorably. Mr. Baker then asked that the same outfits that are furnished to the navy be sent to the men in the trenches. That is now being done. I am glad that the secretary of war appreciates what the league has done, although the head of the navy department does not."

Referring to the request of Secretary Daniels to Henry P. Davison of the Red Cross for the establishment of naval auxiliaries, it was announced that the question had been taken up by the Chicago section and it had been decided that if any individual member of the league here wanted to join such an auxiliary there would be no objection, but the league as a whole would not go into it.

MOTHER'S CHEER MAKES TOMMY FORGET THE WAR

Paper Woman's Smile and Good Wishes Put Him in Good Humor.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Censored and Approved by the British Censor.]

(Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.)

WITH BRITISH ARMIES IN FIELD, Sept. 29.—She wears the steel helmet of the British Tommy at just the angle that permits a few frills of her gray hair to show and frame her motherly face. Slung over one shoulder is her pack, containing an ever ready gas mask. She stands in front of a small bombproof shelter and sells newspapers to the soldiers. Her post is on the bridge over the railroad tracks at (——).

"Mother," the Tommies call her reverently as they ride by on horses dragging ponderous impedimenta of war. Seldom they forget to remove their cigarets and touch the brims of their tin hats in salutation to this woman who has stood there so long watching them come and go. The storm of hate and the tides of battle that have swept about her for over three years now have only softened her smile and put just the slightest tinge of weariness into her eyes.

Refuses to Surrender.

Through air raid and bombardment, gas attack, and fire since the British occupation of the town she has been at her post in the center of this indescribable ruin. From one end of the structure one sees the gaping ruins of the center of the city. To the right, some distance down the railroad tracks, between which grass and weeds are growing, stands an enormous steel hull of (———) station, still holding its metal outlines, but with every roof sheet and ornamental ridge riddled from shell fire. It stands silent and ominous, a black tattered hulk amid a straddling mess of rust brown rails.

In the opposite directon the repair work has started among the wrecked structures. There is life and movement betokening the inevitable advance of reconstruction. From the other end of the bridge the way leads through a street banked high with wreckage to the shell pitted borders of the town, where the ground is trenched and scarred and dilapidated dugouts give it an appearance of a squatter's colony, cleared of its inhabitants by some scourge. Beyond this the spiny backbone of the bridge, jagged with splintered tree stumps and tottering towers of ruined walls, rests against the skyline like the edge of an inverted saw.

Day and night under the thunder of the guns this has been "Mother's" dismal panorama. She observes the war every day from her own little hill top and it is doubtful whether her senses can be much further impressed by the historical events in Russia, the overthrow in Greece, the peace overtures from Rome, or the preparations for war in America, all of which she helps to herald in the papers she sells.

Her stock consists of Paris and London dailies, a few periodicals, and some soldier magazines. Her shop is a reinforced sentry box, topped with double layers of sandbags.

There is almost an endless stream of traffic over the bridge. "Mother" sees the boys marching by in the daytime. At 8 she hears the throbs of the motor ambulances carrying some of the boys back. The story is that "Mother" knows what to do with the unsold copies of her papers, and the wounded who are brought back that way tell the story.

There are other stories about her. One recounts how she said good-by one day to her husband and two sons and saw them march away in their scarlet pantaloons, members of the same company that later suffered heavily on the slopes of La Fleurette, where the French piled up its slain.

Guns were being moved up the day I stood on the bridge. Only one piece at a time with its complement of six horses made its way across the span. Midway the bridge an artilleryman, steel hatted and belted, was bouncing on the springless seat of a gun carriage. Seeing the news vendor, he removed the cigaret from his mouth and called above the rumble of the heavy wheels:

Wants Copy of "Brighty."

"I say, 'Mother,' have you got a copy of 'Brighty'?"

"Oui, mon fils," "Mother" replied, selecting a desired pamphlet from the rack and walking beside the moving gun carriage as she handed it over the wheel.

"Here's one franc, 'Mother.' Keep the change and slip us a copy of La Vie Parisienne."

"Je ne l'ai pas; ce n'est pas bon," replied "Mother," with a chiding shake of her finger.

This brought a laugh from the gunner's mounted mates, who understand "Mother's" "pas bon" as a censure for their comrade's preference of illustrated nudities. He joined the laugh and shouted back:

"All right, 'Mother'; keep the change anyway."

Wishes Them Good Luck.

"Merci beaucoup, mon fils. Au revoir et bonne chance." "Mother" smiled back to him as the gun carriage bounced off the bridge onto the approach and rattled away with its load of carefree tenders on the way to the front.

As the gun train passed and the traffic ceased the old gray haired woman deposited her papers in a rack and filled a tin cup with water from the jug. Then I noticed that the tiny blades of grass were sprouting from the sandbags on the roof of her bombproof as if nature was endeavoring to efface the evidence of her children's misdeeds. And among the sandbags just over the door was a small potted geranium. "Mother" was watering it from the drinking glass when we left.

AID RAILROADS

Co-operation of Public Helps Lines Increase Movement of Supplies.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The railroads war board stated today that the traveling public in general and shippers in particular "are giving the finest kind of coöperation to the railroads in handling the increased traffic that the war has produced." What this coöperation means may be gleaned from these facts, the board says:

Since May 1 the railroads, aided by the loyalty and understanding of the public, have been able to reduce their passenger service by approximately 25,000,000 miles. This has released thousands of train crews and locomotives for use in the freight service and cleared thousands of miles of track, thereby facilitating the movement of coal, food products, and supplies.

In addition, the shippers, big and small, have rallied so splendidly to the slogan, "Make one car do the work of two," that a saving of close to 500,000 freight cars has been accomplished. This has enabled the railroads to move approximately 25 per cent more freight since war was declared than during the same period last year.

Coal, which has been loaded beyond capacity on most lines since the beginning of the war, is also moving freely now, although labor trouble in some parts of the country is tending to counteract the efforts of the railroads to meet the abnormal demand for fuel.

NOTED BRITISH ARMY SURGEON COMING HERE

Sir Berkeley Moynihan of Leeds, England, senior consulting surgeon to the royal army medical corps of the British army and inspector of army hospitals in France, an authority on abdominal surgery, is coming to Chicago to take a leading part in the war session of the Clinical Congress of Surgeons, to be held here during the week of Oct. 22.

Three thousand or more of the leading surgeons from all parts of North America will be present, together with a considerable delegation of South American surgeons.

Surgeon General Gorgas of the army, Surgeon General Braisted of the navy, Surgeons General Blue of the public health service, Dr. Alexic Carrel of the Rockefeller institute, Dr. George W. Criles of Cleveland, chief surgeon of an American base hospital, will take part.

Many smaller subscriptions also have been received.

Officially the campaign for $100,000 for books for the soldiers and sailors will close today. The indications are, however, that the full sum has not yet been reached, and the campaign will continue until the full sum is secured.

F. H. Rawson, chairman of the war library fund committee, made an appeal yesterday for a better response from citizens who can well afford to give.

"The returns show one outstanding fact in the campaign," the statement reads, "and that is the large number of subscriptions sent in by people of small means. If the street sweepers of Chicago, who earn barely enough to keep body and soul together, feel the urgency of this cause to the extent of subscribing more than $700, men who can easily subscribe larger amounts ought to feel uncomfortable until their checks have been sent in.

Chicago's Share Not Raised.

"As many subscription lists are still out and will not be turned in until Wednesday or Thursday, the campaign will continue actively throughout the week. Chicago's share has not been raised. May I urgently solicit the people of Chicago to send in promptly their subscription to this most worthy cause?"

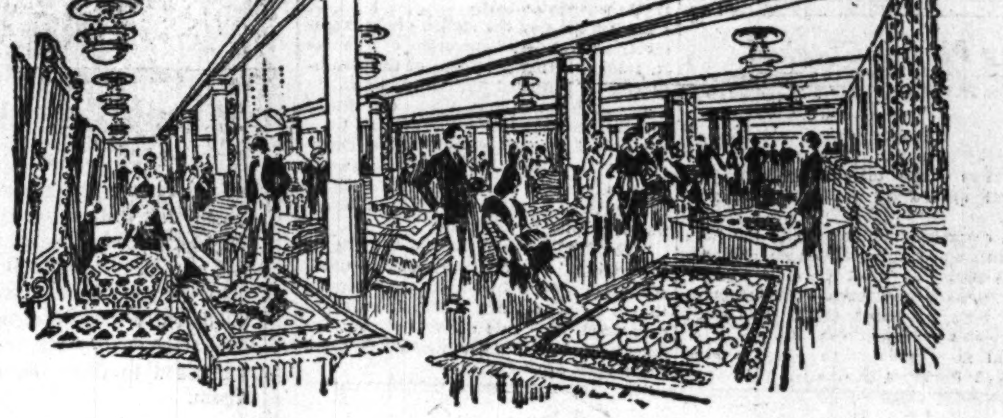
Sale of Fine Imported Chinese Rugs at 50c and 60c on the $1.00



If you have had a longing for a beautiful Chinese Oriental Rug—and the prices formerly seemed too high—you can satisfy your desire at the lowest prices ever quoted on these exquisite floor coverings.

We have just secured a remarkable price reduction on a splendid collection of REAL CHINESE RUGS and, as is our custom, we will give our customers the benefit of the purchase.

The collection includes all sizes and colorings. These beautiful Chinese Rugs will harmonize with modern or period furnishings; they are suitable for Parlors, Reception Rooms, Living Rooms, Dining Rooms, Music Rooms, Bedrooms, Halls, etc.

The Chinese have been famous rug makers for many centuries. There is a charm and beauty about Chinese Rugs, with their quaint and artistic designs, symbols and exquisite borders, woven in delightful color tone effects that appeals to the connoisseur and those that delight in charming home furnishings. The pieces in the sale include blues, greens, pinks, ivorys, tans, rose, cloth of gold and browns, in beautiful color blendings, that are wonderful and very attractive.

DAIRYMEN PLAN TO QUIT BUSINESS IF PROSECUTED

National Organization to Hold a Meeting to Plan Battle.

As a result of impending prosecution of milk producers in the Chicago district it was announced yesterday that a convention of the National Milk Producers' federation is to take place in Washington. It will meet Oct. 10.

One of the purposes of this convention will be to make an effort to change the popular idea that it is the producers who are to blame for the high prices. An effort will be made at this convention to induce Herbert C. Hoover, federal food administrator, to make public the finding of his committee which has been inquiring into the cost of producing milk. This report, it is said, is being held up because the finding of the committee that is looking into the cost of distribution is not ready.

Would Inform Public.

It is the present plan to give out both reports at the same time. The producers say that they want the public to know the facts regarding dairying costs.

The call for the convention will cover the entire country east of the Rocky mountains. The dairymen plan to protest against the prosecution, or "persecution" as they call it, of the men who are protecting their industry.

"If the people of Chicago do not want our milk at the price we have made for October, $3.42 per hundred," said C. H. Potter, chairman of the milk board of the Milk Producers' association, "then we will go out of the business. We would rather give up dairying than to go on at a loss. We have been operating at a loss for some time and we do not intend to do it any longer.

Claim $3,000,000 Loss.

"I estimate that the farmers in the district near Chicago have lost $3,000,000 during the last year by feeding their products to the cows and marketing the yield of their farms as milk. They could have marketed their grain and stock in a way that would have netted them more than $3,000,000 above what they have received.

"My meaning is expressed better when I say that every dairyman in the Chicago district is in debt. We can go out of the dairy business, even if we send the cows to the stockyards, and not lose money. This could never be done before."

Prosecution Conference.

Robert W. Childs, special assistant attorney general in charge of the investigation of alleged milk trust activities, is to confer with Attorney General Gregory in Washington tomorrow with reference to federal action against the milk producers. He decided to leave Chicago for the capital yesterday. Mr. Childs indicated that the investigation is proceeding in Wisconsin, Indiana, and Illinois, in which states the milk producers have been warned of the consequences if they persist in violating the anti-trust act.

State's Attorney Hoyne said he was concerned only with the trading in milk within the state and his investigation will be independent of any federal action.

The records of the Milk Producers' association, seized by Hoyne, have been turned over to the federal authorities. All of these records now in the hands of District Attorney Clyne and his assistants, Mr. Childs and E. B. Perrigo, were investigated yesterday.

BOASTS OF HER CABARETING

And Now Harry Neuman Has Filed a $25,000 Damage Suit Against Robert Magill for Alienating Mrs. Neuman's Affections.

Mrs. Julia Neuman and Marguerite Neuman

Harry Neuman, owner of a motor livery at 3166 North Clark street, through his attorney, James W. Burke, filed a $25,000 damage suit in the Circuit court yesterday against Robert Magill, president of the Bismack Printing works, 214 North Clark street.

According to statements made by Attorney Burke, the action will accuse Magill of alienating the affections of Mrs. Julia Neuman, who filed suit for a divorce from her husband on Sept. 19, charging him with cruelty.

Mr. and Mrs. Neuman were married Dec. 1, 1911, and lived together until Sept. 16. They have a two year old daughter, Marguerite.

The day after Mrs. Neuman filed her divorce suit she petitioned the courts for an injunction restraining her husband from attempting to see her daughter. It was granted.

Yesterday a petition to have the injunction set aside was drawn by Attorney Burke.

"During the summer of 1916 Mrs. Neuman commenced to stay way from her home nights;" reads the petition. "She often came home and boasted that she had been having gay times with a man named Mack. Because of his wealth, of the cabaret parties he gave her, and because of the motor rides, raised the head of Mrs. Neuman so that she was no longer contented and satisfied with the routine of the housewife."

Mr. Magill is married and lives at 4220 Oakenwald avenue. Efforts to communicate with him failed last night.

Arthur Roche, Author, Weds Miss Petit, Singer

TEACHERS' UNION AGAINST A FLAT 10 PER CENT RAISE

The Chicago Teachers' federation is not in favor of the Principals' club plan of a 10 per cent raise for every teacher and principal in the system. It believes, according to Miss Margaret Haley, its business representative, that the grammar school teachers have the first claim on a salary increase because of a salary schedule, adopted in 1914, which, if put into operation, would have raised the teachers last year.

At the time of the big school deficit the schedule was suspended by the board and has never been put into operation again. The committee to investigate finances has the matter of the schedule under consideration, but has taken no action. At one of the early meetings of the new board Dr. Sadie B. Adair submitted a resolution asking that the committee investigate that situation with a view to restoring the suspended schedule.

The teachers assert that by the suspension of the schedule they are losing $120 during the present year.

"It is the feeling of the grade school teachers that the obligation to them is like a first mortgage," said Miss Haley, "and should be paid off by the board before it takes up any of the second mortgages."

GROCERY PRICES HERE SHOW WIDE RANGE OF PROFIT

Fruits and Vegetables Vary from Nothing to 200 Per Cent.

On the basis of government reports on South Water street prices, retail grocers were selling fruits and vegetables last night all the way from under the wholesale figure to nearly 200 per cent above it.

Potatoes—Wholesale, $1.10@$1.30 bu.; retail, $1.45@1.80.
Sweet potatoes—Wholesale, 3¾@4c lb.; retail, 4@8c.
Green corn—Wholesale—10@16c doz.; retail, 25@35c.
Onions—Wholesale, 2½@4c lb.; retail, 4@5c.
Apples, table—Wholesale, 3@5c lb.; retail, 10c.
Apples, cooking—Wholesale, 2@4c lb; retails, 5c.
Lettuce—Wholesale, 6@13½c head; retail, 15c.
Tomatoes—Wholesale, 2¾@4½c lb.; retail, 5@12½c.
Spinach—Wholesale, 25@30c peck; retail, 29@40c.
Oranges, medium size—Wholesale, 20@30 doz.; retail, 29@50c.
Cabbage—Wholesale, 1½@2c lb.; retail, 2@5c.
Cantaloupes—Wholesale, 2@7c each; retail, 5@12c.

Wilson Avenue High.

In one south side store carrots were quoted at 1 cent a bunch. The South Water street price was 1½ to 2 cents a bunch. In nearly every store sweet corn was quoted at a price 100 per cent above the wholesale. Practically all of the stores reached charged 30 cents for a dozen ears, "unsight and unseen." When the corn was selected the price was 35 cents.

Prices appeared to be highest in the Wilson avenue district. One grocer there quoted potatoes at 45 cents a peck and others at 40 cents. In other parts of the city potatoes were sold as low as 37 cents a peck.

"Although some fruits and vegetables are higher than they were a month ago," said Sol Westerfeld, vice president of the National Retail Grocers' association and former president of the Chicago association, "in most cases prices are closer to normal than they have been for many months. The grocer rarely makes the full amount of his overhead expense on the sale of fruits and vegetables. It costs a grocer from 17½ to 20 per cent of his sales to do business."

Reply to J. Ogden Armour.

Oscar B. McGlasson, former president of the National Wholesale Grocers' association and secretary of McNeil & Higgins, issued a statement in which he charged J. Ogden Armour with an attempt to stifle competition by advocating a limited number of retail grocers.

"It is true that he does things on a big scale," the statement reads, "and when he goes into the field of competition with the retail grocers of the country he naturally wants less numbers. If there are too many retail grocers in a certain area competition will eliminate those not necessary."

WOMEN PLAN TO STIR PATRIOTISM IN ALL SCHOOLS

Supt. Shoop Gives Permit for Series of Meetings.

Supt. Shoop of the public schools has given permission to the ward organization of the woman's committee, Council of National Defense, to hold patriotic meetings in every school in the city during October. These are to start today.

There will be three fifteen minute speeches at each meeting—one a patriotic talk, the second one on conservation, and the third on registration. The committee in charge is districting the city so that twelve meetings may be carried on at the same time every school day in October. The committee is composed of Miss Elizabeth Allen, Mrs. Roy Rickey, Mrs. Robert P. Bates, Mrs. Caroline Hill, and Miss Amelia Sears. Miss Mary F. Willard is chairman.

Walter D. Moody, Jane Eddington of THE TRIBUNE, and Mrs. John C. Bley are some of the speakers. The first week's schedule follows:

WHY BUYERS OF ENCLOSED CARS NOW PREFER THE FRANKLIN
THESE are days when everyone wishes to be more self-reliant—when the young men of the family or the help on the place, are at the Government call for War or for Industry. It is the greatest of times for a self-contained car that any member of the family can drive and use.
Most people think of an Enclosed Car as something formidable—heavy, hard to handle, complicated, expensive, and requiring a mechanician—too much car for these self-reliant times. And this has been so, concerning the cars they knew.
It was the Franklin that put the new type of Enclosed Car on the map and inaugurated—because it made it possible—the Vogue of the enclosed Car for all uses.
The Franklin Enclosed Car is light, flexible, resilient, easy-rolling—with the economies and advantages of all the Franklin Open Models.
It can be driven as freely over all roads and in all weathers, and is so easy to handle that it can be driven all day without fatigue.
Of all the fine enclosed cars, the Franklin is the most resilient, the most responsive, the easiest on tires.
Franklin owners' personal reports, over a five-year period, give the Franklin an average of 10,203 miles to the set of tires.
Franklin's gasoline economy is a factor of the greatest importance. On July 13th, this year, 179 Franklin Open Cars in all parts of the United States averaged the remarkable mileage of 40.3 miles to the single gallon of gasoline.
Real saving today is in the upkeep of a car, and we can give you facts and figures, the actual Thrift records of Franklin owners everywhere—the most cheerful and encouraging news to anyone about to buy a car.

DUAL POWER
Motor Cars
Until You Have Actually Driven This Remarkable Car
YOUR idea of high grade motor cars has always been confused with noisy transmission gears, complicated gear shifting motions, bothersome clutch and brake details, spark lever manipulations and throttle controls—for these all have been a part of motor car driving.
Once you step into a Woods Dual Power Car, take your seat behind the steering wheel and start away, all this nerve racking, body fatiguing driving effort is gone.
For here is a car—big, luxurious, with speed and power, unlimited usefulness—entirely without transmission gears or levers, without spark control, without a clutch pedal that must work with the gears—that you start, accelerate, retard, stop, without moving your body from its comfortable position in the seat.
In it the combined forces of gasoline and electricity give you perfect control with a simple rocking motion of your foot on a pedal—instinctive as walking, and safe for any driver.
Driving is made a comfort as enjoyable as sitting in your favorite chair—refreshing, restful, exhilarating and free from physical effort or mental fear.
A ride through traffic, or over the road, will show you such new possibilities in motor car operation that Woods Dual Power Cars will instantly revise all previous conceptions of what real automobile driving can be. We will place a Woods Dual Power Car at your disposal upon request.

WHAT'S THE USE OF LOVE WHEN 'LOOT' IS A 'BACH'

Mere Private in 149th Is Refused a Permit to Wed.

BY RICHARD C. BURRITT.

Camp Mills. N. Y., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—This is a story about a "woman hater," a silver tongued buck private, and a raven haired beauty pledged to become the buck's bride. Just now the "woman hater" seems to have put a temporary crimp in a military wedding, but love will surely find a way.

The "woman hater"—his own language is an admission of the fact that he abhors wedlock—is Lieut. Robert A. N. Baltz of the supply company of the One Hundredth and Forty-ninth field artillery, formerly the First Illinois.

The silver tongued buck is Private Thomas R. Clark, 22 year old son of John B. Clark, proprietor of several cigar stores in Chicago and whose home is at 607 South Marshfield avenue. The raven haired beauty is Miss Clara Baldwin of Hempstead, Long Island, a quaint little town not far from Camp Mills, home of the rainbow division.

Meets Girl at Church.

A fortnight ago Private Clark was asked to give an address at the Methodist church where Miss Baldwin is the Sunday school teacher. Private Clark spoke on "Courage." Miss Baldwin was an eager listener in the front row. They were introduced and Private Clark started a siege of her affections, which he won within a week.

When Miss Baldwin consented to be his bride Private Clark, in the absence of Capt. Harry Johnson, commander of the supply company, sought permission to marry from Lieut. Baltz. Lieut. Baltz refused. Clark begged, but Baltz remained adamant.

Interviewers demanded of Baltz why he sought to block the wedding. Baltz gave a reply typical of one who chooses men alone as his companions—he is a bachelor and a bit crusty. But he admitted that he could not prevent Tommy from marrying. Tommy doesn't know this yet and the final outcome is awaited eagerly by his comrades.

Good Times Come Fast.

It's beginning to rain entertainment out here. After the big blowout for the artillery brigade last night, Reilly's men today took part in another for men throughout the division. The people of Forest Hills were hosts. Most of the guests were troops from Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Texas, California, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Ohio.

Special trains were run to Forest Hills. Townspeople escorted the soldiers through the main streets to the square, where there were concerts and motion picture shows. Hundreds of bucks were lassoed by pretty girls and their mothers and taken into private homes where they dined. The women took the names of their guests and their mothers' names and will write to the latter to tell western women that they tried to give the boys a good time.

OAK PARK BRIDES

Two Weddings Took Place in the Western Suburb Last Night; Both Were Followed by Receptions.

THE wedding of Miss Regina Dungan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dungan of 518 Bellefort avenue, Oak Park, to O. W. Williams, son of Judge and Mrs. W. B. Williams of Napier, Mich., took place last evening at St. Edmund's church, the Rev. Father J. J. Code officiating. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The wedding of Miss Alice Dick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dick of 522 Linden avenue, and Harry C. Webster, both of Oak Park, took place last night at the residence of the bride's parents. The Rev. William E. Barton officiated. There was a reception to over 200 guests at the Dick home.

The wedding of Miss Eva Lillian McElveen, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William T. McElveen, Chicago avenue and Church street, Evanston, to Leslie Brown Krumsick of Edgewater, took place yesterday afternoon in the First Congregational church of Evanston, of which the bride's father is pastor.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

FRIDAY'S issue, in an item about Jay Lee Nysewander's filing a $25,000 suit for damages against Harry H. and Emily Reynolds, stated that an effort to talk with Roman G. Lewis, attorney for the plaintiff, was ineffectual because the phone-operator reported that Mr. Lewis' telephone had been taken out.

Mr. Lewis asks that THE TRIBUNE explain that the operator's report had to do not with his office-phone, but with that in his former residence, which is still carried in the directory as occupied by him. He fears that persons desiring to consult with him by telephone may be inconvenienced through believing that his office-phone was removed.

The reporter sought to reach Mr. Lewis by the phone listed as of his residence.

Yesterday's issue told that an unidentified man was killed on Friday night when he fell into a sewer at Van Buren and Canal streets.

Philip J. Collins, an employé of the Bureau of Sewers, says that the raising of the street-level at that point makes impossible such an accident. He adds that the man fell from a plank into a ditch containing at least sixteen inches of water.

LIQUOR DEALERS ARE NOTIFIED TO TAKE INVENTORY

A circular letter notifying all liquor dealers that they must make an inventory of their stock was sent out yesterday by Julius F. Smietanka, collector of internal revenue for the First district of Illinois.

"The notice was sent out in anticipation of the passage of the new bill to provide revenue to defray war expenses, and for other purposes," said Mr. Smietanka last night. "As I understand it, the bill has been agreed to in its entirety by the conferees in congress and it is likely to be passed on Monday or Tuesday."

NATIONAL GUARD UNITS MAY LOSE STATE IDENTITY

Consolidations Planned to Bring Regiments to War Strength.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Scores of national guard regiments face the possibility of losing their state identity through the operation of a consolidation plan the war department is preparing to enforce as a means of bringing the guard up to war strength of 3,600 odd men to a regiment.

Plans have been made for the consolidation of some regiments within a state and in some instances, the consolidation of troops of two or more states to bring the guard regiments to full strength.

This plan will be followed in every case where a regiment is so far below strength that it could not be built up with drafted men without giving it too large a proportion of recruits.

The national guard is scheduled to furnish the next big expeditionary force to go to France. Because it is composed largely of men who have seen service, two of the sixteen divisions already have been ordered to France.

Guard Units to War Strength.

Every effort will be made to hasten the reorganization of the remaining regiments so that they may be sent across to finish their training on the other side. To fill up all the organizations to war strength by adding drafted men, staff officials declare, would be to give too great a preponderance of untrained men and thereby delay the organization of effective expeditionary forces.

Drafted men will be assigned to the national guard in sufficient number to bring all regiments up to war strength. But first there will be a consolidation of regiments to afford a force immediately available for overseas service, and the organizations to which drafted men are assigned will not see service on the other side until later.

Missouri Governor Complains.

The consolidation question was brought to a head today when Gov. Gardner of Missouri called at the war department to protest in person to Secretary Baker against the consolidation of Missouri and Kansas infantry regiments into one regiment and the breaking up of another Missouri regiment into machine gun companies and trench mortar batteries. Secretary Baker promised to give Gov. Gardner a decision on Monday. In deciding this Missouri case the secretary is expected to outline the general plan of consolidating regiments.

Plans to furnish the national guard divisions with more complete motor equipment were announced by the war department today when the depot quartermaster at Chicago was authorized to purchase 142 light truck chassis for distribution among national guard camps. With present equipment this will give twelve trucks to each camp. The trucks are to cost $750 each.

LIBERTY BONDS WILL WALK WITH 'GHOST' AT FORT

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—It is probable that the candidates at the second reserve officers training camp will subscribe for several hundred thousand dollars' worth of Liberty bonds. Next Monday the men will receive their first pay. Each man will be paid $100, representing his first month's wage in Uncle Sam's service, and as there are 4,000 men in camp this means that $400,000 will be available.

The majority of the men are independent of the government wage and it is expected that these will devote all of their first month's pay to the Liberty bonds.

There are a number of expert bond salesmen and employés of bond houses attending the camp, and these, under the leadership of the Rev. Myron E. Adams, director of morale, will form themselves into a salesmanship committee next week.

The first review of the 4,000 candidates, acting as a whole, was held this morning by Col. Ryan. Everything passed off without a hitch and Col. Ryan and Maj. Stacey, senior instructor, were much gratified.

Company B, First Ohio engineers, will leave soon for a southern training camp. A farewell dinner was given by the engineers today to officers and friends in the post. Col. Ryan attended.

Maj. Douglas McCaskey, cavalry, has been ordered to Washington. He will be succeeded as adjutant by Capt. Owen R. Meredith, infantry.

The candidates will be entertained tomorrow evening by the Paulist choristers, numbering 100 voices.

Mayor Mitchel, New York, O. K.'s Universal Training

In a telegram expressing his regret at being unable to attend the luncheon of Rotary club officials at the Hotel Sherman on Friday John Purroy Mitchel, mayor of New York, expressed his emphatic belief in universal training. The telegram was received by Howard H. Gross, president of the Universal Military Training league.

Mayor Mitchel wired:

WORLD'S SERIES TO CAMP LOGAN BY WIRELESS

Powerful Plant Installed by Chief Signal Officer.

Camp Logan, Houston, Tex., Sept. 29.—Everything from the results of the world's series, by innings and plays, to the latest official war news will be received in camp here with the aid of a giant wireless plant. The plant, part of the signal corps equipment, is in charge of Maj. Karl Truesdell, chief signal officer of the division. W. B. Greenwood, master signal electrician, installed the plant and will act as operator.

Maj. H. H. Tuttle, chief sanitary inspector of the camp, is about to make his monthly sanitary report.

"The dryness, despite the fact that there is an ocean of dust, makes for health," said Maj. Tuttle. "The percentage of sickness is lower than I have ever seen in any camp. Sleeping in the open air with the nights as cool as they are is another potent factor for health.

"A careful watch is being kept of all the places in town that cater to soldiers. All the restaurants, ice cream parlors, hotels, dairies, meat markets, and groceries are inspected by five men from my department at regular intervals. So far there have been a few restaurants closed on account of insanitary conditions. In cases where the conditions are such that closing is not warranted military policemen are stationed at the doors and no soldiers are permitted to enter."

The Best Buy in Chicago

We believe absolutely that the Allen at $895 is the best buy in town right now.

Only the shrewdest purchasing in the material market and the most careful manufacture has enabled the Allen Motor Company to maintain this price.

We know that it cannot last much longer. An increase is bound to come.

So the man who gets an Allen at $895 is getting a real bargain.

CHICAGO BOYS AT CAMP GRANT SEE BOXING BOUTS

Charlie White Referees Eight Scraps, Full of Punch.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Eight boxing bouts, with enough wild swinging and warm punching to make the crowd yell, but still enough clever sparring to keep the brute under cover, today gave the thousands of National army men in Camp Grant a first class Saturday afternoon's entertainment.

There were Kellys and Murphys in it, Olsons and Johnsons, and several other nationalities, for the contestants were selected from the One Hundred and Seventy-second infantry brigade—the "Chicago brigade." They included everything from heavyweights, a little slow on their feet, to dancing, snappy bantams who pecked at each other like game cocks.

Eighteen Foot Ring.

All the scenery was regulation. An eighteen foot ring, properly roped in, had been built about head high near the brigade headquarters. Charlie White, contestant for international ring honors, was the referee. One officer blew the whistle that, instead of a gong, sounded "time," and another with a megaphone did the announcing.

The bouts were short, two rounds being the limit until the men have become hardened, and some bouts were stopped in the first when the going became a little too rough. White told them to "toughen up a bit" and come back again next Saturday, when the milling may be allowed to go a little further, although the contests are to be safeguarded by an especially prepared set of rules intended to prevent injuries.

Trials of Inspection.

That is the way the afternoon was spent, but the morning was full of tribulations for the recent initiates in army life. It was the first inspection since the companies were organized.

To the civilian that may mean little. But the soldier knows that inspection meant that he was looked over from head to toe, that his clothing and equipment were examined, that his bunk and quarters, inside and out, were scrutinized.

"Those eight men who weren't shaved at inspection this morning," announced a captain to his company, "will scrub the barracks floor this afternoon."

That meant an afternoon, or part of it, spent at work while the rest of the company was watching the boxing or playing baseball, football, or some other game, or gone into Rockford to "see the town."

But for new men their officers said, the great majority of the selected men came through inspection swimmingly. Their hair was brushed, their buttons were all in place and fastened, their garrison shoes were polished, and their marching shoes clean, their aluminum mess kits shone like silver, their bunks and the personal belongings around them were neat, and the streets around the quarters are nearing perfect condition.

Present for First.

The First infantry was visited during the day by the war service committee of the Hamilton club, which announced that the organization will present olive drab knit wristlets to every one of the 3,600 men in the regiment. The present will be made at Houston early in November.

The committee was entertained by the officers of the First and spent the night in barracks. It consists of Alfred S. Adams, Lewis K. Torbet, Robert S. Iles, Charles J. O'Conner, James Edgar Brown, and Dr. M. R. Von Coldtz.

BLACK EYE

Actress Gets One in Hotel Dining Room and Complains in Court.

Miss Constance Beaumar

"I was eating in the dining room of the Warner hotel when Mr. Gardiner tried to attract my attention," Constance Beaumar, the actress who plays the part of Mary Eastwood in "The Thirteenth Chair," told Judge Howard Hayes yesterday. "When I refused to be attracted by him or his friends, he grew more persistent. When I went to report the matter to the management he blackened my eye."

Miss Beaumar, who in private life is Miss Constance Dickson, was dining with a friend after the evening performance. W. F. Gardiner, against whom Miss Beaumar has complained, is the president of the Gardiner Storage Battery company of 50 East Fifty-first street.

"Miss Beaumar struck me before I hit her," Gardiner said in court. "I want a continuance of the case because my lawyer is not here."

"I should like to have the case tried now," Miss Beaumar said. "I guess if there is any bad luck in the number 13 I am having enough for the whole company. I have had a cold and a sore shoulder and the grip, but the last thing in the world that I expected to have is a black eye."

Crushed to Death by Train.

Kasmir Alsanski, an air brake expert employed by the Ryan Car company, One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street and Brainard avenue, died yesterday from injuries sustained when he tired to board a car of the Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend interurban line before it reached the station and was crushed between the car and station platform.

Work of Hospital Unit Is Pictured in Letter from Front.

A vivid picture of the work being done by American units at French base hospitals and also of their diversions is afforded in a letter written by Dr. Walter Nadler of the Northwestern Hospital unit, written from "somewhere in France," to Miss Nell Wilson, 5300 South Park avenue. The letter is dated Aug. 27 and was nearly a month in transit. In part it follows:

"The Northwestern Hospital unit has been settled in the routine of base hospital work for nearly three months. A month ago our commanding officer, Lieut. Col. Collins, assumed active charge of the hospital. Accordingly, although the unit has been loaned to the British expeditionary force, the command as well as the personnel are American.

Labor Calms Them.

"The more youthful and surging spirits among us, with long hours of routine work and extra hours of guard duty and stretcher bearing, are steadier and less inclined to bursts of speed and enthusiastic song. Long before taps few are hardy enough to care for a poker game or for a songfest.

"Picture 5:30 reveille for men unaccustomed to prompt arrival at 8 o'clock lectures! Imagine soft and pampered hands digging pits on the sanitary squad! Some of us are learning to cook so well that we shall never need to excite the rancor of our future wives by referring to 'mother's cooking.'

One Busy Job.

"As arduous as any and more interesting than most work is that of the ward orderly. He scrubs the new patients as well as the floors. The orderly has learned to make beds that will bear all but the closest inspection, and he knows how to sweep so that corners are apparently clean. Besides bathing new patients and exterminating vermin he carries water, food, and supplies, and is on call for any personal service.

"We continue to marvel at the self-subordination and the surrender of individuality displayed by our patients. 'Fed up' with war, tired in body and soul, sick of the thought of returning to the work, they uncomplainingly obey orders.

More Wounded Arrive.

"After a full day's work one or more squads of men are rudely torn from their cots by relentless noncommmissioned officers. A convoy of wounded is due. Hastily, and not always completely attired, the rudely awakened privates drag themselves to the reception tent. Empty stretchers and blankets are carried out and other preparations made.

"The ambulances are driven by volunteer English and colonial women and girls. Swiftly and carefully the stretchers are unloaded and the wrecked bodies are borne into the tent.

"In contrast to the depression of medical cases, to the broken spirit and body of the more severely wounded, the wounded 'walkers,' however worn and damaged, display a certain satisfaction and pride. They are scarred but not beaten.

"Both men and officers have played baseball with neighboring American and Canadian teams, and usually our opponents have been 'strafed.' A few find time and steam enough for tennis, and many excursions are made to the beach for sand and salt water baths."

Friends Entertain Bride.

Mrs. B. A. Terona, 7324 Lowe avenue, formerly Miss Mabel Hyde, a September bride, was entertained at the Hotel La Salle yesterday afternoon by a party of school girl friends with a reception and luncheon. Miss Anna Mathis, 1449 Fletcher street, was in charge of the party and there were present: Misses Lena and Elsie Mathis, Edna and Helen Maurer, Helen Crowley, Lee Graff, Olive Minarik, and Myrtle Ouslow.

A POMERENE PUNCH

Senator Sends Scathing Reply to Toledo Labor Body Which Protested Ban on Peace Council Meetings.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 29. — [Special.] — Senator Pomerene of Ohio made public today a scathing reply to the Toledo Central Labor union, the secretary of which complained to him of the "violation of American fundamentals" by Gov. Lowden of Illinois and Gov. Burnquist of Minnesota, in refusing to allow the "people's council" to hold a peace meeting within their state.

"If you will analyze the membership of these so-called 'people's councils,' you will find they and their propaganda have the support of every pro-German and every peace at any price man in the country and of every one who seeks to shirk his duty to the Stars and Stripes," Senator Pomerene wrote. "Their course has at the same time the unanimous approval of the German kaiser and his war fund and the disapproval of nearly every patriotic citizen of the country who has taken the pains to inform himself as to the dangers that confront us.

"We must win this war. The quickest and best way to win it and at the lowest cost of blood and treasure is by united effort here at home. 'Peace councils' which are sowing and intending to sow seeds of dissension at home will serve only to encourage the enemy and to add to the dangers of our brave boys at the front."

CAMOUFLAGE IS NAME OF A NEW BROADWAY DANCE

Can you do the camouflage? Be not startled if that question is asked you, for the askee will not be asking you of your ability to conceal yourself by assuming the appearance of your surroundings, but will simply want to know if you are acquainted with the new dance that is on its way here.

The camouflage is much like the tango of four years ago, though simpler than the "grapevines" of the Argentinan step. It is danced to a garish tune. Chicago masters assert the dance is colorful.

As a second choice the waltz will be danced. The newest waltz will not bear much resemblance to its now classic predecessor except in the tempo.

MRS. DAHLGREN AND 3 CHILDREN IN SAD PLIGHT

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—In bare rooms, with not a morsel of food or a cent in the house to buy any, Mrs. Maud Keenan Dahlgren, wife of Winthrop Dahlgren, grandson of Rear Admiral Dahlgren of the United States navy, was found with her three children, Ethel, 11; Keenan, 8, and Winthrop, 4, at their home, 1454 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, today by officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Too proud to make any appeal to her neighbors, Mrs. Dahlgren had said nothing to those living around her, but apparently had been trying to get along without outside help.

The three children were taken away to the rooms of the society.

JOINT JUDICIAL TICKET ADOPTED BY TWO PARTIES

Democrats Accept Plan; Zeman Wins Place on Ballot.

The Democratic county organization effected the agreement yesterday with the Republican county committee, for the nomination of a joint nonpartisan judicial ticket. Seven candidates will be nominated by each party at their county conventions on Monday.

The answer of the Democrats to the Republican ultimatum was delivered formally in the afternoon. The party organizations proceeded at once to their separate conferences where the makeup of the two tickets was considered. The Republican differences were settled before nightfall by the agreement of the Brundage majority of the county committee to stand for Anton Zeman, as the city hall's candidate for the Gibbons vacancy in the Circuit court.

Renominate Sitting Judges.

The five sitting Republican judges, Barnes, Pam, Kavanagh, Foell, and McSurely, are to be renominated, and Oscar Hebel of the north side is to be nominated for one of the newly created Superior court judgeships. The decision to accept Zeman came after the city hall had declined to tender any other candidate.

The Deneen spokesmen in the committee were for the policy of recognition of the city hall's demand, in the interest of harmony, recognized as the first necessity to defeat the Socialists and pacifists. The Brundage majority then acquiesced. The slate will be nominated without a roll call in the county convention tomorrow afternoon at the Otis building headquarters.

The Democratic differences will have to be resolved by a caucus that is set for Monday morning, preceding the county convention, that begins at 10 o'clock at Hotel Sherman. The decision to concede seven of the fourteen nominations to the Republicans, in accordance with the Republican demand, was not reached in time for final slatemaking yesterday.

Four Sure of Places.

Four of the retiring Democratic judges are sure of renomination. Judges McKinley, Fitch, Sullivan, and David. The renomination of Judge Goodwin is now considered uncertain, and if he is displaced by the Democratic caucus, his place will go to Municipal Judge Jacob H. Hopkins, in all probability. In this event Henry Guerin of the south side stands an excellent chance to be nominated for the additional Superior court judgeship allotted to the Democrats.

Judge Goodwin apparently has been deserted by all of the backers. He has been allied factionally with the Dunne-O'Connell interests and to some degree with State's Attorney Hoyne's forces.

State's Attorney Hoyne is fully recognized by the agreement that First Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnston shall be nominated for the Honore vacancy in the Circuit court. Neither Mr. Hoyne, who is understood to be thoroughly satisfied with the ticket, as long as it includes Mr. Johnston's name, is pressing for the renomination, nor is William L. O'Connell, speaking for the Dunne element, making any demand in Judge Goodwin's behalf.

The Sullivan majority, leaving the Hoyne and Dunne forces to settle their own differences, is keeping hands off. The Democrats are ready to take the position that the nomination of Municipal Judge Hopkins maintains the policy of assigning nominations to judges of proven experience.

The nomination of the nonpartisan ticket Monday is to be followed at once by the institution of a campaign organization in which each party will be equally represented in each precinct of the county.

The Dovre club, at a meeting held at 2738 West North avenue, adopted resolutions indorsing Assistant Corporation Counsel Alfred O. Erickson for one of the Republican nominations.

The Iroquois club adopted resolutions advocating the renomination of all five of the retiring Democratic Superior court judges.

Call for Socialists.

Secretary of State Emmerson at Springfield yesterday issued formal call for a Socialist convention to nominate a candidate for the Circuit court vacancy caused by the death of Judge Lockwood Honoré. The action of Secretary Emmerson complies with the statute covering the situation. The convention will be held on Wednesday. It is understood that the Socialist party will nominate all fourteen judicial candidates at this convention and will also nominate by petition to avoid any legal clash that may arise over the method of nominating by all parties, an outgrowth of the litigation that went before Judge Windes some time ago.

Big Universities Yield 30 Per Cent to Call of War; Upper Classes Hard Hit

War has made big inroads on the colleges of the country, and the registrars' records show decreased figures where increases would be invariable under normal conditions. Registration is not yet complete even in those colleges which have opened—and several are not yet open—but the figures already show an average decrease in enrollment of fully 30 per cent in the big universities.

The decrease at Yale is reported at 30 per cent; at Harvard and Princeton, 40 per cent; at Dartmouth, 35; at Cornell, 30; Williams, 30; Brown, 30; Ames, 30; Purdue, 25; Kansas and Indiana, 20; Wisconsin, 19; Iowa, 12½.

University of Chicago registration will not be in full force until tomorrow; at Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois, and other universities the figures are announced as not yet available, Minnesota's opening, in fact, being a fortnight later than usual.

At Northwestern the college of liberal arts is under way, a decline of 10 per cent being recorded in the registration where more than half the students are women; the medical and some of the other downtown departments are not yet opened.

1,300 Drop Out at Yale.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The number of students entering Yale university this fall has been cut from 3,300, last year's registration, to about 2,000. All departments except the medical school show large losses, especially the academic, which drops from 1,502 to 800. The sophomore class has about 250 men; the junior, about 175; the senior, about 100.

Harvard's Loss 40 Per Cent.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The medical school was the only department in Harvard university to show an increase, according to official registration figures. The total university's enrollment was 2,671, a decrease of 40 per cent from last year's figures. The seniors suffer a 50 per cent decrease. The graduate schools suffered heavily. The law school showed a loss of 68 per cent and the business school and architectural school 66 per cent.

600 Out of 1,500 at Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—It is expected that Princeton will have an enrollment of approximately 900. This is about 600 less than usual. Registration figures are not yet complete. An approximation by classes follows:

| | Last year. | Estimate this year. |

At Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The University of Pennsylvania opened its one hundred and seventy-seventh college year in Weightman hall yesterday with a student body much depleted by enlistments. About 60 per cent of the old students were missing, although the freshman class is larger than ever.

Honor Roll 1,000 at Cornell.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Cornell has contributed more than 1,000 seniors, juniors, and sophomores to the national service. Registration figures show an enrollment in all regular courses of 3,355, as compared to 4,746 last year. The entering class enrolled 1,109, as against 1,436 last year.

Wisconsin 18.8 Per Cent Shy.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—According to W. D. Hiestand, registrar, the total enrollment at the University of Wisconsin is 18.8 per cent less than last year. There are 3,927 students registered, compared with 4,839 at this time last fall. The decrease is almost entirely in the upper classes. There are nearly as many women as men, whereas the ratio in former years has been approximately 2 to 1 in favor of the men. The decrease is greatest in the law school, about 53 per cent, agricultural being second.

Effect at Kansas.

Lawrence, Kas., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Approximate figures show the University of Kansas loss in enrollment through the effect of the war: Freshman, 14 per cent; sophomore, 19; junior, 30; senior, 41.

At Iowa University.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Iowa university authorities report a falling off in all colleges except the medical, which increased slightly. Daily registration indicates that the total decrease may not exceed 12 or 13 per cent. Last year attendance was 3,500.

700 Leave at Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Registration at the opening of the University of Nebraska shows a falling off of 700 compared with last year, which was a record breaker, the loss coming chiefly from seniors and juniors.

Indiana Decrease 20 Per Cent.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The attendance at Indiana university for the opening week was 1,600, a decrease of 20 per cent from a year ago. The attendance last year was 3,080. More than 200 students have commissions or are candidate for commissions.

Notre Dame Professors Enlist.

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—University of Notre Dame loses by enlistment or draft three professors, one in the mathematics department, one in the English, and one in the agriculture. The decrease in enrollment is 11 per cent. There is an increased number of freshmen, the losses being in the junior and senior classes.

Cut of 25 Per Cent at Purdue.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Purdue university's student enrollment has been cut approximately 25 per cent by the war. Exact figures are not available, as a special rule permits students engaged in agricultural work to register as late as Oct. 10. The senior class is cut in half, but the freshman class is as large as last year.

At Co-educational De Pauw.

Greencastle, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—De Pauw university registration in liberal arts, which is coeducational, shows a loss of 10 per cent from last year, the music school enrollment being larger than last year.

ENGINEERING COLLEGES.

Of the effect of the war on engineering colleges the Electrical World says reports show conclusively that the enrollment will be from 10 to 25 per cent diminished.

LOWDEN NAMES OCT. 9 AS FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Gov. Lowden has issued a proclamation setting aside Tuesday, Oct. 9, which is the forty-sixth anniversary of the great Chicago fire, as Fire and Accident Prevention day. It is to inaugurate a campaign of education in conservation and the aid of 150,000 school children is to be enlisted.

In part the proclamation reads:

"Next to the care of those who are offering their lives on the front line of battle the conservation of all our energies and resources is the most important problem. The conservation of human life takes the first rank in this secondary line of defense."

A general cleaning up of rubbish and waste and a thorough inspection of homes and business buildings is asked.

Will Your Raincoat Stand This Test?

Let the thermometer judge whether you get maximum comfort from your raincoat. Hang up a thermometer in the back of an ordinary raincoat and wear it around for half an hour; then do the same with an AIR-IN coat and note the difference in temperature.

Air-in
"The coat with lungs"

An AIR-IN keeps you cool and comfortable because there are a series of unique bellows-like vents hidden down the back of every AIR-IN coat. You can't see this ventilating feature but it expels the heated air, lets in fresh air and keeps out the rain.

The AIR-IN combines all the protection of a real waterproof raincoat with the style of a smart topcoat, because the outer fabrics are the latest fashionable worsteds, tweeds, etc.

This unequaled double-purpose coat is offered in models from the newest style trench coats to more conservative models at special introductory prices ranging from $13.50 to $25.

The new Packard Limousine, seven passengers.

What is protection?

Rags of linen and pelts of sheep would amply suffice for mere bodily warmth in the winter-est wind.

But no sane man or woman would be satisfied now with that sort of garb.

In the protection which our apparel gives to us we moderns demand the highest possible degree of—

(1) Comfort.
(2) Dependability.
(3) And that particular satisfaction known as elegance.

Style—convenience—service!

To obtain these things at the lowest feasible cost is the natural and needful aspiration of progressing man.

Now—the new outermost garb of moderns is the automobile.

A sort of personal apparel!

And the Twin Six is built to give the highest possible degree of protective comfort, dependability and elegance, at the lowest feasible cost.

Also its surprisingly efficient motor protects against the useless waste of expensive gasoline—an important factor in these strenuous days.

Protection which is not thoroughly efficient is an extravagance.

MANY A HOUSEWIFE HAS FOUND NEW METHODS IN THE TRIBUNE COLUMNS.

PROOF FOUND OF GERMAN PLAN TO BOMB HOSPITALS

Helpless Wounded and Women Targets for Machine Gun.

BY CAROLYN WILSON.

[Special Correspondence of The Tribune.]

PARIS, Sept. 5.—During the last two weeks there seems to have been a concerted effort on the part of the Germans to carry out what we are used to hearing called "a system of barbarity."

Towns have been inundated with the newest form of suffocating gas. Red Cross hospitals have been deliberately fired upon and bombs have been dropped on them; ambulances have been shot at on their errands of mercy at night. Perhaps at no time during the war has this offensive against civilians and messengers of mercy been as unrelenting.

Nor was it confined to one part of the line. As far north at St. Julien, straight through the country opposite St. Quentin down to the Verdun sector, this simultaneous bombarding of French hospitals was carried on. And it was not by chance these hospitals were attacked. A German aviator who was brought down in the recent attack on Mort Homme had in his case for reference the photographs of several hospitals, all of them, and especially that one at Vandelaincourt, easily distinguishable by the huge red cross painted on their flat roofs.

43 Killed in One Attack.

Four dressing stations and ambulance centers at Dugny, Monthairons, Vandelaincourt, and Belrupt were shelled or bombed by German airmen in one attack last week, and forty-three nurses, stretcher bearers, and wounded Frenchmen were killed and nearly a hundred badly wounded. Up to the first week in August the shelling had been desultory enough to be thought accidental. But since the 7th it has gone on every day.

One attack on Aug. 28 at an outpost station killed Mlle. Eugenie Pietrowska, who had recently returned from Serbia after nursing through that whole eastern campaign. The same shell also killed Mmes. Vostey and Fischet, two devoted nurses who since the deaths of their husbands—both officers killed on the field of honor—have given their lives to saving the wounded. At that same time five other nurses were seriously wounded and it is thought that three of them will not recover.

Set Fire to Hospital.

Two days later, the Germans threw an incendiary bomb on the hospital at Vandelaincourt at about 11 o'clock at night. The flames spread immediately and in their bright glare it must have been very easy for the airman to see the enormous red cross on the roof. He immediately threw a second bomb on the operating rooms. The nurses tried to save the wounded as best they could. Most of the stretcher bearers were out on duty bringing in the wounded and there were only these frail women to carry out the limp and helpless soldiers. They got them into an adjacent field and then in the full light of the fire, the airman swooped down to a low altitude and deliberately fired on the women and wounded huddled together. Eighteen died and sixty-eight were wounded.

I feel that last sentence should be printed in italics. In the past three years I have been very skeptical about a great many of the second, third, and fourth hand atrocity stories. This is the first time I have ever written or talked about that side of the war. The reason I do it now is because a friend of mine was killed in one of these raids—a young French girl who had already lost her fiancé in this war and whose quickness, deftness, and ready sympathy had made her beloved in her outpost hospital.

Fire Into Women and Wounded.

I grant that aviators at a distance have no idea what they will hit. My French aviator friends say that frankly. I admit that even the first and second bombs might have been accidental. But turning a machine gun on a couple of hundred women and wounded soldiers, a little group vividly lit up by the flames from the burning building, could only have been the deliberate work of some war maddened German.

The shell which hit the ambulance at Belrupt killed ten wounded men.

Gen. Petain and M. Painlévé, minister of war, and M. Thomas, minister of armament, went immediately to the hospitals, and Gen. Petain conferred the Cross of the Legion of Honor on Mlle. de Baye, matron of the Dugny hospital, who was severely wounded, and the Croix de Guerre with palm, on Mlles. Hartz, Leclerc, Le Duc, and Paque, all of whom were wounded.

The family of my friend, Mlle. Vandamme, also received the Croix de Guerre in the name of their daughter.

Germans Call It Justified.

The German communique for the 29th of August, referring to these attacks, said in explanation: "The French press has pretended that our artillery and aviators have bombarded the hospitals to the south of Verdun, especially that of Dugny. One must note in this respect that Dugny has a military importance as road depot for munitions and as a training camp. The Dugny station has been in full swing of work before and since the battle of Verdun. Our aerial attacks were directed against the military installations and against the station, and as such are quite justified. If the hospitals were in danger the French have only to put them at a greater distance from their military installations. It would be a good thing to recommend the same thing in regard to the proximity of military buildings at Belrupt."

In regard to the new gas which is now being used, men with whom I have talked and who have seen it in use, say that it disables a lot more people than the former types, but that in the long run it is not as fatal. It is worse to see, though, for the men suffer even more with it than they did with the other. It has a corroding effect on the skin which even the masks can't keep out, and the eyes suffer terribly.

Use of the gas is directed only in the steadiest kind of weather, when there is no chance of a variable breeze blowing the fumes back.

MUCH WANTED

Father, Uncle and Mother to Fight for Custody of Girl Who Seeks Only the Latter.

Miss Pearl Hunter

LOVE OF MOTHER MOVES GIRL TO UPSET 3 HOMES

Father, Mother, and Uncle to Argue for Runaway.

But one idea remains in the mind of Miss Pearl Hunter, the 16 year old girl who ran away from her father in Denver, Colo., and a home where she had "everything she wanted but a mother" three days ago. She wants to go home with her mother to Detroit, Mich.

Pearl startled Denver Thursday by abruptly boarding a train in spite of her father's orders and coming to Chicago. Arriving here, she fell into the hands of a policeman, who had been informed by telegraph, and was taken to a police station. The police turned the case over to the Juvenile court, which is holding Pearl until her father, H. C. Hunter, a mining promoter, arrives with a Denver policeman.

Wait Father's Arrival.

"We will take no action until they tell us their side of the story," said Assistant State's Attorney Robert E. Hogan, assigned to the Juvenile court. "Then I may file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus and let the court decide who will have the custody of the girl."

Mrs. Carrie Hunter of Detroit, mother of Pearl, arrived in Chicago Friday. An uncle, M. W. Hunter, grain dealer of Livermore, Penn., walked into the court yesterday, having been summoned by a telegram. The girl grew up in her uncle's home.

"My father and my mother were divorced several years ago," explained Pearl to Mr. Hogan. "He went to Denver and married again. Until I was eleven years old I lived with my uncle, Mr. Hunter. Five years ago I went to Denver to live with another uncle, N. F. Hunter.

Wanted Only Mother.

"Then two months ago my father took me to his home. He had left his second wife and was living in another woman's home. This woman was nice to me in a way. I had everything I wanted, except my mother.

"I borrowed money from Uncle Nate, slipped out of the house and boarded the train. I want to go to Detroit with mother—and that's where I am going."

But her father wants her and is coming after her.

"I will use all my money towards Mrs. Hunter having he custody of Pearl," said M. W. Hunter, and he is reported to be wealthy. "If the court does not give Pearl to her mother, I'll retain an attorney myself."

The Juvenile court will probably decide the question Monday.

FATHER GETS COURT AID.

Denver, Col., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—E. R. Hunter, wealthy Denver mining man, father of Pearl Hunter, 16, who ran away from her home two days ago to go to the home of her mother, Mrs. Carrie Hunter of Detroit, will fight for the return of his daughter from Chicago.

Mr. Hunter holds a petition of delinquency filed this morning, in which he was authorized by the judge to bring his daughter back to Denver. He will leave here for Chicago next Wednesday.

Come Out, John Dewey.

Mrs. Minnie Dewey, 4516 Prairie avenue, yesterday asked the detective bureau to hunt for her husband, John W. Dewey, who has been missing since last Monday.

DEATH TAKES SAMUEL DALTON

Samuel Dalton

Samuel Dalton, whose death occurred at his home in Edgewater on Thursday, was born in England Dec. 1, 1849. He came to this country in 1883 and engaged in the wholesale provision business in New York, later becoming partner with Beckstein & Co. In 1888 he came to Chicago, locating in Edgewater, where he has been identified for twenty-seven years in the development of that community. He took an interest in the Church of the Atonement and had the honor of being appointed senior warden emeritus after a long service in the most responsible offices of the parish. He is survived by his widow and four children.

The funeral will take place from the Church of the Atonement, Edgewater, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, the bishop of Chicago, the Rt. Rev. C. P. Anderson, D.D., the suffragan bishop, the Rt. Rev. S. M. Griswold, D.D., the Rev. F. S. Fleming, rector, and the Rev. H. M. MacWhorter officiating.

LUCA BOTTA, lyric tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, who had sung rôles in "La Bohême," "Tosca," "Pagliacci," "Thaïs," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and other works in the last three seasons, died yesterday in New York. His death was caused by cancer.

OBITUARY.

COL. IRA WELSH PETTIBONE, educator and civil war veteran, died last night at his residence, 4027 North Keeler avenue, aged 85 years. The funeral services will be conducted tonight at 7 o'clock at the Pettibone residence. He will be buried at Norfolk, Conn. Col. Pettibone was for ten years a member of the faculty of Beloit college, where he was principal of the preparatory department. Later he was for twenty years principal of the old North Division High school on the north side of Chicago. He fought through the Civil war as colonel of the Tenth Connecticut Volunteer regiment. Surviving Col. Pettibone are his sons, Robert F. Pettibone of Evanston, Frederick Pettibone of Chicago and Charles J. Pettibone of Kansas City, Mo.; his daughter, Mrs. Elliot B. Bronson, and his sister, Mrs. A. A. Smith, both of Winchester, Conn.

MRS. FLORENCE O. McCLELLAND died at her residence in Chicago on Friday. She was born in New York City Feb. 22, 1854. She married John S. McClelland in Galesburg, Ill. She was president of the Woman's Relief corps, Lincoln lodge, in 1896; department president of the Illinois W. R. C. in 1900, national chief of staff three times; also chairman of the national executive board of the W. R. C. Mrs. McClelland was president of the Culture club, 1906-'08, and also president of the Klio club, 1913-'15. She was a member of the D. A. R. and P. E. O. organization, and the Hawkeye Fellowship club. She will be buried by the George H. Thomas corps No. 318 from the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Mouat, 731 Junior terrace.

JOHN J. FITZGERALD of 4623 Greenwood avenue died yesterday at French Lick, Ind., according to word received here by relatives last night. Mr. Fitzgerald was formerly a department manager for Armour & Co., leaving their employ about a year ago. He was 53 years old. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bridget O'Connor Fitzgerald, who was with him when he died; a daughter, Catherine A., and five sons, William F., Philip D., John J. Jr., Harry C., and James E. Fitzgerald. The body will be brought to Chicago today, and the funeral will be from the residence.

Grand Opera Season Tickets for the $$2^{\underline{00}}$ and $$2^{\underline{50}}$ Section will be placed on sale at 10 o'clock tomorrow Morning

ONLY a limited number of seats are set aside for the Season Ticket privilege, and the private subscriptions and reservations by the regular patrons of the Opera are already far in advance of last year. This does not mean that the remaining seats are not equally as good as the seats already sold (all Season Ticket Seats are preferred seats, set aside in "blocks") but it does mean that the remaining number is now limited.

Therefore, the sale on this section will be withdrawn promptly at 6 o'clock on Thursday Evening, or whenever the number of Season Tickets allotted to this Section has been sold.

25% and 20% Discounts on This Section To Purchasers of Season Tickets

The Season Ticket which gives the purchaser ten performances has three advantages. First, it gives you the same preferred seat or seats on the same night or matinee day each week for the ten weeks of the Season. Second, by the rotation of programmes, it gives to you all the great stars an equal number of times in all of their ideal roles, so that it makes no difference what night or matinee day you choose, you are favored equally. And third, on the $2.00 seats, there is a discount of 25 per cent and on the $2.50 seats, there is a discount of 20 per cent. Thus, in the $2.00 seats a Season Ticket will cost you $15 instead of $20, and in the $2.50 seats, a Season Ticket will cost you $20.00 instead of $25.00.

This particular section of the $2.00 and $2.50 Seats, is often spoken of as the "Music Lovers' Section," as at this middle distance in the first balcony, one secures the most perfect blending of harmony from Orchestra and Stage.

A Brilliant Season Assured

Chicago has never witnessed so wonderful an Opera Season as is now assured for this year. All the great favorites are returning. Those who were in the war, have been released by the French Government and are preparing to sail now. Some of them have been fighting for three years, so you can imagine the glorious reception that will be awaiting them and the wonderful scenes that will be enacted when they appear for the first time after their long engagement in more tragic roles.

New Artists of world fame are making their first appearance in America. Milan, London, Paris, Madrid, Barcelona, Buenos Aires and even Mexico City are sending their greatest talent here to participate in this wonderful season.

Galli-Curci, whose wonderful voice became the talk of two continents last year, will be here again. And the thousands of people who have only heard her records will have a greater joy than they can imagine, in hearing her, herself. Last year when she and Muratore sang in Romeo and Juliet thousands of people were turned away. (And that is another thing. This year you, as a Season Ticket holder, will NOT be turned away. Your seat will be there for you.)

Muratore — Artist Supreme — whose Faust and Romeo and Don Jose will never be forgotten, will sing these same roles again.

And Raisa, whose art becomes more wonderful each year, will also be here. People have been demanding that an opera be produced in which she and Muratore might appear together. And so this year Fedora will be presented and the world's greatest dramatic soprano and the world's greatest tenor, will appear together. But the list of favorite stars and favorite Operas seems almost innumerable.

Vanni Marcoux has just been released from his ambulance work in France to sing here again in Tosca. Raisa and Crimi will appear in the Jewels of the Madonna. Rimini will again give his wonderful characterization of Falstaff in Verdi's Opera. Stracciari, the new baritone, will sing Tonio in Pagliacci with Anna Fitziu as Nedda

Genevieve Vix who is a favorite in the French and Spanish Opera Houses in Paris, Madrid and Buenos Aires, and the greatest Manon of her generation, will sing here for the first time this year and make her debut in that character.

Martha Chenal the great French Soprano, whose singing of the Marseillaise has stirred more French soldiers than any other patriotic effort, will also appear here for the first time. She will open in the Opera Aphrodite.

And Fontaine, the great French Tenor, of course will be with them, as these three have shared their successes. All favorite Operas will be revived and others given for the first time. The Barber of Seville will be repeated this year with the same cast

And so with Carmen and Boheme and the Jongleur; and Cleopatre with Maguenat as Antony; and Don Quichotte with Vanni Marcoux in the title role. And the lovers of Coloratura singing will hear the famous Shadow Song in the opera Dinorah. And so it goes with a long, long list of old favorites and new, both in Operas and Stars.

Be Here on Time Tomorrow

The line will form at the windows at the left of the entrance instead of at the right as during the Season. No season tickets will be sold at this time except for the $2 and $2.50 Section, although reservation may be made for other Sections pending the opening of the other sales.

THERE will be no increase in the number of season ticket privileges. Consequently, when this allotment is sold, there will be no further opportunity to secure Season Tickets in this Section. And, as we have said, the advance sale to our regular patrons, is already far in excess of last year.

NEW YORK BEST IN OLD LEAGUE SINCE CHANCE

World Series Opinion from Giants' Viewpoint.

BY WALTER TRUMBULL.

[Baseball Writer New York World.]

New York, Sept. 29.—[Special.]—New York will be represented in the coming series with the White Sox by the best team the National league has known since the days of the great Cub machine driven by Frank Chance.

This team has not the wonderful asset of a Christopher Mathewson, but in other respects it is a far better club than the Giants beaten twice by the Athletics and once by the Red Sox for the highest honors in baseball.

Moreover, it should be a good world's series club. In studying the chances of a team in a world's series the general records of the season's play are of minor importance. A league season is a distance event. A world's series is a dash. What is of moment is the speed at which the team has traveled in the last few weeks of play, the condition in which it will enter the big battles, its power for sudden effort, its general temperament, and its ability under unusual conditions.

Two Great Teams to Battle.

There will be more of a strain upon the players in the coming series than in any other played. That remarkable mental tension which can be physically felt in a world's series crowd will be intensified. Nothing is lacking to rouse the emotions of the fans.

The contestants are admittedly two great teams—the pick of their leagues. For the first time in seven years a western club is figuring in a baseball championship, which furnishes the element of sectional feeling. The teams are representing Chicago and New York, which assuredly does not detract from the rivalry. One playoff game between these two cities once aroused considerable controversy. This will be a series of them. All these things are bound to have their effect upon the players.

The Giants are fortunate enough to have several men whose play should not be harmfully affected by these conditions. Herzog plays his best when there is most at stake. Benny Kauff welcomes a crowd as a debutante welcomes the guests at her coming out party. Schupp is as highly strung and as emotional as an oyster. Holke is of phlegmatic disposition. Fletcher, Burns, and Zimmerman are veterans and Robertson is of too indifferent temperament to be greatly affected by a throng.

White Sox More Consistent.

Over the run of the season the White Sox have shown more consistency than the Giants. They have gone along at a good even gait, winning from all rivals rather than increasing their average at the expense of a few, and when they were passed coming on again with unimpaired courage to eventual victory.

The Giants have run in more spurts. Sometimes they have performed like a team inspired and sometimes they have played very mediocre baseball. It must be said for them that they did not have the opposition nor the need for continued effort of Chicago. They were far the best team in their league and they always felt that there was little doubt as to their winning when they had to win. Then, too, they suffered seriously from injuries.

Herzog's Return Big Factor.

The greatest single piece of encouragement from a New York point of view is the return of Herzog. The second baseman is a natural money player, but it is not the feeling that he will hit and field as he did in 1912 that will make him so welcome. He may hit or he may not, but he is of infinite value to his club. It is Herzog who holds the men together and keeps them on their toes.

No player is better at steadying a pitcher, or placing the fielders, or sizing up a dangerous situation, and he is a wonder at hitting behind a runner. Herzog is one of the few players whose judgment McGraw respects. He has regained much of his lost weight and is once more in excellent physical condition.

Favors New York Outfield.

Coming to an actual comparison of the players, the Giants feel that they have some advantage in the outfield. Robertson should outfield Jackson. Joe may outhit him, but Robby is a batter who is apt to wallop the ball out of the park at any minute, and his hits should count.

Kauff can hit, throw, and field, although he is bad on a ground ball. Felsch is admitted to be an exceptional player, but his margin of value over his rivals should not be great; Burns is a wonderful sun fielder and should outclass Collins or Liebold in all departments. It should be an even thing on defense with the edge with the Giants on attack.

Gandil and Holke Even.

In the infield Gandil and Holke are evenly matched. Holke is perhaps the better fielder, but Gandil is vastly more experienced. Fletcher and Weaver are of the same type. Weaver has been having a great season, but injury will not help him any and Fletcher is a veteran of three world's series.

At third Zimmerman should have the edge on Young McMullin. Heine never has played as brilliantly as he has this season, and he is a far stronger batter than his opponent. If he can control his temper, Zim is apt to go well.

Eddie Collins has made a much more

179 TO 0!

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 29.—In one hour's playing time the University of Oklahoma today scored twenty-six touchdowns and kicked twenty-three goals for a 179 to 0 victory over Kingfisher college of Kingfisher, Okla., in the first game of the season.

CUBS HIT HARDER, BUT DROP LOOSE GAME TO BRAVES

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Boston beat Chicago in the penultimate game of the season on the north side yesterday by a score of 8 to 5, in the presence of 3,500 shivering bugs.

For seven innings the combat was fairly close as to runs, with Phil Douglas slabbing against Dick Rudolph. Both men were hit hard, but a combination of fast fielding and unwise baserunning helped keep the runs down, so that the count was only 2 to 1 in Boston's favor when Douglas was yanked to let Doyle bat for him in the last half of the seventh. Larry did not change the scenery with his bat, but the introduction of Hendrix as relief pitcher in the eighth made a joke of the rest of the game.

The Braves hammered Hendrix all over the lot and his support was bad in spots. Six runs were piled up by the enemy in the eighth and part of the ninth. Finally with one out in the ninth Aldridge was called to the rescue and got the next two men out without further scoring.

Get to Rudolph in Ninth.

The Cubs mauled Rudolph hard all the way, but without much success until the last half, when they combined five solid hits for four tallies that were utterly tautological.

Mitchell's men outbatted the Braves, but were buffaloed by three double plays which snuffed out chances to score. The Cubs made fifteen swats off Rudolph. Flack and O'Farrell led with two doubles and a single apiece. O'Farrell might have made more than that, but was up only three times, as he was removed to let Schick run for him after his second two bagger in the seventh inning.

Maranville led the Braves in slugging with four hits in five chances, two of his drives being good for three bases each. Powell and Red Smith made three swats apiece.

Braves' Freak Third Inning.

The feature of the day was Boston's third inning, in which the Braves made a single, triple, and double off Douglas in that order and scored only one run. The reason was that Rehg, who made the single, loafed so much that he was thrown out at the plate on Maranville's triple. Powell, who hit the double, scored Maranville from third, but was nailed himself trying to make three bases on his own hit.

CUB NOTES.

Boston again today.

Last game of the year at Cub park.

Manager Mitchell announced Vic Saier would play first base today to see if his broken wheel was all right again.

WHITE SOX VS. GIANTS

Local Southpaws Have Shade Over Gotham Left Handers if Reb Russell's Arm Is Right.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

SEPARATING the world's series for convenience of comparison into right and left handers it looks as if the southpaws would figure quite prominently in the box scores of the big games.

Word has come from the Giant camp that New York's plan of defense will be designed chiefly to stop Eddie Collins and Joe Jackson, the backbone of the White Sox wrecking crew. As both Collins and Jackson bat left handed it is natural to expect McGraw to work his three southpaws, Sallee, Schupp, and Benton, with considerable frequency for the purpose of holding down the two dangerous batsmen.

Rowland may have three White Sox southpaws at his command in Russell, Williams, and Danforth, and by using them can force the Giant leader to weaken his defense by putting a right handed hitter in right field, or present a weaker attack by leaving Robertson at the mercy of left handed pitchers.

Jackson and Collins can negotiate southpaw delivery with much greater success than the left handed batters of the Giants can. In fact, few batsmen in the league, right or left handed, have hit southpaws more freely this season than Jackson.

While Schupp has been the most successful of the Giant left handers this season, Sallee is expected to give the White Sox more trouble than the youngster. The tall veteran has a cross fire that will bother any batsman until he gets accustomed to it, and the Rowland batsman will not have a chance to get the hang of it until they face it in actual battle.

Like everything else, Sallee's slant ball can be punished, once it is gauged correctly, but in a seven game series the White Sox will not have much time to study any one pitcher. It will do no good to solve Sallee's delivery after it is over.

Schupp has relied a good deal on a fast ball and the control to put it where the batter does not like it, but he has a fair curve to mix in with the speed. Benton is more of the curve ball type of south paw, although he, too, can groove them with a hop if necessary. Both Sallee and Benton are experienced men, while Schupp has had only one year of real service on the slab, and never has been under drum fire such as he will encounter when he steps to the slab in a world's series.

Whether or not Russell figures prominently in the series depends a lot on the condition of his arm. If it is right, after the rest it will get, he can be depended on for at least one good game. Russell has greater speed than any of the Giant southpaws. Speed alone will not fool a good hitter long, but Russell also has a wicked curve when his arm is right and the combination has been his success.

Williams is a curve ball pitcher of the Sallee type and, like the veteran Giant, depends a lot on his noodle. Williams has a reason for every ball he pitches and is most effective when he knows his opponents well.

Danforth has become the world's greatest relief pitcher, but has had little success this season in starting combats on the slab. Whether or not the Sox manager will use him for other than relief purposes remains to be seen. The usual wrangle over Danforth's delivery probably will be witnessed unless it is ruled out in advance by the commission.

The White Sox southpaws have been more effective as a whole than the Giant left handers this year. Schupp leads the New York portsiders in efficiency and has allowed fewer runs than Russell, who has the best ranking of the Sox southpaws. Sallee and Russell are about even in effectiveness, but both Danforth and Williams have excelled Benton by a wide margin in airtightness.

Comparison by games won or lost is absurd, as only effectiveness will count in the big series, and on that basis the Sox left handers have a meager shade, which will disappear if Russell is not in top form.

TOLL OF KILLED, INJURED, AT RACE

Fresno, Cal., Sept. 29.—W. S. Campbell, automobile racer, was killed this afternoon in the first lap of a twenty-five mile free for all race when his car struck the inner fence. Fifteen men, women, and children were injured a few seconds later when William Belden, another pilot, crashed into Clyde Roads, and the two machines plowed through the crowd along the track. Tonight physicians announced none of the injured would die. Campbell was thrown from his machine, and the two cars following ran over his body.

1,500 OFFICERS TO ROOT FOR SOX

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—If 1,500 leather lined, tried and true lungs, augmented by a brass band, will have any weight in helping the Sox to win next Saturday's game in the world series, then President Comiskey may rest assured that that weight will be thrown where it is most needed. Every one of the block of 1,500 tickets has been subscribed for.

Led by Col. Ryan, post commandant, and his staff, and accompanied by the band of the Forty-sixth regular infantry, the student officers will attend the game in a body.

Notes of the Sox.

New York, Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The Sox will rehearse tomorrow in Buffalo and return to wind up the season here Monday.

It is practically impossible to secure reserved seats now at the Polo grounds for the big series, but as yet no actual pasteboards have appeared.

Five players will go on to Cleveland from Buffalo and be ready for the practice contest there Tuesday. Danforth, Benz, Wolfgang, Murphy, and Hasbrook were the five selected.

Before the games the White Sox were so busy in front of the camera squad they had little time to practice. A group picture was taken, besides scores of individual photos and a lot of movie stuff.

A noisy fan in the grandstand was rooting for the Sox, but between innings once he yelled the following to Buck Weaver: "Hey, Buck! I'm with you boys today, but when you play my Heine I'm off of you."

H. ZIM ET AL. GIVEN EYEFUL AS ED PITCHES

Shine Baller Puzzle After Yanks Take Opener, 12-8.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

New York, Sept. 29.—[Special.]—New York's baseball fans, who are greatly excited over the coming world's series between the White Sox and Giants, experienced both joy and despair today while giving the Sox the once over, or rather the twice over, in a double header against the Yankees. They were joyful in the first game when the Yanks ran away with it by a count of 12 to 8, but they were left in doubt regarding the chances of their Giants when they saw the Sox take the second, 3 to 1.

The first game was a free hitting affair on each side and there also were plenty of fielding blunders. Chicago used Williams and Danforth on the rubber and the Yanks lammed both freely. In the second game, however, it was quite a different story, for Eddie Cicotte, the hope of Chicago in the big show, was on the rubber going in a stylish way and with the New York throng looking at every move he made. He set the Yanks down nicely, getting out of several tight places, just as a champion is expected to do. The showing of Cicotte really was the important thing of the day.

Deep Interest in Cicotte.

There were more than 15,000 fans present, not because the games amounted to anything, but because it had been announced in advance that Cicotte would hurl. All New York was interested in what this clever little shine ball, knuckle ball, curve ball, and spitball flinger of the Chicago team would do and the crowd was a Giants' crowd, who came out just to speculate on what Cicotte would do with Heine Zim, Benny Kauff, George Burns, and the other sluggers of the local champions.

Benny and Heine and George were in the grand stand themselves, probably as interested in the actions of Cicotte as any one in the throng and indications are that in Gotham tonight the fans have less confidence in victory than they had this morning or even after the first game was played today. There will be less of that six to five stuff in the gambling halls tonight.

New Yorkers Take Notice.

Although our Eddie didn't hurl as good a game of ball as he has turned out many a time this summer, his work was gallant enough to cause a lot of talk in New York. He was steady, having nearly all of his trouble in the first inning, when the first two fellows who faced him swatted the ball for hits, one, Miller leading off with a triple and Ward following with a single. That accounted for the only run New York got. Cicotte hurled himself out of that first inning trouble and went along to the finish like a top liner.

It was the twenty-eighth victory of the season for Cicotte, and probably the last one, for it hardly is likely he will appear in another game until one week from today, when it is a 10 to 1 shot that he will step to the mound at Comiskey park to face the Giants in the first battle for the big title.

Recruit Holds Sox at Start.

Eddie was opposed in this combat by one Herbert Thormahlen, a youthful southpaw who seeks fame, and if he keeps on pitching as he did today he ought to gain measure of it before another two years has passed. He set the champions down round after round at the start, but in the sixth inning they broke through for a couple of runs, taking the lead.

It wasn't the fault of the young southpaw, however. His mates made two blunders behind him. In the next inning the Sox tapped him for their other tally and in the eighth they nicked him for three blows, but didn't get a count. Young Mr. Brady, another aspiring youth, came forth and hurled the final round.

The first game really was a bum affair to watch, and every one took it as a joke before three rounds had been fought. Claude Williams, who never has had any luck on the Polo grounds, began, and the Yanks just lined the ball to the fences. After Liebold, E. Collins, and Jackson had pounded in a run in the first the Yanks came back with four, and then the Sox lit into Bob Shawkey, the New York hurler, for four runs in the second, a double by Weaver, a pass to Schalk, a triple by McMullin, and singles by Jackson and E. Collins doing the business.

Drive Shawkey from Slab.

That assault drove Shawkey from the slab and brought out Slim Love, the tall southpaw, and from then on the Sox were quite tame. Not until the finish when the Yanks had the game sewed up did they nick the tall lefthander.

In the meantime the Yanks pounded Williams off the rubber and Danforth came to the job and they continued to pound him, clouting in two runs in the third which put them in the lead. From then on they just kept increasing their lead and their batting averages.

As a batting spectacle the game was a great success. Roger Peckinbaugh went up five times and drove out five hits, four singles and a double. Joe Jackson and Eddie Collins went up five times and each came out with four blows. One of Eddie's was a two bagger. Nearly every one helped his hitting mark materially, but the crowd was glad when it was over.

PROVISO PREPS BEAT KANKAKEE IN LAST QUARTER

Two Touchdowns Near Finish Down Visitors by Score of 14 to 0.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Proviso High won its second straight shutout victory, beating Kankakee at Maywood, 14 to 0. Both touchdowns came in the fourth quarter on plays through the line by Full Back Knopf. Kankakee had the better of the first half, keeping the home boys fighting bitterly to protect their goal. In the second quarter Proviso displayed a great defense, holding gamely on its one yard line for four downs.

In the fourth period a pass, Drake to Knopf, started a march down field, and off tackle plays by Drake and Meyer put the ball eight yards from goal, Knopf plugging through the line for the score. Munton kicked goal. After the kickoff Proviso again took the ball, and on four end plays and another pass, Knopf to Drake, reached scoring distance. Knopf then broke through on a play off tackle and squirmed fifteen yards to a touchdown, Munton again making the kick. Lineup:

Riverside High's majors outweighed Proviso's lightweights, and shut them out, 31 to 0, at Riverside. Riverside was beaten by Proviso's heavies the preceding week, but displayed vastly better team play yesterday. A broken nose sustained by Center Burgoyne of the losers in the first quarter, and the expulsion of Full Back Ziebell of the same team after [illegible] the referee of pushing the ba[illegible] the line for a Riverside touchdown added exciting touches to the thrills of play. ### New Trier, 34; La Grange, 0.

New Trier's straight football proved more successful than La Grange's passes, and the Kenilworth school heavies walked off with a 34 to 0 victory at La Grange. Of twenty-two passes essayed by the Lyons township boys, four were completed, and three of these came in succession in the second period, planting the ball on New Trier's five yard line, where the latter school held. New Trier had the weight advantage by ten pounds to a man. Lineup:

Oak Park Wins Two.

Showing much improved form after a week's driving drill, Oak Park heavies trounced Crane Tech, 40 to 0, and to make the Oak Park field today complete, the lightweights took their end of the double header from the tech school 135 pounders, 15 to 6. Kraft of Oak Park broke a rib in the second half, and Bernstein, Crane's quarter, wrenched his leg, but stayed the game out. Lineup:

Midgets Given Harder Fight.

Crane's midgets rushed Oak Park off its feet in the first half. In the opening quarter Center Diamond of the techs blocked a kick and sprinted for the first touchdown. Steger completed a pass to Swanson the Crane three yard line in the last period, paving the way to Caruse's touchdown. In the last few minutes Quinn blocked a Crane kick and Barney scooped it for a fifty yard run to touchdown. Lineup:

Evanston Beats Senn Twice.

Evanston High heavies beat Senn on Northwestern field, 6 to 0, after the losers did the best ground gaining until the fourth quarter. With only a few minutes to play Evanston's backs made a valiant effort, carrying the ball up the field, then in a mêlee Right Tackle Carney went over for the lone touchdown, later missing goal himself. Senn's line held well. In a curtain raiser between the two lightweights Senn tarruped Evanston, 55 to 0. Morris and Ryan starring. Lineup of heavy game:

HARRISON DEFEATS LAKE VIEW TEAM, 7-0, ON INTERCEPTED PASS

BY PREP.

After three quarters of scoreless ball Right Half Ashton of the Harrison lightweights intercepted a pass from Lake View and sprinted twenty yards for a touchdown, giving the west side techs the victory. Predl kicked goal a minute later, making the score 7 to 0. Harrison played a stronger game, but was sloppy in handling the ball, and twice in the final period had rushed to within Lake View's five yard line, only to lose on fumbles. Lineup:

WHEATON LOSES TO LAKE FOREST

Coach Mather officially opened the Lake Forest college football season on Farwell field yesterday with a practice game against Wheaton, which Lake Forest won, 21 to 6. Only three of last year's men appeared in the Lake Forest lineup. Both teams did their best work in the last period. Capt. McFerran and Woods did stellar work for Lake Forest. For the visitors Capt. Neebolt was a star in the back field. Lineup:

Wendell Phillips Beats Morocco High Eleven, 6-0

Morocco, Ind., Sept. 29.—Wendell Phillips High of Chicago won a close game from the local high school, last year's Indiana state champion, 6 to 0. Full Back E. R. Copman of the Chicago eleven was knocked out in the fourth quarter, his brother succeeding him. Quarter Back Ross made the touchdown, being aided by good interference after breaking through the line for a forty yard run in third quarter.

Oak Forest, 12; Wards, 3.

CASE SWAMPED BY OHIO STATE IN 49-0 CLASH

Columbus, O., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Ohio State defeated Case, 49 to 0. Chick Harley played for two quarters, displaying his old time form. A new Chick appeared in Gail Stinchcomb, who gave every indication that he will be Harley's equal. Coach Wilce uncovered a number of other promising men.

Stinchcomb, Harley, Schweitzer, Friedman, Yerges, and Willaman made long, consistent gains, snowing Case under. The ball was in State's possession nearly all the time, Case making only two first downs. Schweitzer featured with a place kick from the thirty yard line.

Thirty-five hundred people were in attendance, including Ohio State's 500 aviation students. Lineup:

JACKIES BEATEN BY MARQUETTE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 29.—Despite the efforts of Pat Smith, captain elect of the Michigan university team, Marquette university of Milwaukee won its opening game of the season with the Great Lakes naval training station team, 14 to 7. Smith played a great game for the naval cadets, as did Weinberg, formerly of Western Reserve; Pottinger, formerly of Wisconsin, and Loucks, formerly of Michigan.

The jackies were the first to score, getting a touchdown in the opening quarter due to a fumble by Beutler. Weinberg then circled the end for a touchdown. Marquette scored in the second and third periods on straight football, showing surprising strength. Chicoyne, who played a star game, scored the first touchdown and Delmore the second. The cadets were on the defense after the first quarter, Marquette forcing the play. Lineup:

M'GRAWS BEST TEAM IN NATIONAL LEAGUE SINCE OLD CUB DAYS

brilliant showing than Herzog this season and on the dope leads him by a wide margin. For the first time in months, however, Herzog is in condition and there is no telling how he may play in a conflict such as the coming one. The world's series records of the men are not far apart. Collins has played in four series, Herzog in three. Collins has been at bat seventy-five times to Herzog's seventy; made fourteen runs to Herzog's ten; twenty-six hits to Herzog's seventeen; five doubles to Herzog's six and two triples to Herzog's one. If there is a shade in the infield, it goes to Chicago.

Schalk is a better backstop than McCarty, but the latter should outhit him. In second string catchers the Giants have a decided advantage.

Up to "Breaks" and Pitching.

With teams so evenly matched, it is probable that the breaks of the game and the pitching will tell the story. In Schupp, Benton, and Sallee the White Sox will face southpaw pitching second to none. Last season Schupp held opposing teams to less than an average of one earned run per game. A team facing him for the first time is sure to have trouble. He has fine speed, a good curve and a most deceptive motion. Benton and Sallee have both been hurling great ball.

For a right hander, the Giants probably will depend upon Perritt. When he is right, he is unbeatable, but he is an erratic pitcher, and there is no telling how he may perform. Scheduled as this series is, a team might be able to go through it by using only two slab men, and New York is counting largely upon Perritt and Schupp. It is realized that John Collins and Gandil and Felsch and Weaver all hit left handers, but the Red Sox southpaws frequently have stopped Chicago, and they are no better than this Louisiana boy.

Cicotte and Faber Feared.

Cicotte and Faber would appear to be the pitchers who would give the Giants the most trouble. They can hit mere curves or speed, but a wise pitcher with a change of pace always has bothered them. Still, if they once start one of their batting rallies they will hit anybody. As to Rowland's left handers, the Giants are much more afraid of Williams than of Russell.

There are some general advantages which will favor each team. The White Sox know the Polo grounds while the Giants are unfamiliar with the White Sox park. Moreover, on account of the sun field, McGraw will be obliged to shift his fielders in Chicago and the left handed Robertson may be somewhat handicapped in the strange position of a left fielder.

First Advantage to Sox.

The Sox have the advantage of playing the first two games on their home grounds and before what will be largely a home crowd. On the other hand the Giants have always played fully as well if not better away from home.

This will be Rowland's first world's series, while McGraw has led a team in four post season conflicts, to say nothing of his vast experience as a manager and player. In point of managerial strategy the Giants should have the advantage.

The Giants are the more aggressive team and will "ride" their opponents in a manner to which they are unaccustomed, and to the limit the umpires permit. What effect this may have on the Sox it is hard to say. The Giants have four world's series veterans among their regulars to Chicago's one.

While the fans of New York feel that it will be one of the hardest series ever fought, they naturally believe that the Giants will win. They regard it, however, as about an even break and think it will go at least six games. If the Giants do win, they will be proud of their victory, for they realize that they are going up against the best opposition that baseball has to offer.

SWIFTS TAKE TIGHT GAME.

Swift & Co. nine defeated Roberts & Oake by the close score of 4 to 3 at Hamlin park. A home run by Wright in the seventh with two on bases was responsible for all of the loser's tallies. Hooper featured with a sensational catch in center field. Score:

Roberts & Oake..0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0—3 4 4

PEREZ COUNCIL BEATS ST. JAMES IN FINALS OF K. C. LEAGUE, 5-2

Father Perez council won another game in the finals for the Knights of Columbus league championship, defeating St. James, 15 to 2, at Schorling's park. Red Ormsby and Reggy Moran hooked a twirling duel for seven innings, when the latter weakened in the eighth and allowed a couple of hits, which, with two errors, gave Perez four runs and the game. The other league game resulted in a 25 to 2 victory for Americus over University. Score:

PITTS BATTLERS WIN, 14-9, FROM WEST VIRGINIA

Touchdowns in Second Quarter Net Scores for Visitors.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The University of Pittsburgh and West Virginia university opened their football season this afternoon before a crowd of 5,000 persons, who saw a hard battle, which Pittsburgh won, 14 to 9.

Pittsburgh scored two touchdowns and kicked two goals in the second quarter. West Virginia scored a safety in the third quarter when Daily and Ice tackled McCarter and in the fourth quarter West Virginia scored a touchdown when Ice blocked Sies' attempt to punt and recovered the ball behind Pitt's goal line.

Good Showing by Losers.

Each team went into the game with a wholesome respect for the other's ability, and, while it was generally conceded that Pitt had the better chance for victory, West Virginia surprised everybody by coming back strong in the second half. Pitt was unable to gain consistently on line plays, but in the second quarter showed flashes of the strength that made the team the best in the country last year.

Gougler was the best ground gainer for Pitt, though McLaren and Easterday were hard to stop, and constantly hammered the West Virginia line for gains. In the first half Pitt smashed West Virginia's interference persistently, while its back field men were able to plunge through the mountaineers' defense behind a perfect barrage of interference.

McLaren Scores Touchdown.

The first touchdown came at the beginning of the second quarter. The ball was Pitt's on the opponent's thirty yard line. McLaren punctured the right guard for two yards. Gougler then followed with twelve and then repeated for ten more. Easterday failed to gain and then McLaren took the ball and smashed his way through the remaining distance to the goal.

The second Panther tally came in the latter part of the same period, after Stahl had recovered King's fumble. Gougler then annexed twenty-five yards and a first down through right guard. McLaren hit the same hole for two yards. Easterday then took the ball and wormed his way through the clutches of a half dozen tacklers for the second touchdown of the affair.

Schurz High Eleven Easy for East Aurora, 32 to 0

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—East High of Aurora walked away with the Carl Schurz High eleven of Chicago, 32 to 0. It was the first game of the season for both teams. Fumbles by Aurora prevented it from running up a much larger score. The East High back field ran the Schurz ends at will. The game was called during the final period, as Schurz had but nine men left in condition to play. Lineup:

Culver Cadets Trim Lane Heavies, 34 to 0

Culver, Ind., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy captured its opening game this afternoon from Lane Technical High School of Chicago, 34 to 0. The cadets had more seasoned players than the Lane heavyweights and had much the better of the play on defensive. Holmes in open field play and Moore in line work were individual stars.

"LET ME DREAM THE REST"—POPE

BY HEK.

[Published by Hugh Edmund Keough in Chicago Tribune in 1906.]

When Hope runs riot, let's make it a good one.

All set, gents!

Now, we should go right on from here,
Nor look behind to see who's near.
Onward, onward we should go,
With giant stride and telling blow.
Our pitchers are just getting right
To hold their batteries to harm—there's naught to fear.
Yes, we should go right on from here.

Yes, we should go right on from here,
And demonstrate the entire smear—
The blooming layout—bally muss—
Was organized to lose to us.
We have 'em where we want 'em—yes,
We have 'em where they're in distress;
We have the class—let's make that clear.
Yes, we should go right on from here.

Yes, we should go right on from here—
Full speed ahead, no rocks a-near.
We should not halt nor hesitate
As toward the goal we navigate.
Our paths converging in the fall
To saw off seven games of ball—
Cubs [Giants] versus Sox. Smoke up! More beer!
Yes, we should go right on from here.

BARRY APPROVES

Camp Grant Commander Thanks National Commission for Interest in Army.

Headquarters Eighty-sixth division, Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Sept. 25, 1917—August Herrmann, Esq., chairman national commission. Dear Mr. Herrman:

I just have your bulletin No. 1, in re world's championship series 1917. I notice with much pleasure that the commission directs a game to be played at Rockford, Ill., if the series closes at Chicago, or at Mineola, L. I., or Plattsburg, N. Y., if it closes at New York.

I note, too, the special features directed by the commission to the effect that 1 per cent of the commission's revenue will go to the Clark Griffith Ball and Bat fund, for supply paraphernalia to the American soldiers who are abroad, and that the commission will help defray expense of cabling expert accounts of each game at its close to the offices in France of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and New York Herald, that all connected with the American army and other Americans in France may be fully informed of what will interest them greatly.

For all connected with the Eighty-sixth division and Camp Grant, I thank the commission and assure you of our appreciation of these patriotic acts.

T. H. BARRY,
Maj. Gen. U. S. Army.

ROWLAND SEES TOUGH BATTLE IN BIG SERIES

Respects Giants, but Is Confident Sox Will Cop the World Title.

New York, Sept. 29.—Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox, does not believe with many American league supporters, that the Ban Johnson circuit so far outclasses the National league as to make a White Sox world's series victory almost certain.

Rowland believes the Giants will prove the most worthy representative the National league has had since the New York club almost trimmed Boston back in 1912. He believes Ferd Schupp and Slim Sallee will give the White Sox oodles of trouble, and declares Poll Perritt will bear plenty of watching.

But Pants Is Confident.

Rowland, however, is exuding confidence, for he believes his team carries the most consistent punch, light though it may be, in the big league. In admitting the power of the Giants attack, he pointed out that the White Sox have always been able to win when victories were needed.

"My pitching staff is excellent," he said, "but is not so good as that of the Red Sox. In speaking of a pitching staff, reference to Boston must include four men who have been at their best all summer. Ruth, Shore, Mays, and Leonard have pitched the Red Sox to their spot. My pitching staff, speaking of it as a staff, is just two men."

Two Men Slab Staff.

There Rowland stopped. The two men are still among the mysteries. Whether he referred to Cicotte and Russell or Cicotte and Faber, was not disclosed. Undoubtedly it was one of the two combinations, with the odds heavy that the pair will do all the White Sox curving in the coming big contests.

Lambin's Invader Takes Lincoln Park Yacht Race

In the final contest of the Lake Michigan Yachting association season Invader, owned by L. J. Lambin, made the best time in the fall regatta program of the Lincoln Park Yacht club yesterday. Invader covered the course around the Wilson avenue and Harrison cribs and return in 1:42:52. Because of the heavy wind most of the boats carried heavy canvas of three reefs. The first leg was a reach, the second a run, and the third a beat. Summaries:

HOYNE HAS PLAN TO JAIL SCALPERS

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne in a statement issued yesterday assured President Comiskey of the White Sox he would coöperate with him in his attempt to protect the baseball fans of Chicago against the ticket scalpers, who are said to be marshaling all their forces against the baseball magnate's scheme to keep world's series tickets out of their hands.

The state's attorney points out the fact the scalpers have beaten all previous attempts to legislate their business out of existence by state or city laws, but a tip is given the White Sox owner that if he makes public announcement that tickets purchased of scalpers for more than their face value will not be honored at the ball park, but will be taken up and the original price refunded, a way will be opened to prosecute scalpers for obtaining money by a confidence game, or by conspiracy to extort.

If evidence along those lines is presented to the state's attorney, he promises to initiate criminal proceedings against the accused persons.

Two Toastmasters to Work When Bards Banquet Sox

Two toastmasters, Joe Farrell and Bob Sweitzer, will spill world's series oratory at White Sox celebration dinner under the auspices of the Woodland Bards Wednesday night at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Several novelty entertainment stunts will be sprung on the Sox players, who finish their preparatory work in the afternoon with an exhibition against Cleveland. Treasurer John P. Harding thinks the capacity of 1,400 reservations may be reached. Acceptances close Monday night with Mr. Harding at the Planters hotel. Members of the leading Chicago clubs and the Bards were sent letters of invitation. Tickets are $10 per.

Fishing at Washington Park.

Fishing in the lagoons of Washington park will be allowed after Oct. 1 from boats.

Chicagoans Help Dedicate Fox River Valley Trail

A considerable delegation of Chicago good roads enthusiasts went to St. Charles yesterday to help Kane county dedicate a new concrete road between St. Charles and Elgin. The strip of pavement forms the final link in the motor route between Aurora and Elgin, which has been christened the Fox River Valley trail.

S. E. Bradt, state superintendent of highways; Ira C. Copley, and Homer Tice, father of the Tice good roads law, took part in ceremonies at the Wild Rose inn, a mile north of St. Charles, where the emblem of the highway was unveiled.

GIANT ROOKIES UPSET REDS, 4-2, BY LONG BINGLES

Cincy Gets to Tesreau for Two in First, Then He Proves a Puzzle.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 29.—New York defeated Cincinnati, 4 to 2, by bunching long hits. The New York club presented a lineup of recruits with the exception of the battery. The Reds got to Tesreau in the first inning, a triple and a home run netting two runs. They did not threaten the rest of the game. Benton relieved Tesreau in the sixth. Score:

ROBINS BEAT PIRATES TWICE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 29.—Brooklyn closed the series with Pittsburgh with a double victory, 3 to 2 and 7 to 3. Cadore and Jacobs opposed each other in the first game, but the local pitcher was forced to give way to Grimes after three runs had been made. Grimes stopped further scoring, but Pittsburgh was able to make only two runs. Marquard pitched effective ball in the second game. Scores:

STUDY NIBLICK IF YOU WOULD BE EXPERT AT GOLF

Too Little Attention Paid to the Despised Club, Tip by O'Neil.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.

The Niblick

The preëminence of the expert player is due chiefly to two features—his accurate control of his shots and his confident skill in playing shots from difficult lies. A player of very ordinary ability can easily and sincerely figure that he ought to play any course in par or even a little under. He can actually, at different times, play every hole in as few strokes as any professional or high class amateur. His trouble is merely that once or oftener in every round he inevitably "gets off his game" or has a bad break of luck.

GEORGE A. O'NEIL

When analyzed, these misfortunes usually reduce themselves to two conditions. Through lack of control the ball ran into the rough or into a pit or behind a bunker or a tree; and through lack of skill in playing from difficult lie, one, two, three, or even more shots were lost in the effort to get back upon the fairway.

THE VALUE OF PRACTICE.

Every player knows these facts, but there are too many who, nevertheless, continue to trust to luck to keep them out of trouble and rely upon main strength and awkwardness to get them out when once they have got in. The mastering of control by means of practice seems to such players a waste of time; it is dull and stupid; it is not "playing the game."

I have already discussed the importance of control and the means of securing it. I wish now to emphasize the necessity of mastering that useful but despised club, the niblick, and to urge every player who aspires to real proficiency in golf to study this club and its uses.

When I call the niblick a despised club, I, of course, do not mean that it is little used. Practically every player carries one in his bag, and many have only too frequent occasion for its use in pits and traps. But how few players ever really study the club! Even of the class of players who, when off their game, occasionally devote an hour or so to practice with driver, iron, mashie, or putter, how many are there who ever deliberately go out for an hour's practice in a bunker with a niblick?

THE EXAMPLE OF EXPERTS.

If there is any one too proud for such practice, or any one who feels that because he is going well it is unnecessary, he needs to reconsider. Let him learn the habits of the best players. If he should happen to ask Chick Evans where he spent the greater part of the afternoon a day or two before he won the western open championship at Beverly in 1910 he will learn that the champion was practicing in a bunker at old Edgewater, where he began his golfing career. All the great players practice incessantly, and they do not confine their practice to the spectacular features of the game or to the times when they are not playing in good form.

THE INFLUENCE OF FEAR.

Incidentally it may be said that the player who has learned how to play out of difficulties and has no fear of them is less likely to get into them than the player who dreads them. Every one who has learned to ride a bicycle will remember the fatal attraction which trees and posts had for him when he was learning to ride, and every golfer who, when he makes his stroke, is in terror of slicing or pulling or topping into a hazard, knows that his very fear increases the chances of his doing what he tries to avoid. Mastery of hazards therefore is necessary, not only to aid in getting out but also to prevent getting in.

THE NIBLICK.

The niblick is a club of the same general type as the mashie. It is, in fact, a development of the mashie for special purposes. As it is particularly designed for play out of a sand pit or similar hazard, it has a greater pitch than a mashie, in order to give the ball a quicker rise, and is heavier, in order to force its way through obstruction.

The stance is in general the same as for the mashie, with the ball about midway between the feet, but situations in hazards are infinitely varied—the ball may be in a hanging lie, or at the bottom of a pit, or in a depression—and the opportunities for stance are often very limited or awkward.

THE TWO TYPES OF TRAPS.

The traps placed to catch bad tee shots usually differ from those placed to protect the putting green. The former are usually deep pits or high bunkers—frightful traps, which require a three-quarter swing to get a ball out and a little beyond. The niblick needs plenty of pitch and must take some sand in order to get well under the ball and give it a sharp rise. The swing is like that for a chip shot with a mashie. The club head is swung well back, with the turn of the wrists, and is brought down with a steady swing. The face of the club at the moment of impact is perpendicular to the line of direction, and the stroke should be planned for a follow through with the club face in the same position.

Traps surrounding putting greens are usually less formidable, and, while they call for less power, require much skill if the player is to take advantage of the opportunity to lay his ball up for a chance at the hole.

If the pitch required is slight, all that is necessary is to be careful to take only a fraction of an inch of sand and to avoid trying to aid the club in raising the ball. The club head should be allowed to go through normally with the throw of the hands. If a greater pitch is required, the play is different. The sharper the rise the more vertical must be the arc of the swing; and if a very sharp rise is necessary, the club face must be laid back and faced to the right, and the swing must cut across the line of direction, as in the mashie shot with back spin. This will enable the player to get a good pitch without run. The shot is difficult but extremely useful and its mastery is worth all it costs.

GOOD FORM IN TROUBLE.

In all such shots skill is the prime essential. In fact, it is more necessary to play in good form when in difficulty than at any other time. When in trouble perfect play is the only effective play. On the fair green a half topped shot may turn out well after all; in a pit a foozle has little chance of success and may cost not one shot more, but many.

O'NEIL IN 1918!!

The series of articles on golf by George O'Neil which "The Tribune" has presented to its readers throughout the summer will close Sunday, Oct. 14, with a story on "The Putter and Putting." The many who have studied these articles with pleasure and profit will be interested in two announcements.

The first is that George soon will publish a book on the game. It will include the material published this summer in "The Tribune," but will be largely rewritten in order to take account of the features dealt with in Questions and Answers and many other inquiries addressed to him personally. It will emphasize the methods by which the beginner can learn and the experienced player can improve his game.

More important, however, is the news that "The Tribune" has arranged with O'Neil for another series of articles next summer. These will discuss certain matters of prime interest to every enthusiast in the sport, but the precise nature of the subjects, for obvious reasons, cannot be announced now.

Jack Russo Beats Mealy.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Jack Russo turned in his second victory in two weeks at the National A. A., when he defeated Johnny Mealy of this city in six fast rounds.

JACKIES STAGE FEATURE EVENTS AT BENEFIT SHOW

Grant Park Naval Training station boys furnished the feature of a military-athletic carnival yesterday at Comiskey park as a benefit for the House of the Good Shepherd. It was the annual field day of that institution.

Baseball, lacrosse, wrestling, track events, and a thirty minute drill by companies from Capt. Edward A. Evers' naval camp thrilled the crowd of 5,000 spectators. The jackies' band contributed the music.

Navy Blues Win Relay.

The Blues of the naval station defeated the Grays in a mile relay in 3:37. The 100 yard dash for sailors was won by Kennedy of the naval station in :10 1-5. A bag race between the Grant park boys and Western Electric company and Chicago Athletic association men followed, McDonnell taking first for the jackies. Holt of the Cherry Circle placed second and Vosen, Western Electric, was third.

Alexander Zellar and William Tews of the C. A. A. competed in a handicap match and the former walked one mile before his opponent could run a mile and a half.

In wrestling Paul Martinson and Karl Schultz tugged for five minutes without a fall. Ben Reuben, champion of the Great Lakes Naval station, and Young Beell, one of the country's best grapplers, also went five minutes to a draw. Charley Cutler and John Freeberg, Swedish champion, drew in five minutes.

Calumets Take Lacrosse Match.

In the lacrosse game the Calumets defeated the Shamrocks, 7 to 6.

A ball game between the Seventh regiment and Grant park jackies was called off because the soldiers entrained for the south early in the afternoon. Manager Frank J. Emmet brought out a naval reserve team to play the jackies and the navy boys scalped the reservists, 3 to 2.

SOCCER GAMES TODAY.

First division—Harvey vs. Bricklayers, 35th and Wentworth; Bohemian-Americans vs. Lincoln Park, 46th and Kedzie; Swedish-Americans at Joliet.

Peel cup—Bricklayers II. at Rangers; Chicago Hebrews at Roseland; Fram I. and Fram II. at 46th and Fullerton; Palmer Park at St. George's; Calumet Park and Olympia at 31st and Tripp avenue; Victoria and Atlas at Cechie; Washington Park at Columbians. Games strat at 2:30.

VERNON BIGGS WINS ROUNDUP GOLF TOURNEY

Sidney Smith Also Lands Trophy for Gump Club in Glen Oak Meet.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Glen Oak's first annual roundup golf tournament ended in a blaze of autumnal sunshine with Vernon A. Biggs leader of the two days' drive. Rounds of 87, 81, 82, and 83 gave him a total of 333 and possession of the Roundup trophy.

Ray G. Maxwell of Hinsdale was second with 358. On Friday he had rounds of 88 and 85, and while he opened yesterday with 86, he evidently was suffering from too much mileage on the final round and took 99. T. L. Gatke of Westward Ho was third with 365 and Charles H. Burras of Glen Oak fourth with 366.

Low net prize went to E. E. Roberts of Oak Park, after a tie with D. H. Devanney at 306. They putted the tie off on the home green.

Gump Smith Wins Something.

The bit and spur trophies went to Harry H. Latham of Edgewater, former president of the C. A. A., and Charley Burras, whose choice net score for the seventy-two holes was 308. Sydney Smith of the Gump club was awarded the branding iron for making the first kick during the tournament. It is lettered O. H. M. I. N.

B seemed to be the winning letter in the top flights, the finalists in the first flight being Biggs and Brewer and in the second flight Burras and Bullard. As Biggs had won a prize, the bridle and saddle trophy was hung on Brewer.

Other Winners in Tourney.

Charley Burras won the lariat trophy from K. K. Bullard, 8 and 6, and now is ready to throw any other bulls in the golfing line. It might be added that the sombrero trophy won by T. F. Cavanagh had a wide brim and took a lot of filling. Dr. E. B. Montieth won the side wheeler prize, being the only south-paw present.

President Lee Vastine and his associates were congratulated by the visitors on the success of the first tournament, which probably will become an annual event. Summary:

BRIDLE AND SADDLE TROPHY—V. A. Biggs, Glen Oak, defeated R. G. Maxwell, Hinsdale, 3 and 2; W. B. Brewer, Maywood, defeated Dr. J. R. Hanley, Harlem, 1 up. Final—Biggs defeated Brewer, 5 and 4.

LARIAT TROPHY—K. K. Bullard, Maywood, defeated G. C. Bird, Glen Oak, 2 up; C. H. Burras, Glen Oak, defeated E. B. Montieth, Park Ridge, 5 and 4. Final—Burras defeated Bullard, 8 and 6.

BUCKING BRONCHO TROPHY—J. J. Hayes, Glen Oak, defeated G. M. Vastine, Glen Oak, 4 and 2; Charles Herbert, Glen Oak, defeated E. E. Roberts, Oak Park, 4 and 3. Final—Herbert defeated Hayes, 4 and 3.

BUCKBOARD TROPHY—L. B. Vastine, Glen Oak, defeated A. E. Barrett, Glen Oak, 4 and 2; F. S. Hyman, Elmhurst, won from Ted Walters by default. Final—Hyman defeated Vastine, 4 and 2.

SOMBRERO TROPHY—V. E. Adland, Glen Oak, defeated W. Giersten, Glen Oak, 6 and 5; T. F. Cavanagh, Glen Oak, defeated J. J. Green, Glen Oak, 4 and 2. Final—Cavanagh defeated Adland, 4 and 2.

GLEN OAK BRAND TROPHY—George Boyce, Glen Oak, defeated F. Hancock, Glen Oak, 1 up; A. J. Mayer, North Shore, defeated F. M. Fray, Glen Oak, 2 and 1. Final—Boyce defeated Mayer, 2 up.

Midlothian.

R. E. Peacock won the President's cup at Midlothian with a low net score of 149. H. W. Finney and E. T. Cooley tied with 150 as runners-up. Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Pfaff won the Benedict cup in the mixed foursome with a net of 92. Checking out with a 64, Kenneth P. Edwards won the prize for the low choice score of the season.

The Royal and Ancient golfers of Midlothian also interspersed their annual tournament in the day's events, with the following winners going on record: Seniors, 65 years and older—G. A. Hamlin. Juniors, 60 to 64 years—L. M. Smith. Sophomores, 56 to 59 years—F. C. Stone. Freshmen, 50 to 54 years—W. C. Stone.

Edgewater.

E. A. Maginnis, A. J. Kasper and J. W. Molding tied with 86s for medal honors in the qualifying round of the club championship at Edgewater. The pairings for the first match round:

Championship flight—E. A. Maginnis [86] vs. L. E. Ernst, [89]; A. J. Kasper, [86] vs. H. D. Fargo, [90]; J. W. Nolding, [86] vs. H. A. Lundahl, [91]; H. T. Dillon, [88] vs. E. R. Moore, [91].

Flossmoor.

Finishing 5 down, R. J. Daly and C. Cadwell tied for first place in the eighteen hole handicap against par at Flossmoor. Classes B, C, and D coalesced against bogey, C. W. Gilkey winning, 4 up.

Second round, Illinois Central cup—W. A. Farlow defeated A. F. James, 4 and 3; W. H. Lockwood defeated A. M. Taylor, 1 up; J. W. Newlean defeated R. E. Cecil, 3 and 1; C. V. Essroger defeated C. N. Gillett, 2 and 1; R. J. Daly defeated A. G. Erwin, 2 and 1; E. B. Tolman defeated P. F. Buckley, 2 up; J. W. Busch defeated P. Willis, 1 up; W. M. Wilson won by default from R. J. Hamilton.

Calumet.

With a card of 86—7—79, C. W. Overaker won the class A sweepstakes at Calumet. In class B W. T. Stewart led with 100—20—80. F. A. Buckley, 112—32—80, won in class C.

First match round, Thomas cup—J. Hoag won by default from T. F. Barrett; C. L. Paul won by default from J. T. Morrison; W. C. Becker defeated H. H. Moore by default; R. E. Hughes defeated C. H. Eib, 3 and 2; W. D. Stapp defeated F. W. Puckey, 4 and 3; D. W. Heath defeated W. H. Hill, 2 and 1; C. H. Hermann defeated R. E. Truax, 4 and 2; W. H. Beum won by default from C. F. Rathbun.

Olympia Fields.

Setting a new record of 75 for the course, Walter C. Crowdus won the club championship at Olympia Fields, defeating R. T. Larrabee, 3 and 2. Par is 73 and the best previous mark was 76, by Crowdus. His card was

Out ........5 4 3 5 4 5 3 4 5—38

In ..........6 4 4 4 6 4 3 5 4—37—75

In the semi-finals for the Benedict trophy Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Maxwell defeated Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Kasson, 4 and 3, and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Pfersdorf defeated Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baker, 1 up, nineteen holes, the losers getting a foursome record of 88.

Hinsdale.

Two club championships were decided at Hinsdale, S. S. Jackson winning the men's event from E. H. Hicks, 4 and 3, at thirty-six holes, and Mrs. Louis Napoleon Brochon taking the women's title from Miss Kate Humphrey, 1 up, twenty-one holes.

C. G. Fellows won the Old Boys' cup from M. A. Myers, 5 and 3. In the team championship A. S. McIntyre and Clayton Seaman defeated G. F. Rogers and Robert Theis, 4 and 3.

Skokie.

As a result of the semi-finals for the club championship at Skokie, Husted Meyer and H. G. Phillipps will meet in the final. Both won their matches by 2 and 1, Meyer defeating A. D. Edwards, while Phillipps eliminated S. A. Wilmarth. In the Directors' cup division the match between G. W. Ristine and L. P. Moore was postponed, and M. M. Townley defeated L. B. Sherman by 4 and 3. J. T. Ling won low gross in the sweepstakes with 81, while H. L. Harker and H. Meyer tied for net with cards of 87—10—77.

Oak Park.

In the semi-finals for the Burt cup and the club championship at Oak Park H. Templeton defeated Carl Henderson, 3 and 2, and W. H. Speer defeated R. D. Stevenson, 1 up. In the second round for the Seabury cup C. L. Rundell defeated A. T. Evans, 3 and 2; H. M. Peebles and C. Henderson finished all square; W. Shenton defeated W. H. Speer, 3 up, and E. G. Roberts and G. Buehler finished all square.

I. A. C. IN CAMPAIGN TO BUY EQUIPMENT FOR TROOPS' SPORTS

The Central Amateur Athletic union has authorized its membership to raise a fund to purchase temporary athletic equipment for the new national army camps. President Charles A. Dean is pushing the movement.

Already the Illinois Athletic club has started a subscription under the direction of F. M. Blankley. Cards are being mailed to the members asking a donation of $11.50 to be charged to their house account for the benefit of Camp Grant.

Standardized Sets of Equipment.

This amount will purchase a set of the equipment most needed at this time for a company unit, according to the suggestion of Lewis Omer, civilian sports director at Camp Grant, formerly athletic director at Northwestern university. The equipment suggested is 1 volley ball, 1 net, 3 playground balls, 3 indoor bats, 2 sets quoits, and 1 set of boxing gloves.

President Everett C. Brown also has offered to bring the subject to the attention of the South Shore Country club board of directors with a view to augmenting the A. A. U. fund.

Why Money Is Needed.

Director Omer attended the annual Central A. A. U. meeting and explained the urgent need of immediate funds before the war department commission money becomes available.

ON OTHER LINKS.

Ridge.

In the second round for the Englewood trophy at Ridge M. Le Bosquet defeated A. S. Young, 4 and 2, and A. H. Whitley defeated W. S. Kline, 2 up. G. W. Oliver won the ball sweepstakes with 87—7—80, G. W. Critchell, 92—9—83, and H. C. Olmstead, 89—6—83, tying for second.

Woods and Waters by LARRY ST. JOHN

SQUIRREL RIFLES AND "SECH" MATTERS.

Squirrel hunting is distinctly an American sport, interwoven into the fabric of American history. It was the favorite pastime of that hardy crew who bravely and painfully moved the frontier ever westward and by them was brought well nigh to perfection.

When our backwoodsmen went to war they usually called themselves "squirrel hunters" and spoke of their weapons always as "squirrel rifles"—and this in the days when elk, deer, and other big game was abundant. Men in those times were judged as marksmen by their ability to make a good shot on a squirrel—nothing but head shots counted. Often a bag of squirrels would be brought in without a bullet mark on them. The hunter "barked" them and killed them by concussion by hitting the limb they were sitting on!

The squirrel rifle of the American backwoodsman was the original small bore. It was of .28 caliber or less and shot a long, light pointed bullet at high velocity. The Germans in producing the modern small bore simply put American smokeless powder behind the American backwoodsman's squirrel rifle bullet idea and then made a remark similar to that of the well known Little Jack Horner. It is thus with most German "inventions."

Every small bore, light weight rifle is not suitable for squirrel shooting. True, a light rifle will kill a squirrel just as dead as a heavy one—if you hit him. Hitting a squirrel, however, with the ordinary light weight .22 is some feat. Grandad's squirrel rifle was a long, heavy brute, and that is one of the reasons why he wasted so little powder, and since one does not cover such a great amount of territory in a day's squirrel hunt, don't sacrifice holding ability for light weight in buying a rifle for squirrels.

The best squirrel rifle we ever owned was a single shot, musket type of .22 such as is used nowadays for preliminary and indoor military rifle practice. True, it weighed close onto nine pounds, but, bo, when we held on to a bushy tail he usually came down—if he didn't we had no "alibi" to offer.

We rather like the single shot idea for squirrel shooting. A repeater, and particularly an automatic, tempts one to take snap shots which makes it a game of chance instead of an art—truly the single shot is an artist's weapon.

We sometimes use a repeater, but always with restraint and deliberation, never raining lead in the general direction of a squirrel in the hopes of making a lucky shot. Our repeater is not a lightweight, but weighs fully six pounds.

Conditions vary so that there is little we can say concerning the "teckneek" of squirrel hunting. Usually a man hunting with a rifle will still hunt, catching the quarry unawares, but with a shot gun they are often shot while running on the ground—something that should not be attempted in settled communities with a rifle.

If a dog is used see that he has reached the age of discretion. Ambitious and untrained pups keep too far ahead and simply warn the squirrels of approaching danger.

The best squirrel dog we ever hunted with was an Ohio coon hound. The coon hound is not recognised as a real dog by the folks who hold the bench shows, but if you go down in the Ohio river country never mention this fact. To do so is to flirt with sudden death. Far better than any dog for the artist-squirrel hunter is a pair of good field glasses. They will enable him to tell whether yonder knot is a squirrel or not—somewhat important knowledge to a squirrel hunter.

The most common species of squirrels are the fox, the gray and the red. The black is supposed to be a variant of the gray.

The fox squirrel is the big bushy tail—cunning, fast, sizeable, and simply scrumptious fried or fricaseed, or however you spell it. The gray runs a close second to "foxy," but the red—a sassy little rascal—is too small to bother with.

JOHN KENFIELD TO PLAY MILLER FOR NET TITLE

Two Chicago Tennis club stars will fight it out in the final match for the Chicago association championship this afternoon as the result of victories in the penultimate round yesterday on the Chicago club courts. John Kenfield defeated Ed Spear of the Wilson Avenue club, 9—7, 6—0, 7—5. In the other semi-final W. S. Miller defeated Tom Cochrane of the South Side Tennis club, 5—7, 2—6, 6—2, 6—0, 6—3. This was a fight to the limit, which kept all the fans on edge.

In the doubles semi-finals, Spear and P. Thompson of Wilson eliminated J. F. Day and Harry McLaughlin of Sherwood Tennis club in three steadily fought sets. Kenfield entered his second final in the other doubles match when he and Edward Oelsner of the Chicago club beat W. Berns and R. Forster of Unatre, 12—10, 6—3, 6—4. The first set was so long drawn out it seemed as though darkness would end the battle unfinished, but Kenfield and Oelsner gradually wore the chill out of their racquet arms and walked right through.

Arthur C. Johnson won two titles in tournaments of Western Electric Co. employes. In the Red Cross doubles tournament, from which all fees and proceeds went to the war charity, Johnson and W. C. Bigger won the final in four sets from R. D. Williams and C. M. Smith, 6—0, 6—4, 6—8, 8—6. In the club championship singles Johnson captured the final from J. Latana, 6—4, 6—4, 7—5.

AT THE BILLIARD ROOMS.

After six defeats in tournament and matches Charley Morin last night scored his first win over Joe Capron, defeating him 44 to 38, in their intercity match at Kelsey's Monroe street room. The game went fifty-six innings, Morin having two runs of 5.

Jim Maturo of Kansas City has challenged for the world's pocket title. Following the cannon, who will play Champion Taberski this week, the challengers are Louis Kreuter, Ralph Greenleaf, Jerome Keogh and Maturo.

HOG TRADE SLOW, BUT SELLING IS BARELY STEADY

Top Sales Are Made at $19.60, with a Fair Clearance.

Hogs at Chicago yesterday were mostly of poor quality and they sold barely steady, with Friday's prices. Trade was slow, but a fair clearance was made. Armour & Co. stayed out of the market, but had 700 direct from outside. Boyd-Lunham and Roberts & Oake also were out of the trade. Shippers took 800. Top sales were made at $19.60, there being no hogs good enough to reach Friday's top price of $19.70. The bulk made $18.65@19.40.

Final prices made hogs 70@75c higher than a week ago and pigs 75c@$1 higher. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $18.90, or 70c higher than the previous highest weekly average on record. Receipts for the week increased about 11,500 head, to a total of 61,584, but were 77,200 head short of arrivals for the same week last year.

Hog purchases for the day: Armour & Co., 700; Anglo American, 1,100; Swift & Co., 600; Hammond, 800; Morris & Co., 400; Wilson & Co., 600; Western Packing company, 200; Miller & Hart, 100; Independent, 200; Agar, 100; butchers, 400; shippers, 800; total $5,300, left over 1,000.

CATTLE.

Receipts of cattle here this week aggregated around 92,700 head, being the fifth largest on record, and with 7,000 head of the largest. With this burdensome supply on hand prices dropped all the way from 50c to $1.00 a hundred pounds. Some of the closing sales of mediocre steers showed a loss of $1.50 for the week. Prime yearling beeves and the best of the matured offerings escaped the decline, but all choice to common steers, cows, and heifers suffered. Yearlings, in the meantime, made a new high mark at $17.65, and Canadian rangers at $16.00 also established a record. The big receipts this week were attributed to draughty conditions west and northwest and consisted chiefly of low priced, half fed cattle that would have been held back on the farms under more favorable conditions.

Cattle at seven western markets this week 368,000, against 320,000 the preceding week, 295,000 a year ago, and 227,000 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date 7,324,000, against 6,082,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

Sheep finished the week strong to 25c higher than a week ago, while lambs were unchanged to 25c lower. Receipts for the week 105,800 head, the largest reported since last November. The bulk came early in the week and had to sell at a sharp decline. Later, however, supplies were less burdensome and the demand developed breadth. Closing days found the market in a healthy condition, with prices tending upward. Lambs topped at $18.00 to feeders and $17.75 to packers. Sheep sold up to $11.25 for native ewes and $11.50 for rangers.

VILLAGE LAWS HALT FREIGHT, FIGURES SHOW

Official Cites War Losses Due to 'Slow Down' Rules.

Railroads are making wonderful traffic records in handling the government's war business, but—

Speed restrictions in hundreds of villages and hamlets are seriously interfering with the "speeding up" of freight transportation. This is the verdict of T. J. Foley, vice president of the Illinois Central, who has issued instructions to enginemen and trainmen to launch a "talk" campaign against unreasonable "slow down" laws in small towns and villages. Mr. Foley explains the situation in this wise:

"It would seem that the only slack left in the railroads is the slack which the people themselves, who are asking for maximum efficiency, have placed in them. Little impediments to operation, in the aggregate, constitute great obstructions. For instance, on the Illinois Central system there are 480 speed restrictions. Practically every hamlet, town, and city has its speed restriction, the great majority of which are six miles per hour for freight trains.

Cites the Figures.

"On the main line of the Illinois Central between New Orleans and Chicago there are ninety-one places where the speed of freight trains is restricted, either by ordinance or state law, the total distance embraced in these restrictions being fifty-seven miles. There are forty-eight places where passenger trains are required to reduce speed to six miles per hour. Between Omaha and Chicago there are thirty-six speed restrictions for freight trains and the same number for passenger trains.

"The loss of time resulting from complying with unreasonable speed restrictions on the Illinois Central system is equivalent to a day's work of 49,888 men in each year. This waste is particularly burdensome at this time when the shortage of labor is a tremendous handicap to efficient operation. Ten thousand more men could now be used on the Illinois Central system if they were available.

"Complying with these restrictions means the waste of 361,533 tons of coal per year, of the value of $753,030 at present prices. It means the waste of 10,021 locomotive days in each year, and there is an unprecedented shortage in locomotive power. It means the waste of 248,522 freight cars for one day in each year.

Millions in Waste.

"Figuring this waste another way, I find that if these speed restrictions were abolished the Illinois Central could haul 99,408 additional freight cars 100 miles per year with the same number of locomotives and men, or it could haul 1,705,080 additional tons of freight a distance of 100 miles with the same number of locomotives and men.

"Assuming that speed restrictions throughout the United States average the same per 1,000 miles of track as they do on the Illinois Central system, there are 21,200 speed restrictions in the United States. Complying with these speed restriction laws means the loss to the country of 2,203,210 men for one day in each year. It means the loss of 15,967,840 tons of coal of the value of $33,479,570. It means the loss of 442,550 locomotive days in each year, and the loss of 10,934,968 freight cars for one day in each year. If these unreasonable speed restrictions were abolished the railroads of the country could haul 4,373,952 additional freight cars a distance of 100 miles, or that they could haul an additional 75,023,520 tons of freight a distance of 100 miles in the course of a year.

"Talk" Campaign Urged.

"I have not heard that there is a disposition anywhere to coöperate with the railroads by removing unreasonable speed restrictions. Shippers have taken a lively interest in coöperating with the railroads in increasing their efficiency, but the authorities in the villages, towns, cities, and states have not done anything. Perhaps this is because they have not been asked to do so. I think it would be right and proper for you gentlemen to discuss this matter with the people whenever you have an opportunity.

"Speed restrictions are intended to make it safer for pedestrians and occupants of vehicles, both horse drawn and motor propelled, regardless of the inconvenience to transportation. The effect is to educate the public to become careless about railroad tracks. There ought never to be anything done towards teaching the public that railroad tracks are safe.

Safety Idea Wrong.

"The idea of placing responsibility on the railroads for safety at railroad crossings is wrong. The tendency of the people to rely on crossing flagmen, gates, and alarm bells, instead of relying on their own faculties, has been responsible for more crossing accidents than it has prevented. Crossing flagmen occasionally err in giving signals and this results in accidents. The most approved gates once in a while get out of order. The same is true of alarm bells. Crossings considered the most dangerous, we know from experience, are the scenes of fewer accidents than crossings considered comparatively safe.

"If speed restrictions were removed accidents would not increase, because the people would become educated to look out for themselves at railroad tracks instead of depending upon others to look out for them.

Right of Way for Trains.

"Every railroad man from laborer to president constitutes a part of an army of 1,750,000 railroad men in this country who are subordinating everything else to helping win the war. The great strides which the railroads have made towards increasing efficiency prove that railroad men are loyal and patriotic and will not be outdone in winning the war by any other class of citizens. No part of such a body of men ought to be required to become lawbreakers in order to fulfill the obligations resting upon them of speeding up the country's commerce at this time when so much depends upon rapidly transporting foodstuffs, munitions, and men. The trains should have the right of way."

Essenkay A TIRE FILLER HELPS LIGHT TRUCKS "DELIVER THE GOODS"

IN light truck and delivery car service, punctures and blowouts mean lost time, lost money and a "fractured disposition." Schedules are delayed, drivers encouraged to "loaf on the job."

The light truck or delivery car running on tires filled with ESSENKAY—instead of air and inner tubes—DEFIES the nail-spattered, glass-sprinkled alley or team yard. It laughs at the cobblestones, ruts, rocks and scattered things that always seem to look for a tire to penetrate.

THESE TIRES FILLED WITH Essenkay

Reproduction of actual photograph showing Essenkay-filled tires on Werner Bros.' Ford car used for express work

ESSENKAY Tire Filler is solid. It is elastic and resilient—as comfortable to ride on as AIR. ESSENKAY Tire Filler contains no atom of rubber. It never deteriorates, hardens or in any way alters consistency, weight or resiliency under the effects of heat, cold, water, sand, mud, pressure, friction, atmospheric or climatic conditions.

By keeping the casing properly "inflated" until worn out, ESSENKAY doubles tire mileage. The same filling may be used indefinitely, being transferred repeatedly to new casings.

No inner tube — NO AIR — and no tire troubles.

Modern methods, progress, efficiency in transport have led prominent business concerns throughout the United States and many foreign lands to adopt ESSENKAY Tire Filler, exclusively, for delivery car and converted truck service.

10 DAYS' FREE TRIAL
Install ESSENKAY Tire Filler in your delivery equipment for ten days FREE. If you are not convinced that the item of tire expense will be cut in half, tire troubles banished, that ESSENKAY rides like air, you need not keep it.

Everybody Knows Valve-in-Head Buick Means

THERE are many strong reasons for Buick popularity, but the strongest of all is Reliability. Motorists everywhere agree on the smooth, positive flow of Buick Power, the easy handling and economy of fuel and tires.

There is a difference in taste or need in design and this variety of demand is taken care of in the season's new models. All are "true to form"—from the powerful Buick Valve-In-Head Engine to the smallest detail—all up Buick reputation and standards.

Buick closed cars have all the substantial qualities in design and appearance which mark the car of refinement.

The roomy, well appointed interior (in pleasing color effects) with deep, resilient cushions invites you to enter and is even more comfortable than you anticipate.

The enormous demand for Buick cars is logically explained—THERE IS NO BETTER VALUE.

BANK DEPOSITS INCREASE OVER $34,000,000

Expansion Probably Due to $46,290,000 Gain in Loans.

The New York bank statement made a rather favorable exhibit in the matter of deposits with an increase of over $34,000,000. This expansion was probably due in large part to the deposit of $46,290,000 increase in loans. The aggregate reserve showed a slight loss, while the excess reserve decreased $5,742,400. The item now stands at $77,012,120.

Western Union Authorizes Bonus to Its Employees

Announcement is made by the Western Union Telegraph company that its board of directors has authorized the payment of a bonus on July 1, 1918, to all of its regular employés, except the president, who will have served the company continuously from Jan. 2, 1918. This will give the messengers $12.50 each, employés receiving less than $1,200 per annum 8 per cent of their semi-annual wage, employés receiving more than $1,200 and up to $2,000, 6 per cent, and employés receiving $2,000 and over per annum 5 per cent of the semi-annual wage, which is at the same rate as will be paid in January, 1918, for the last half of 1917.

Blames Speed Regulations for Rail Operation Waste

Waste in the operation of railroads over the United States is chargeable to the numerous speed regulations in force, according to J. W. Foley, vice president of the Illinois Central railroad, yesterday. Mr. Foley gives figures proving the point that constant slowing down at crossings, the limitation of speed in certain districts, and laws compelling stops have caused this waste; the loss of one day's time of 2,203,210 men annually; more than 15,000,000 tons of coal; the loss of 442,550 locomotive days in a year, and 10,934,968 freight car days in a year.

Fore River Shipbuilding Plans $1,000,000 Annex

The Fore River Shipbuilding company, a subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, will construct an additional shipbuilding plant on its Quincy, Mass. property at a cost of approximately $1,000,000. The new plant will be partly financed by the United States government and will be used to build destroyers for the navy.

Suspend Proposed Raise in Certain Freight Rates

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—Proposed increases in freight rates on all commodities from points in Virginia on the Southern railway to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Detroit, Indianapolis, Columbus, O., Cleveland, and a large number of other places in the middle west, were suspended today by the interstate commerce commission until Jan. 29.

CHICAGO CURB QUOTATIONS

THE tone of the local unlisted securities market was somewhat better last week with an improvement in a number of the more active issues.

Butler Brothers advanced from sales at 193 to 209, closing at 207 bid, offered at 209; Kellogg Switchboard and Supply changed hands at 267; Great Lakes Dredge and Dock was higher at 70 bid, with small lots offered at 71; Northwestern Yeast sold at 275, and closed at 273 bid, offered at 275; American Hominy common sold at 47; Bucyrus preferred was somewhat easier, sales being made at 62½, and closing at 61 bid, offered at 63.

Moline Plow was in good demand at 97½ with offerings at 98; Avery preferred was wanted at 95½, ex-dividend; common was offered at 88; Emerson-Brantingham preferred closed at 44 bid, offered at 45; Reo Motor Car sold at 26¼, closing 26 bid, offered at 26½; Continental Motors, 6½ bid, offered at 7.

The sugar stocks were quiet; Holland St. Louis offered at 13½; Utah Idaho changed hands at 10, closing 9¾ bid, offered at 10¼; Michigan Sugar declined to offerings at 83 with little interest on the buying side; Columbia Sugar sold at 12, closing 11½ bid, 12½ asked.

Inland Steel advanced from 188 to sales at 195, but reacted to 189 bid, 191 asked; U. S. Gypsum preferred sold at 91, and the common was in demand at 38. National Grocer preferred sold at 97½.

Very little interest was displayed in the public utility group, and prices are inclined to work to a lower level with the exception of American Light and Traction common, which advanced from sales at 260 to 270. Other reported sales were as follows: Cities Service common, 283 to 228; Northern States common sold at 74 ex-dividend; Standard Gas and Electric preferred, 31½; United Light and Rys. preferred, 67¾ and 68; American Water Works and Electric common sold at 6.

CHICAGO STOCK TRANSACTIONS

ON the local stock exchange prices were generally lower, without recoveries at the close. The sagging tendency appeared to be due to no other cause than general indifference. Stewart-Warner lost 1¼ points, Sears-Roebuck 1½, and Union Carbide ⅞. In no issue was there trading in volume.

ACTIVE BUYING OF CORN TURNS PRICES UPWARD

Oats Also Finish Higher; September Longs Unload at Close.

Active buying by houses with eastern connections was the big factor in making a higher corn future market yesterday, although there was also some good buying for local account, thought to be reinstating by a leading holder, who unloaded Friday. December corn held up better than the May and finished ⅛@¼c higher, while the distant delivery closed ⅞c higher. Thomson & McKinnon led the early buying, though turned to the selling side later. There was a disposition to take profits on the bulge, particularly because it was the week end, but selling pressure was at no time heavy.

The unexpected appearance of a cold area in the northwest brought about a change in sentiment. Further liquidation was looked for at the outset, but instead there was a scarcity of offerings. Frost is predicted for lowlands of Iowa, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, but the official forecast says temperatures will not be low enough to cause serious injury to the crop. Cash corn steady to 3c lower, with shipping sales 15,000 bu. Primary receipts were 493,000 bu, against 673,000 bu a year ago.

September Oats Longs Sell.

Some of the September oats longs overstayed their market and a general movement to unload in the last few minutes broke the price from 63⅜@60¼c. It closed at 61@60½c, or unchanged to ⅜c higher than previous finish. Trade in September was heavy in the last half hour, revealing a greater open interest than generally supposed. Armour, Lamson, Wagner, Ware & Leland, and Barrett were leading buyers. Interest in the deferred deliveries was comparatively light and they finished ¼@⅜c higher. Seaboard houses bought December oats, presumably against export business. Armour sold December and offered to buy May and sell December oats at 3c difference.

Cash oats were steady to 1½c higher, with shipping sales here 275,000 bu, including 200,000 bu for export. Bids from the seaboard were on basis of 6¼c over December price, track there. Primary receipts totaled 1,328,000 bu, compared with 1,132,000 bu a year ago. Local arrivals were 216 cars.

Canadian Wheat Run Large.

The Canadian movement of wheat is growing large, and yesterday Winnipeg had 1,367 cars, while for the week they had a total of 5,807 cars, against 3,767 for the same period last year. Local receipts for the week were 573,000 bu, while 259,000 bu were shipped. Kansas City, St. Louis, and Omaha received 989 cars for the week, against 2,268 a year ago, while Minneapolis and Duluth had 3,289 cars, against 4,327 last year. Winter wheat seeding is progressing rapidly, with soil condition generally excellent. Primary receipts for the day were 1,222,000 bu, against 1,603,000 bu a year ago.

Provisions Are Irregular.

Provisions closed irregular. The market was under long pressure early, holders being influenced by the weak turn in the hog market and the fact that bullish speculation is not popular. On the dip there was scattered investment buying of January product. Volume of trade was comparatively small. Hog receipts for next week at this market are estimated at 70,000 head. Western markets for the week had a total of 254,250 hogs, against 258,850 last week and 422,800 a year ago. Local meat shipments for the week were 17,999,000 lbs, compared with 16,509,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments were 4,621,000 lbs, against 8,220,000 lbs last year.

Rye Prices Up Slightly.

Rye was ¼c higher, with cash No. 2 selling at $1.91¾. Receipts were 6 cars.

Barley ruled 1@2c lower. Malting was quoted $1.30@1.43, with sales at $1.35@1.42; feed and mixing, quotable $1.20@1.36, and sold $1.24; screenings were quoted 70c@$1.15, and sold 80c. Receipts 18 cars.

Timothy seed was steady. March sold $8.65 and cash lots $6.75@7.35. Clover seed ruled firm, with cash quotable $17.00@22.00 and spot prime $23.00.

Flax was 9½c lower. Cash quoted $3.39½.

GOSSIP OF THE PIT

THERE were 1,250,000 bu oats delivered on September contracts yesterday, mostly in cars on track. Everything cleared up and there were no defaults. Heavy trading in September oats in the last half hour disclosed a larger open interest than was generally supposed to exist. Shorts bid the price up to 63⅜c, but when longs attempted to unload there was a quick break to 60¼c. It became evident that the longs waited too long, and in the last few minutes there was a wild scramble to sell oats. The Armour Grain company took a lot of them, and there was also active buying by Wagner, Ware & Leland, Lamson, and Barrett. Logan & Bryan were free sellers. Cash houses bought No. 3 white oats in the sample market on the basis of 3@3½c under September price, and delivered them on track at 3c penalty.

Cash oats were steady to 1½c higher with good demand. No. 3 white oats brought 1¼@1⅜c over December price from elevator and shipping interests, while a local industry paid 2c over for certain kinds. Standard oats were September price most of the day, but weakened, and at the finish were 1c under. Local shipping sales were 275,000 bu, including 200,000 bu for export. No business was reported at the seaboard. Export bids here were on the basis of 6¼@6⅜c over December price, track seaboard. Country offerings of oats were moderate.

Oklahoma state report for October, as wired by C. A. King & Co., gives the condition of corn as 40, against 43 a month ago, and the crop is estimated at 49,000,000 bu. Amount of wheat still left on farms is placed at 47 per cent, against 57 per cent a month ago, and 27 per cent a year ago, fully 12,000,000 bu now, against 7,500,000 bu a year ago. Oats in farmers' hands is estimated at 50 per cent of the crop.

Government weather forecast for next week says general indications favor fair and comparatively cool weather the first half of the week, followed by local rains and higher temperatures over northern districts. Over the southern portion the second half of the week will be fair and somewhat warmer. This refers to the corn belt.

Cash corn was steady to 3c lower, weakening toward the last. Buying was again largely by local industries, and they reported rather liberal purchases from the country. Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, South Dakota, and Kansas City offered corn to arrive. Local shipping sales were 15,000 bu.

Advices to Crary-Johnson from Sidney, O., say: "Corn cutting is in full blast around here with weather fine, and every day sees more corn cut and more out of danger from frost. Quite a little wheat is being sown; soil condition is excellent."

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 35 cars; corn, 66 cars; oats, 216 cars; rye, 6 cars; barley, 18 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 19,000 head and for all next week, 70,000 head.

Rate of interest for the month of October, as fixed by the finance committee, under provisions of section 15 of rule XXII, is 6 per cent per annum.

St. Louis wired: "Some samples of ear corn here from Decatur, Ill., are dry enough to shell, and no one ever saw finer corn."

Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 25,000 bu for one day compared with an increase of 100,000 bu a year ago.

Deliveries of provisions on September contracts were 50,000 lbs lard and 650,000 lbs short ribs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—COFFEE—The market for coffee futures was extremely quiet today, sales being reported of only 3,500 bags. There was some further December liquidation and a little scattered Wall street or outside buying of late deliveries. After opening two points lower prices steadied up a point or two, but the slight rallies were not maintained, the close being two to five points net lower. October, 7.28c; December, 7.45c; January, 7.53c; March, 7.69c; May, 7.85c; July, 8.02c. Spot coffee was quiet. Rio 7s, 8⅝c; Santos 4s, 9⅞c. The official cables showed a decline of 25 reis in the Rio spot market and of 25 to 50 reis in Santos futures. Brazilian port receipts, 72,000; Jundiahy, 42,000.

JOHN V. FARWELL REVIEW.

John V. Farwell company's Weekly Review of Trade says:

"Viewing the dry goods business situation from present demand and ability of consumers to pay for good merchandise there is no reason why general business should not continue unobstructed for an indefinite period. Retailers report good business with the opening of fall. Collections are very satisfactory. Cotton market is firmer.

"Leading blanket mill advanced cotton blankets this week an additional 12½ per cent, making 42⅜ per cent advance since opening prices of January. At this advance mill sold up all of the season's accumulation of cotton blanket seconds and single seconds.

"Notwithstanding the effort being made to reduce the demand for black dress goods, we find black broadcloths, French serges, and poplins active sellers—especially broadcloths and serges. Novelty plaids are very active, especially in qualities suitable for children's wear. Cutters are covering their wants on cloakings at present market prices.

"Supplying cantonments with comfortables has used up all surplus stocks. Buttons and small wares are selling well."

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—COTTON—Uncertainty as to the effect of the tropical storm on crop prospects caused nervous fluctuations in the cotton market today. There was evidently a tendency to even up long commitments in advance of the week end and the government reports due on Tuesday, but otherwise selling was restricted by apprehensions that storm damage reports would be a feature on Monday morning. The general list closed barely steady at a net decline of 4 to 11 points. The market opened steady at an advance of 1 point to a decline of 15 points, practically all the more active months being lower. Liverpool and New Orleans bought on the early decline and prices rallied during the middle of the morning. Demand then tapered off and the market eased off. Port receipts today were 33,379 bales and 920,165 for the season; exports today, 39,344, for the season 766,111; stock, 547,365. Futures:

Conservation of Power Sites.

The price of coal has been high for the last year—probably far too high—but it certainly will be higher at some time in the future. That time may be far distant, but would it not be well to begin now utilizing all the water power in order to postpone to the utmost the exhaustion of the coal supply?

There are many thousands of available power sites in the country that are undeveloped. Some of them are idle solely because of legal restrictions designed to prevent corporations from getting possession of them and enriching themselves by selling power at high prices. Suppose some corporation should get control of one of these sites and build a power plant. It could not sell power at all unless it made a price below the cost of the same power produced by coal. Suppose it should sell power for the highest price it could get and earn large dividends for stockholders? Would any one be damaged? The consumption of coal would be decreased and the power used in the vicinity would cost the users a little less than before, tending to lower prices of manufactured articles. The fact that stockholders received large incomes might excite the envy of other people, but it would not decrease the real benefits to the entire community.

Is it not possible that the agitation of a few years ago to prevent corporate exploiting of power sites overshot its mark? As a result of the agitation falling water is running to waste while coal that might be saved is being burned, and the power that it is producing costs more than the greediest corporation could charge for power derived from the water.

Jones Brothers Tea Company.

F. S. F.—The Jones Brothers Tea company was formed last December to take over several chain store concerns that had been operating for years. It issued $4,000,000 of preferred stock and $10,000,000 common. The old companies made public no details, but it was officially reported that their net profits had been $862,300 in the year ended June 30, 1916, and that the average annual profits for fifteen years had been slightly below $800,000. Reports of sales by the new company indicate that they are larger than last year. Dividends have been paid on the preferred stock and an initial dividend of 50 cents a share will be paid on the common Oct. 15. No balance sheet has been shown. Probably the common stock is nearly all water. Shares are offered at about 30.

Wabash.

H. C. P.—The Wabash railway has outstanding $46,200,000 of preferred A stock, $48,723,837 preferred B, and $43,551,512 common. The A stock is entitled to 5 per cent noncumulative before other stocks have any distribution. B is entitled to 5 per cent noncumulative before common. The road earned a surplus over fixed charges of $5,391,000 in 1916. This figures out at 1⅛ per cent on common stock after allowing for preferred dividends. An initial quarterly dividend of 1 per cent was paid on the A stock Jan. 29 and has been continued since. This year gross earnings have shown an increase of about 8 per cent.

Brief Answers.

H. L. G.—Baltimore and Ohio is earning the 5 per cent dividend on its common stock about one and one-half times and earnings are the largest in the company's history, but net is rather low in proportion to gross, the operating ratio being high. As a lower operating ratio is possible when gross earnings are larger than when they are small, the outlook for the future when gross earnings decline is not altogether reassuring.

H. S., Joliet, Ill.—The Chicago Telephone company earned the interest on its first mortgage bonds more than four times last year. These bonds mature several years before the expiration of the franchise and are among the most conservative of utility investments.

BEAT OFF SHORTS' ATTACK.

New York, Sept. 29.—Shorts made several ineffectual efforts to depress prices in the stock market today, concentrating upon rails and speculative industrials. Recessions of one to almost three points were recorded during the first half of the session, but prices rebounded easily when it became evident support was forthcoming.

New York Central, St. Paul, Canadian Pacific, and Delaware and Hudson were heaviest of the rails, but rallied on the later strength shown by Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, and minor issues.

United States Steel's extreme reversal of 1⅛ points was succeeded by a net gain of a moderate fraction, and initial losses in coppers and equipments gave way to final advances of a point or thereabouts.

Closing at High Levels.

Consistent strength was manifested by Distillers' Securities at a gross advance of four points, Continental and American Cans, Malting preferred, Central Leather, and General Motors. Closing quotations were for the most part at the day's highest levels.

A slight weakening of sterling exchange, ascribed to the firmer domestic money rates, was the only alteration noted in the market for foreign remittances.

Liberty bonds were again a noteworthy feature, many lots changing hands from par to the new premium of 100.30, at which a few bonds sold for cash. The general bond market was irregular.

United States bonds (old issues) were unchanged on call during the week.

Supreme Court to Argue Illinois Rate Case Tuesday

The Illinois legislature ordered that all caused a clash recently between federal and state authority, is to be argued on Tuesday before the United States Supreme court. Assistant Attorney General Wilkerson will leave for Washington this morning in order to take part.

This is the case in which the railroads, backed up by a decision of Judge J. P. Dyer of St. Louis, tried to put a 2½ cent passenger rate into effect in Illinois. This decision ignored the Illinois law, which provides for a 2 cent fare. The constitutionality of this law is to be decided by the Supreme court and Judge Dyer and the interstate commerce commission were asked not to take action until the Supreme court had time to act.

The Illinois legislature ordered that all railroads be made to fix their rates in accordance with the state laws, and Judge Dyer threatened to cause the arrest of any official who interfered with his order. Judge Dyer was virtually defied by Gov. Lowden and Attorney General Brundage.

Ogren Motor Works Is Thrown Into Bankruptcy

Hearing of a petition in bankruptcy was begun before Judge Carpenter yesterday against the Ogren Motor Works, 800 West Chicago avenue. The liabilities of the firm, according to Attorney Herman Frank, representing the petitioning creditors, are approximately $90,000. At a recent meeting of the directors the insolvency of the firm was announced. C. B. Haffenburg, attorney for the firm, said it would pay all its debts and the hearing was continued to Oct. 4.

ON THE BROAD STREET CURB

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—[Special.]—There was continued adjustment in the trading on the Broad street curb in the work of eliminating war order stocks and affiliated groups from active trading and from prominence in the market situation. Many of these stocks were without an active nearby market, and when sales were made they could only be effected at sharp declines. Curtiss Airplane furnished an instance of the general situation, falling from 42 to 36½, and in the last two days was neglected.

Bethlehem Steel new preferred, which was traded in when issued, sold at the beginning of the week at 101¾, and yet dropped to 100, the price at which it is offered for subscription by stockholders. A feature of the week's trading was the development of strength in United Motors, which ranged from 19½ to 24⅝. National Motors sold down to the new low record of 7.

The independent oil stocks were fairly active. Most interest was attached to the trading in Midwest Refining, which rose from 143 to 163, the highest at which it sold since it was ex-rights. Sinclair Gulf dropped from 20 to 15.

Mining stocks generally were quiet, but a few were in active demand.

NORTHERN STATES POWER.

An increase of 15.6 per cent in gross earnings and 12.7 in net earnings is shown by the report of the company for August, compared with August, 1916. Both the net and gross increase are larger proportionately than the increases for the year ended Aug. 31. Comparative figures follow:

| August— | 1917. | Increase. | Pct. inc. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gross earnings | $ 526,391 | $ 82,409 | 15.6 |
| Net earnings | 261,551 | 33,253 | 12.7 |
| Year ended Aug. 31— | | | |

| Net earnings | 3,576,040 | 374,743 | 10.4 |

COMMONWEALTH POWER, RAILWAY AND LIGHT.

Statement of the company shows gross earnings for August were $1,585,919.38, an increase of 16.71 per cent, and the net earnings for that period as $656,980.76, a decrease of 1.63 per cent. For eight months ending Aug. 31, 1917, the gross earnings were $12,445,546.39, an increase of 14.90, and the net, $5,584,397.95, a decrease of 3 per cent. For the twelve month period ending on the same date the gross earnings were $18,582,071.87, an increase of 15.04, and the net, $8,586,513.87, an increase of 1.90 per cent.

UNION ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER COMPANY OF MISSOURI.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1917, gross operating revenue was $5,664,662; net operating revenue, $1,447,027; gross income, $1,603,439; net income, $570,923. The report of the previous calendar year, 1916, showed gross operating revenues of $5,720,552, net operating revenue of $1,503,041, and net income of $710,638.

MARKET COMMENT

U. S. STEEL stock, according to the brokers, has shown a large number of stop loss orders. The metal market is reported to be at a standstill, due to the delay of the government in announcing the requirements of itself and the allies.

The Denver and Rio Grande railroad is scheduled to again pass from control of the Gould interests and be dominated by the same interests that are in control of the Missouri Pacific. According to reports in New York, George J. Gould has yielded to a proposition that will put the Denver and Rio Grande under the complete domination of the Missouri Pacific group, leaving Mr. Gould nearly a minority director.

Floor brokers on the New York exchange say the selling of standard railroad stocks, outside of St. Paul, has been, as a rule, of poor quality. The short interest in the group is quite large. St. Paul, it is expected, will be bought strongly around the 50 level.

According to a Boston authority, owners of the Central Leather $39,700,000 common stock will be treated in 1917 with the largest consideration they have ever enjoyed. They will receive dividends of 9 per cent, comprising 5 per cent regular and two extras of 2 per cent each. Profits for the June quarter were equal to 10 per cent on the common after setting up an estimate for excess profits taxes. It is expected the September quarter will show 8 per cent on the common.

Silver Takes Another Tumble.

Commercial bar silver had another drop of 1 cent, selling at 96⅝, a decline of 12 cents an ounce within a week.

FINANCIAL NOTES

IMPORTANT interests in the Wright-Martin company believe it will be possible to start dividends on the $5,000,000 preferred stock before the middle of next year. The company has nearly completed its French motor contracts, on which the loss is estimated at $450,000. A contract, however, with the United States government is expected to show a substantial profit, larger than the loss on the French contract. The company has $2,000,000 in cash, owes no money, and its plant and equipment of $5,000,000 are paid for. The special reason for expecting a dividend is that during the next six months the company will receive about $2,500,000 in the way of payments for the use of the Wright patents and the profits on government work.

The New Haven railroad has taken steps to employ both younger and older men in the operating department than have been accepted heretofore. Previous age limits were 21 to 35 years. Under the new plan the limits for firemen will be 18 to 45 years, for trainmen 18 to 50 years, and for other employés 18 to 60 years. This action is taken in order to free men of the military class from exemptions due to industrial occupations.

For the seven months to Aug. 1 it is reported that earnings of the Distillers' Securities corporation were about $2,000,000, or 6 per cent on the $32,282,600 stock. Friends of the company say that for the full fiscal year to end Dec. 31 the earnings should be not far from $15 a share. Surplus profits above the 2 per cent dividends, however, are being utilized to buy in and cancel the 5 per cent collateral trust mortgage bonds. About $2,000,000 of these were acquired in 1916.

The Guaranty Trust Company of New York, the world's largest trust company, with resources of more than $600,000,000 and deposits exceeding $500,000,000, made application yesterday for admission to the federal reserve system. The announcement was made by Charles H. Sabin, president, who said his company was actuated by a realization of the importance of mobilizing the nation's entire financial strength to meet war emergencies.

In September the owners of leading American copper shares will have had in dividends an estimated total of $27,232,000. This compares with disbursements in August of $11,467,000 and of $26,380,000 in September, a year ago. In the first nine months of this year these copper companies will have paid to their stockholders the large total of $140,437,443, compared with $107,681,058 for the same period last year.

American Foreign Trade Increases During August

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—American foreign trade increased during August, the department of commerce announced today, approximately $160,500,000 over July. Exports increased $115,500,000 and imports $45,000,000. Gold exports, $46,049,306, were nearly three times the volume of imports in August.

Are You, too, taking a New and more Serious Interest in your Housekeeping?

IF you are among those women who are considering housekeeping more seriously than ever before, one of the first subjects for you to consider is your coffee.

Many women who formerly left the selection and making of coffee entirely to their servants are now finding out for themselves just which brand of coffee is really the best. From all the coffees on the market they are selecting very carefully the one coffee which is the most delicious, the most satisfying.

They are also testing the various recipes for making coffee. They want to be sure they get the full value of the coffee. They do not want to risk losing a bit of its delicious flavor.

Wherever Yuban is known it is always the most popular coffee. If you haven't tried Yuban, you should do so immediately.

Originally reserved for friends

Yuban was originally selected from all the coffees of the world for its remarkable flavor. At first, the world's greatest coffee merchants reserved Yuban for their personal use and for Christmas gifts to friends and business associates. Everyone who tasted it asked to be allowed to purchase it. Its demand increased so constantly that it was no longer reserved for private use, but was offered for sale.

In Chicago Yuban has long been the favorite coffee. Its liquor, its flavor, makes it stand out from all other coffees.

In its appetizing fragrance and its rare flavor, Yuban combines all of those characteristics that make coffee such a delight. Wherever it is tried everyone finds its fragrance so remarkable, its flavor so exquisite, that the moment they taste it they comment on it.

Be particular about the brewing of your coffee

The best coffee is often spoiled in the making. Do not leave this important item entirely to your servants. Let them try making coffee in several ways. It is very possible some other method may satisfy you better than the one you are now using.

The recipes printed below are recommended by Arbuckle Bros. For many years they have been testing coffee by various methods. These are the recipes they recommend for Yuban.

Whichever way you make coffee, be exact—be uniform. Yuban itself is always the same. There is never the slightest variation in flavor. If you make Yuban always in the same way, by your favorite recipe, every morning you can have that same delicious flavor—you can know there will be no change. You can always have coffee with which your family will be delighted.

Try Yuban today—see what a difference there is in coffee—see for yourself how much more character and life Yuban has.

Recipes

The plain ordinary way

Use one heaping dessert-spoonful of clean-cut ground Yuban to each cup of water. Put the coffee in the pot and pour over it the fresh water, briskly boiling; let the coffee steep five or ten minutes over a low heat or flame, but do not boil. Settle with a dash of cold water.

Drip coffee

Drop coffee may be made in a drip pot provided with a muslin cloth, a metal or porcelain dripper, or with filter paper. It may also be filtered through a muslin or linen cloth into a plain china pot.

If a drop pot with a cloth is used, allow a heaping teaspoonful of Yuban pulverized to each cup of fresh water, briskly boiling. Re-drip two or three times when stronger coffee is desired.

If a metal dripper or filter paper is used, allow one heaping dessert-spoonful of Yuban, clean-cut ground to each cup of fresh water briskly boiling. Allow the water to remain on coffee about five minutes to steep before releasing it.

Percolator coffee

Use a heaping dessert-spoonful of clean-cut, ground Yuban to each cup of cold water. Pour water in percolator, then place coffee in the filter. Let water percolate over coffee five or ten minutes, depending upon temperature of heat. With electric percolator take fifteen to eighteen minutes.

Why Some Foods Explode in the Stomach

By R. W. Lockwood

"THE combinations of food that most people eat three times a day inflict nothing less than a crime against their health and are the direct cause of 90% of all sickness."

This is the rather startling statement of Eugene Christian, the famous New York Food Scientist, whose wonderful system of corrective eating is receiving so much eager attention throughout the Nation at the present time.

According to Eugene Christian we eat without any thought of the relation which one food has to another when eaten at the same time. The result is that often we combine two foods each of great value in itself but which when combined in the stomach literally explode, liberating toxics which are absorbed by the blood and form the root of nearly all sickness, the first indications of which are acidity, fermentation, gas, constipation, and many other sympathetic ills leading to most serious consequences.

According to Christian, all of this can be avoided if we would only pay a little attention to the selection of our daily menus instead of eating without any regard for the consequences.

This does not mean that it is necessary to eat foods we don't like; instead Christian prescribes meals which are twice as delicious as those to which we are accustomed. Neither does he suggest proprietary or patented foods—he simply tells us which foods when eaten together produce health and energy by removing the cause of sickness.

Not long ago I was fortunate enough to be present when Eugene Christian was relating some of his experiences with corrective eating to a group of men interested in dietetics, and I was literally amazed at what he accomplished with food alone and without drugs or medicines of any kind.

One case which sticks in my mind was that of a mother and daughter who went to him for treatment. The mother was forty pounds overweight and her physician diagnosed her case as Bright's Disease. She had a sluggish liver, low blood pressure, and lacked vitality. The daughter had an extreme case of stomach acidity and intestinal fermentation, was extremely nervous, had chronic constipation, and was 30 pounds underweight.

Christian prescribed the proper food combinations for each. Within a few weeks all symptoms had disappeared, and within three months the mother had lost 33 pounds and the daughter had gained 26 pounds, and both were in perfect health—normal in every particular.

Another case which interested me greatly was that of a young man whose efficiency had been practically wrecked through stomach acidity, fermentation and constipation, resulting in physical sluggishness which was naturally reflected in his ability to use his mind. He was twenty pounds underweight when he first went to see Christian and was so nervous he couldn't sleep. Stomach and intestinal gases were so severe that they caused irregular heart action and often fits of great mental depression. As Christian describes it he was not 50% efficient either mentally or physically. Yet in a few days, by following Dr. Christian's suggestions as to food, his constipation had completely gone, although he had formerly been in the habit of taking large daily doses of a strong cathartic. In five weeks every abnormal symptom had disappeared—his weight having increased 6 pounds. In addition to this he acquired a store of physical and mental energy so great in comparison with his former self as to almost belie the fact that it was the same man.

But perhaps the most interesting case that Christian told me of was that of a multi-millionaire—a man 70 years old who had been traveling with his doctor for several years in a search for health. He was extremely emaciated, had chronic constipation, lumbago and rheumatism. For over twenty years he had suffered with stomach and intestinal trouble which in reality was super-aciduous secretions in the stomach. The first menus given him were designed to remove the causes of acidity, which was accomplished in about thirty days. And after this was done he seemed to undergo a complete rejuvenation. His eyesight, hearing, taste and all of his mental faculties became keener and more alert. He had had no organic trouble—but he was starving to death from malnutrition and decomposition—all caused by the wrong selection and combination of foods. After six months' treatment this man was as well and strong as he had ever been in his life.

These instances of the efficacy of right eating I have simply chosen at random from perhaps a dozen Eugene Christian told me of, every one of which was fully as interesting and they applied to as many different ailments. Surely this man Christian is doing a great work.

I know of several instances where rich men and women have been so pleased with what he has done for them, that they have sent him checks for $500 to $1,000 in addition to the amount of the bill when paying him.

There have been so many inquiries from all parts of the United States from people seeking the benefit of Eugene Christian's advice and whose cases he is unable to handle personally that he has written a course of little lessons which tell you exactly what to eat for health, strength and efficiency. This course is published by The Corrective Eating Society of New York.

These lessons—there are 24 of them—contain actual menus for breakfast, luncheon and dinner, curative as well as corrective, covering every condition of health and sickness from infancy to old age and for all occupations, climates and seasons.

Reasons are given for every recommendation based upon actual results secured in the author's many years of practice, although technical terms have been avoided. Every point is explained so clearly that there can be no possible misunderstanding.

With these lessons at hand it is just as though you were in personal contact with the great food specialist, because every possible point is so thoroughly covered that you can scarcely think of a question which isn't answered. You can start eating the very things that will produce the increased physical and mental energy you are seeking the day you receive the lessons and you will find that you secure results with the first meal.

If you would like to examine these 24 Little Lessons in Corrective Eating simply write The Corrective Eating Society, Inc., Dept. 1439, 443 Fourth Ave., New York City. It is not necessary to enclose any money with your request. Merely ask them to send the lessons on five days' trial with the understanding that you will either return them within that time or remit $3, the small fee asked.

The reason that the Society is willing to send the lessons on free examination without money in advance is because they want to remove every obstacle to putting this knowledge in the hands of the many interested people as soon as possible, knowing full well that a test of some of the menus in the lessons themselves are more convincing than anything that can possibly be said about them.

Please clip out and mail the following form instead of writing a letter, as this is a copy of the official blank adopted by the Society and will be honored at once.

BARRAGE AT NIGHT OF INCENDIARY GRENADES ON FRENCH FRONT—Sem, the famous French cartoonist, in his story, which is now the talk of Paris, describes a scene similar to this in this wise:

"Before us there is only an abyss of shadows. On this vast screen of an intense black gleam like a disquieting sign from heaven thousands of luminous rays, so close to each other, so dense that they form in the opaque night a sort of incandescent barrier which stretches in an immense line from one end to the other of the field of vision. All these sparkling lines are in a dizzying whirl of movement; they shoot up everywhere, rapid, agitated in an unbelievable profusion. The whole horizon is bristling with a mane of vibrating fire that the wind torments and bends back."

BRITISH HOWITZERS CLEARING THE WAY FOR AN ATTACK—The success of an advance upon the enemy's positions depends upon the thoroughness of the artillery bombardment that precedes it. These big howitzers are finding and leveling the German redoubts, dislodging light artillery and machine gun posts, and thus insuring that the infantry advance will not be made against serious handicaps. To the left may be seen one of the many light railroads over which shells are carried to the guns.

Your skin is changing every day!

Your skin, like the rest of your body, is continually changing. Every day, as old skin dies, new forms in its place. This is your opportunity. By using the following treatment regularly you can keep this new skin so active that it will gradually, but surely, take on the greater clearness, freshness and charm you want it to have.

Make this treatment a daily habit

Lather your washcloth well with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. Apply it to your face and distribute the lather thoroughly. Now with the tips of your fingers work this cleansing, antiseptic lather into your skin, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. Finish by rubbing your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice. Always be particular to dry your skin well.

Every day this treatment frees your skin of the tiny, old, dead particles. Then, it cleanses the pores, brings the blood to the surface and stimulates the small muscular fibers.

It is very easy to use this treatment for a few days and neglect it. But this will never make your skin what you would love to have it. Use it persistently and before long your skin will begin to take on that greater loveliness which the daily use of Woodbury's always brings.

A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment. Get a cake today. For sale everywhere throughout the United States and Canada.

Write today for a week's size cake

For 4c we will send you a sample cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap large enough to last for a week of any Woodbury treatment, together with the booklet "A skin you love to touch," which gives a list of skin troubles and the treatment suited to each. Send today to The Jergens Co., 5016 Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

GUNNER W. G. CLANCY of the British royal field artillery was the first American to carry the Stars and Stripes into battle on the French front. A Texan by birth, he had enlisted in Canada, and in the great victory of Vimy ridge Clancy tied an American flag to his bayonet and went with the van of the charge. He was severely wounded. As a mark of distinction he is permitted to wear a small American flag on his left arm.

Over 600,000 Sold

This is the offer of The Oliver Typewriter Company itself—a $2,000,000 concern.

The Oliver Typewriter Company gives this guarantee: The Oliver Nine we now sell direct is the exact machine—our Model No. 9—which was formerly priced at $100.

We do not offer a second-hand nor rebuilt machine. So do not confuse this new $49 Oliver with other offers.

The $51 you now save is the result of new and efficient sales methods.

Formerly there were over 15,000 Oliver salesmen and agents. We had to maintain expensive offices in 50 cities. Other costly and roundabout sales methods kept the price of typewriters around $100.

By ending all these wastes and adopting a new plan we save the American public millions of dollars.

How to Save

This is our plan: You may have an Oliver for free trial by answering this advertisement.

Or if you wish further information, check the coupon.

We will send you an Oliver Nine direct to your office or home for five days' free trial; it does not cost you a cent. Nor are you under the slightest obligation to buy.

We give you the opportunity to be your own salesman and save $51. You are the sole judge. There are no salesmen to influence you.

If you decide to keep the Oliver, pay us at the rate of $3 per month. If you do not wish to keep it, we even refund the transportation charges. That is all there is to our plan. It is simplicity itself.

A Favorite

This standard keyboard, visible Oliver has long been the world's model. If you remember, Oliver introduced visible writing.

Year after year, Oliver inventors have set the pace. Today's model—the Nine—is their greatest achievement.

Any stenographer may turn to the Oliver and operate it like any other machine. In fact, its simplicity recommends it to people who have never used a typewriter before.

This Oliver Nine is the finest, the costliest, the most successful model we have ever built. If any typewriter is worth $100, it is this handsome machine—the greatest Oliver triumph.

Regardless of price, do not spend one cent upon any typewriter—whether new, second-hand, or rebuilt—do not even rent a machine until you have investigated thoroughly our proposition.

It is waste, and therefore unpatriotic, to pay more than $49 for a brand new, standard typewriter.

The Oliver Typewriter Company, by this great, money-saving, price reducing plan, is entitled to your first consideration.

Note the two-way coupon. Send at once for the free-trial Oliver, or for our startling book entitled "The High Cost of Typewriters — The Reason and the Remedy."

This amazing book exposes the follies of the old selling plans and tells the whole story of the Oliver Rebellion. With it we send a new catalog, picturing and describing the Oliver Nine.

Don't turn over this page without clipping the coupon.

A POLISH GENTLEMAN by Rembrandt

By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"Portrait of a Polish Gentleman," by Rembrandt Harmens van Rhyn. Dutch school. [1606-1669]. Imperial Gallery, Petrograd.

REMBRANDT HARMENS was a poet and a seer, the greatest of all the Dutch painters and one of the six supreme masters of the world. In what does his genius consist? In his dramatic action and his mastery of expression he has been called the Shakespeare of Holland. His portraits have an inner life which belongs to no other faces in like degree.

In all subjects he moves us by his vast sympathy, his tragic power, his human kindly humor, and his deep pathos. It was a dark mirror which he held up to nature and he understood, more than most of even the world's geniuses, that vast, intangible mystery which lies beneath the surface of things.

Much of his sense of immeasureable power is reflected in the hard, unmitigating labor of his life, an existence which sank towards its close into deep gloom. He was born at Leyden, the fifth child of a miller, and his father's mill was the only school he knew in those early years.

It was in Amsterdam by the Zuyder Zee that he painted his famous "Anatomy Lesson," now in the museum at The Hague, and at 28 married Saskia Nilenburg, a lady of some fortune, whose short married life seems to have been spent chiefly in sitting to her husband.

During this period of Rembrandt's life, affairs went well with him, orders flowed into his studio, and it was crowded with scholars from different parts of the continent. His house, still standing in Breedstraat, was a museum of curiosity, containing richly ornamented weapons, costly materials, precious stones, and rich necklaces.

This portrait of a man with a fantastic cap, fur tippet, gold headed stick, and red robe, was formerly supposed to be John III., Sobieski, king of Poland, though recent authorities claim that Rembrandt himself was the original. In all he painted more than forty portraits of himself, many of them in strange aspects and costumes.

WHEN THE BUGLE CALLED AGAIN by Oney Fred Sweet

Showing That Once a Man Has Served "With the Colors" He Leaves an Inheritance.

ORRIN SHAW knew that whenever his wife gave a certain nervous little cough she was about to say something to him she was half afraid to say. And he was in no mood to be approached on any subject. Delivering ice was at all times a hard graft, but this day had been particularly full of wrangles and his team had been obstinate and he had wrenched his back climbing to a third floor flat in Western avenue. He had come home sweaty and swearing and Socialistic.

"Did you happen to see Sam down on the street?" apologized Mrs. Shaw, her face bent over the gas stove.

"I suppose that's all I've got to do—keep track of Sam," the husband glowered. He had dropped into his chair at the supper table, his coat off and his sleeves rolled up. "What did you have to pay today for that flour? How much? The robbers. What's the matter with that garden of yours? Ain't you got anything out of it yet. I suppose you planted the lettuce ten inches deep instead of the rows ten inches apart. Well, hurry up with what you've got. I'm hungry."

The woman turned, the coffee pot in one hand. Mrs. Shaw wasn't pretty any more. She had become stoop shouldered and she had lost the knack of fixing herself up.

"Sam—," she began.

"I suppose he's down in the pool hall," the teamster interrupted. "Funny thing he ain't around here at meal time, though. Well, what about him? What's he done?"

"He came home this afternoon," she managed, "and he said—he said he was going to enlist."

"Enlist, eh?" sneered Orrin Shaw. "Well, don't worry. I guess he'll have to see me about that."

"That's what I told him. He'd have to get your permit. But he don't have to, Orrin. I couldn't believe it myself at first. It seems only yesterday that he was a baby, but he's old enough. Wait. I know what you're going to say. You're full of all that stuff that Doc Chapman comes up here on Sunday afternoons and talks. You don't believe in war. You're going to say it's nothing but capitalism. Don't rehearse the whole thing now. Please don't. Every time after Doc's been up here and left and he's talked against churches and everything he leaves me almost sick."

The teamster, checked in what was about to be a tirade, ended by sipping his coffee and remarking decisively: "Well, no boy of mine's going to enlist in this thing. We could have kept out of it. Doc Chapman's got brains—too much for you to appreciate him. He's read a lot and he's got the right ideas. Don't worry about Sam. I guess I'll have something to say. God, but my back aches."

There was no light in any of the three little rooms after supper. The teamster took a chair by the window that looked out onto the darkened neighborhood and lit his pipe. Sam had not come home.

Melancholy, through the spring night, came the call of a bugle. Mrs. Shaw was still puttering about in the kitchen.

"Jack Meisner enlisted in the navy today," she ventured. "His mother was in to tell me, and Richard Lipsey has joined some kind of company, too. 'It made me think, Orrin—don't you remember—when you went away with Company G in the Spanish-American?"

The teamster puffed away and said nothing.

"We weren't married then, you remember," his wife went on. "I was down to the armory the morning you left and you gave me a button off your coat. I remember just how I was dressed. I had my hair done up pompadour like they were doing it then. I was out on Michigan avenue, too, when you went to the train, but you didn't notice me. You were looking straight ahead. You was only 19, but you was a corporal. You——"

"Sergeant when we was mustered out," corrected the husband.

"And then you wrote me from Tampa. The letter, don't you remember, had a flag up in one corner."

"Enlist, eh?" sneered Orrin Shaw. "Well, don't worry. I guess he'll have to see me about that."

"We were a couple of fool kids," the man muttered.

"And I sent you my picture on a stamp button. When you came back you were wearing it on your coat."

"You can remember junk like that the longest of any person I ever see. Was that fellow around here for the rent again today? Did you stall him off? He'll have to go some if he gets any rent out of me this month after that doctor bill for you and the way everything's gone up. We can move again. We've moved plenty of times before, ain't we? I'm willing to move, but I'll be damned if I'm going to fall for those substitutes for meat and potatoes you was reading about in the paper that some woman's club had doped up. Those women may be able to live on 'nutriment' instead of the way things taste, but they ain't out lugging ice all day. And another thing——"

The door at the head of the stairway had opened and some one was familiarly finding his way in the darkness. Orrin Shaw got up, lit the gas, and glared into the face of his son. Somehow he had all but forgotten that he didn't tower above the boy any more. It did seem but yesterday that the kid had surprised him and his wife by being able to stand alone by a chair.

The teamster did not speak as soon as he had intended. For the first time in looking at his boy he experienced the sensation of peering at himself as in a mirror—himself at nineteen years back. They dressed with more smartness nowadays, they had a new set of slang, but the big unchangeable thing—youth—retained the same expectant look about the eyes, the same wistfulness about the mouth. Yet Orrin Shaw had regained his place as father when he did begin:

"See here, young fellow, I've heard about this enlistment bunk. Your mother's told me. You want to forget it."

The boy stared at his father and started as if to make answer.

Now the jaws of the two stiffened at the same angle. Sam had a bundle under his arm.

"And if any of these officers pull you into their organization I'm going down there and they've got to settle with me," the teamster continued. "I guess you know how I feel about it. You've heard Doc Chapman and me talking up here. If I'd known you had anything like that in your head I'd have put a stop to it long ago. You're such a kid that you think all this 'Stars and Stripes' stuff is great dope. You want to fight for your country, huh! What's this wonderful country done for me?—been working like a dog all my life and can't pay my rent. Who put the idea into your head, anyhow?"

"I——"

"You've heard some of these fine speeches. You're full of school history. I know. Well, you're not going to go. That's settled. Going to jump right in the first time you hear a bugle call? I guess not."

Orrin Shaw walked back to his chair by the window and the boy went on to his room. The teamster's face wore a deepened scowl. He puffed his pipe with renewed vigor.

From where he sat he directly faced an enlarged crayon portrait above the sofa—the sofa that Sam had broken the springs out of when he had emerged from babyhood. The crayon picture was of Sam when he had been 8 years old. It was a poor piece of work that Mrs. Shaw had bought of a talkative agent, and she had always hung it prominently in every flat into which they had moved. The sofa had been bought on the installment plan.

Orrin Shaw started to go to bed. Here lately his muscles didn't seem to be able to bear the gaff as in the old days. At times he had an idea he must be getting rheumatism. He was half way across the room when a door opened and Sam stood before him. He was in khaki. He hadn't mastered the trick of adjusting his leggings yet, but his campaign hat tilted as a "regular" would have had it with a leather strap knotted at the back of his head. Orrin had worn hot blue in '98—blue with white stripes on the sleeve and down the sides of his trousers to show his sergeant's rank. For just an instant the eyes of the two met and then Sam passed on into the kitchen, where his mother was still somehow finding something to keep her occupied. The older man did not go into the kitchen to interrupt. He went back to his chair by the window, looking out. His lips were tightened. He guessed he was boss yet. He would still have something to say.

But on leaving his mother Sam returned to give but a parting glance to his father and was gone on down the stairs to the street.

The teamster found his wife in the kitchen, still bending over a pan that really needed no more scouring. She turned toward him and the hand that held the cloth went up and about his shoulder.

In response he patted her. His eyes—moist and with a vision in them—were looking straight ahead as on that morning when she had seen him marching down Michigan avenue.

"There's nothing to worry about," he finally soothed, huskily, and then—and there was a tremble of pride as he squared his shoulders—"I hadn't paid much attention to the kid these last few years, but I'll be damned if he ain't—if he ain't built of the real stuff."

A GAME of TAG

by Elizabeth Jordan

This is the first of a series of clean, pleasant romances by Miss Jordan which will appear in The Sunday Tribune.

THEY had [illegible] forever. That fact, the one certainty in a most uncertain world, filled "Billy" Bailey's consciousness. To him, at 23, both life and love had lost their glamor—that is, if she had really thrown him over. All that lay before him now was work, and work, someway, had never especially appealed to him, probably because he had never given it a fair chance. Even at this moment, when it offered its bony breast as a refuge from his misery, he regarded it without enthusiasm.

There was no hurry about going to work. First, he would see Edith again, make one last appeal, grovel if she wished—and perhaps she would give him another chance.

His black depression lifted a little as he made the decision, and he crossed the room to his desk with a swing and vigor in his movements which they had wholly lacked during the last week. He even whistled softly as he selected a pen and began his note begging for an interview.

It was short, but every word was a tribute to the glory of Edith, and an admission of the utter insignificance of everything in himself save his great love for her. He sealed the letter, called a messenger boy, and sent it to her at once. Then, with Hope once more at his elbow, he went down to the hotel dining room and ate a highly satisfactory luncheon.

His sense of well being, however, was rudely jarred by the phenomenally prompt return of the messenger, who, having been earnestly charged to hurry and to bring back the answer, had done his best according to his opportunities. He was back, but he was still conspicuously grasping Billy's note, which bore evidences of having passed through several hands.

"Nothin' doin'," he announced, defensively.

Stunned, young Bailey regarded the letter, then addressed him as man to man.

"She didn't send it back?" he stammered.

"Naw. She wasn't there. She's gone to Europe."

"Gone to Europe!"

For an instant Billy could not take it in. He had imagined everything but this.

"How do you know?" he added quickly. "Who told you so?"

"House all boarded up. Saw the caretaker. And, say, you said you'd gimme a dollar if I hustled."

Billy gave him the dollar, got rid of him, and thought hard.

He and Edith had hosts of friends in common. Undoubtedly they had been restrained from telling him of her departure by what they considered the most delicate tact. Quietly but fervently he confided his opinion of them and their tact to the unresponsive walls of his room. Then hurrying to the telephone he called up one of them and, fortunately, found her at home. Breathlessly he poured forth his story, and as she listened the heart of Mrs. Mayhew softened.

"I'm so sorry, Billy," she said. "I supposed, of course, you knew. Edith and her mother sailed for Triest yesterday. No, I don't know how long they'll be gone. They didn't say. It was all arranged so hastily that I fancy they didn't make any definite plans beyond just going over. But they're going straight from Triest to Vienna, and I heard Edith say something about Hungary and Roumania and Greece."

Billy listened in sick dismay. This was worse than he had expected, for in the days before the engagement Edith and her mother had thought nothing of remaining in Europe a year at a time.

"Does any one else know any more about it than you do?" he bluntly asked Mrs. Mayhew.

She was sure no one else did.

"Why don't you foolish children kiss and make up?" she asked kindly. "I thought Edith looked wretchedly unhappy the other night."

"O, did she?" Billy grinned widely over these sad tidings. Edith jubilantly sailing toward the Adriatic was a picture he could not have contemplated. But Edith hastening to the world's end to deaden the dull ache of a broken heart was a wholly reassuring vision. At the same time he did not intend to let her suffer a moment longer than was necessary.

He was a singularly energetic young person, and, once resolved to "get Edith back," as he expressed it to himself, he lost no time in pursuing that laudable purpose. He counted his ready money, cashed a check for more, and sailed for Europe the next morning. It seemed safe to assume that, taking the leisurely voyage of the southern route, they would be in Vienna in two weeks.

"I'll take the northern route and beat them to it," Billy told himself elegantly.

But he had failed to take into consideration the fickle nature of women. On the second day of his voyage he received a wireless message from Mrs. Mayhew:

"Just learned they decided to leave ship at Gibraltar and travel in Spain. First hotel, Reina Christina, Algeciras."

Mr. Bailey read the message and then hastened to a lonely spot on the upper deck where, untrammeled by convention, he could express his feelings to the unsympathetic sea.

Taking into consideration the admitted uncertainties of travel by airships and automobiles, young Bailey decided that the safest and quickest method was to travel by rail. As long as his journeying was confined to France this theory was quite correct, but when he reached Spanish soil the difficulty of getting anywhere by any means seemed at times so insuperable that even the intrepid lover almost gave up hope. All trains, leaving for any point, seemed to start at some gray, mysterious hour toward dawn. But at last he reached Gibralter, and with leaping heart embarked in the little packet boat that plies between "the Rock" and Algeciras.

The dignified young Englishwoman in the office of the Reina Christina was pained by the abruptness of his manner.

"Here," cried the young man irritably. "Their names wouldn't be registered last month. Look at this week's entries. They must have arrived two or three days ago."

Thus guided, the slow fingers of the clerk moved toward the more recent registrations. "It mightn't be Mrs. Henry White of Albany?" she suggested. She had been there four days ago. No?

"Might this be the lady?" she then asked timidly. It might be, and indeed it was. With difficulty the young person recalled her. According to the records (and this required another search), Mrs. White and Miss White had remained only until morning. The clerk's manner was becoming weary. She had not the remotest idea where they had gone next; and now there was a distinct edge to her voice.

The porter who attended to the luggage of his friends might remember to what destination he had booked it. She summoned that excellent and intelligent employé, explained the gentleman's wishes, and the whole situation cleared almost miraculously. The porter's memory, stimulated into hectic activity by the gift of 5 pesos, recalled facts in almost embarrassing detail. He had attended to everything for the ladies, and had booked their luggage through to Seville. It was only nine hours to Seville; one ought to reach there inside of two days. They were probably just arriving. Following them, the gentleman could leave on the earliest boat in the morning—there was, alas! no other boat tonight. And, yes, sir; thank you again, sir, Billy should be awakened at dawn and presumably—so great was the porter's zeal!—carried on board.

He reached Seville two days later, and went at once to the principal hotel, at which he expected to find Mrs. White and Edith. They were not there; but awaiting him, having traveled with something approaching speed via Spain's "fast mail," was a letter forwarded by the attentive porter at Algeciras. It was from his sister, and had been at the Reina Christina when he arrived, but the exacting duties he had put upon the young lady at the desk, he gathered, had driven it from her mind. Without much eagerness Billy opened the envelope; then, a sentence claiming his attention, reread it with shining eyes:

"The day after you sailed a letter came to your hotel addressed in Edith's handwriting. The clerk remailed it to father, as you had left no other instructions. I'm not at all sure where you're going to be, so I'm sending this note on a chance. But I don't want to risk remailing Edith's letter until I hear from you. It may be important. So I'll hold it here."

A letter from Edith—that was news. Should he cable his sister to read it and cable the contents? No. It might be merely another "farewell forever," and Mollie, he remembered, had a confoundedly keen sense of humor. Besides, he'd see Edith herself in a day or two more, and she would tell him what was in the letter.

But two days passed and he found no trace of the Whites in Seville. It seemed obvious that they had changed their plans and not come there at all. In his inquiries he was greatly handicapped by his ignorance of Spanish and by the national Spanish ignorance of any other tongue. They might yet come, so he dared not leave. They might have gone straight on to Madrid, so he was afraid to remain. He waited, however, but on the edge of his nerves, whiling away his time by cabling inquiries to Mrs. Mayhew. At the end of his fifth day in Seville he received a cable from her. It read:

"Hear they abandoned Spanish tour, and sailed from Gibraltar to Naples on seventeenth."

Billy ground his teeth. The seventeenth! That was the day he had started from Algeciras for Seville. And even as he started Mrs. White and Edith had been just twenty minutes away from him, comfortably taking ship at Gibraltar. He went to Gibraltar in a desperate frame of mind. He would take the next boat that sailed from there. If its destination happened to be Naples, all right; he would go to Naples. If, on the other hand, it was sailing for New York, he would take it and go home; he was sick of this wild goose chase.

By a stroke of luck—the first he had experienced since he left America, he told himself bitterly—a steamer stopped at Gibraltar the day he arrived there. Within two hours he was sailing toward Naples. He knew Edith's favorite haunts in Italy. She would stay in Naples a few days, he thought, at Bertolini's. Then she would surely go to Amalfi, stopping for a day or two, perhaps, at Sorrento. It seemed certain that in or near Naples he would catch up with her at last—and where could there be a more perfect spot to meet Edith again than on the Capuchin terrace at Amalfi?

At Bertolini's Billy was greeted with seeming rapture by the head clerk, who remembered his visit there the year before. But the face of this gentleman clouded with a deep sorrow when he had heard the young man's eager questions. Was Mrs. James Frederick White in the hotel now, or had she been here? Alas! no.

Slowly, heavily, Billy turned away. Then he went down to the steamship office and took passage on the first ship home.

"Ought to have had sense enough to do that from Gibraltar," he told himself. "There's Edith's letter; everything in it, the whole thing settled one way or the other. And here I've been gadding about like a maniac."

He did not linger at all in New York, but hurried on to Boston, going straight from his steamer to the train, delighting his sister as well as impressing his father by this unusual expedition. He arrived in the early evening and found them both at home. Almost before their greetings were said he drew Mollie to one side and demanded this letter. His sister stared at him.

"Didn't you get it at your hotel?" she asked. "I sent it there—mailed it last night." Then, at the expression of his face, she put her arms around him. "O, Billy!" she cried. "You poor boy! And I thought I was so clever to have it waiting in New York, so you'd get it without an hour's delay. I never dreamed you'd rush home without going there."

Billy bowed his head. The whole world seemed topsy-turvy. Everything, he felt, and every one, had conspired against him.

"Well, never mind," he said ungraciously. "Let me have what mail there is. I suppose there's some."

"O, yes, a heap."

Mollie went for it and brought the pile to his room, lingering lovingly with him while he opened the letters. He had glanced at all the addresses and postmarks before he opened any, but Mollie saw by his expression that he had not found what he wanted. He tore open the envelopes listlessly, dropping bills on the floor, half reading and tossing aside personal letters and invitations. Then he rose.

"You'll look after these, won't you?" he asked. "Just say 'No' to everything."

"But, Billy, where are you going?"

"New York," he announced briefly and started downstairs. Mollie followed him and, while he was picking up his hat and handbag, hurriedly explained the situation to his father. That gentleman appeared in the hall just as his erratic son was opening the door leading to the street.

"Hold on, Billy," he called. "What nonsense is this? Can't you bear with us one night at least?"

"Sorry," said poor Billy, stopping reluctantly; and he added, vaguely, something that sounded like "'portant 'sness."

The elder Mr. Bailey uttered a sound expressing contempt. "Business!" he repeated ironically. "Billy, you're acting like a fool."

"I know it," admitted Billy, ignobly, and closed the door.

When he reached his hotel in New York he checked the buoyant greeting of the night clerk by demanding his mail.

"Everything's gone on to Boston, Mr. Bailey," said that unfortunate, blithely. "We've forwarded all your mail since you went away."

"Damn you!" said the young man intensely and retired to his own rooms.

After breakfast he strolled out on the avenue with some vague notion of looking up some one who knew something. His mind, dazed by recurrent disappointments, was apparently failing him, too. And then, as if fate had wearied of him as its toy, it tossed a favor his way. Before he had gone three blocks from his hotel he met Mr. Horace White, unimportant in himself but great in the eyes of Billy Bailey as the uncle of Edith. The fervor of the greeting Mr. White received was so great that the phlegmatic gentleman was unable to conceal his surprise. He was hurrying to his office and had stopped reluctantly, obviously unable to see why he should waste precious business time in conversation with Billy Bailey. But after a sharp glance at the young man's face his expression changed.

"What's the matter with you, Billy?" he asked kindly. "You're looking seedy."

Billy had entered upon the jocund day enveloped in a wretchedness so complete that it scorned concealment. It was from the depths of this that he answered.

"I guess you know what's the matter," he muttered.

The other looked at him again thoughtfully. Then he yielded to a rare impulse of friendly sympathy.

"Edith, I suppose?" he asked.

"Of course."

Edith's uncle glanced at his watch, then snapped it shut with a movement of decision. He could give this young man another minute.

"Sorry," he said. "But, since you feel that way, why don't you fix things up?"

Billy uttered a laugh he intended should sound sardonic but which merely sounded pitiful.

"Takes two," he explained. Then, with a wild impulse of hope, "Would Edith——"

Horace White was a busy man, with no time for beating about the bush.

"Would she?" he echoed. "You bet she would. Been eating her heart out ever since the quarrel. Fix it up. Goodby."

He was off, but Billy pursued him.

"Here, wait a minute," he begged. "Where can I write her?"

The other paused. "Write the devil!" he exclaimed. "Go and see her. That's the best way."

"But where—where?" cried Billy, grasping his elbow. "I've been chasing her and her mother all over Europe. Where is she now?"

Horace White turned and stared at him. Then he seemed to understand.

"Why, you young idiot," he said, almost affectionately, "it's my daughter that's in Europe with Mrs. White. At the last minute Edith wouldn't go. She's been right around the corner for a month, ostensibly keeping house for me but really waiting for you to call."

THE PEKING PUG

In Quest of Which the Searcher Finds Adventure in Plenty.

"AND, O, Edith! While you're in Peking, won't you get me one of those darling Peking pugs—a blue and white one? You can give it to me when we meet at Yokohama. Probably I could buy one in New York, but it would never be the same. I want to know that mine actually came from the wonderful old city—and direct to me! You just can't imagine how I envy you that part of your tour. I think it was perfectly dear of your uncle and aunt to take you there! But aren't you just a teeny bit afraid, with everybody saying the revolution may break out yet—any second?"

Mrs. Wilberly, who was on the couch with one of her nervous headaches, dropped the letter to her lap, saying: "What on earth does Harriet mean by a Peking pug, Edith?"

Miss Austin turned toward her aunt a girlish face that exhibited no trace of whatever adventurous desires may have been stirring behind it. The hazel eyes were wide and demure. Though she had been lounging in her room all this rather tiresome afternoon, her fluffy brown hair was in place to the last strand, her shirtwaist was immaculate, her perfect fitting cloth skirt was as trim as if it had just been ironed to her figure.

"O, you know," she replied, rather absently—"tiny sleeve dog with long hair and cunning little eyes.'

"But who ever heard of a blue and white dog? Chinaware, porcelain—yes. But a dog!"

"There are queerer things than that in China," replied Miss Austin sagely, opening the door to the adjoining room, then lingering a moment to ask: "Uncle Frank hasn't sent any word, has he?"

"No; he's still out with those English engineers. He says there will be a fortune here in coal and iron after the revolution."

An expression that might have meant great inner impatience flitted across Miss Austin's face. But she composed herself instantly, and gazed with meditative eyes toward the window. "I was just thinking," she mused, "that it might not be too late yet to go out somewhere and buy the dog." She lingered a moment longer, then suddenly turned and entered her own room.

"Be careful about going out alone!" called her aunt in a voice that rose nervously.

But the door had closed.

Mrs. Wilberly sank back among the cushions and sighed. She wished Frank would give a little of his time to this lively and puzzling young person. It was simply wearing her out. "Girls," she reflected, "are becoming utterly unmanageable—what with all the ideas of emancipation and independence they pick up nowadays." That this very hotel, here in the legation quarter of Peking, sheltered at the moment a horridly fascinating assemblage of adventurers and adventuresses from every corner of the earth appeared rather to please Edith than otherwise; that until the lull of the last few weeks foreign troops had been arriving by every train and panicky Manchus and Chinese residents had been heaping into carts their gold and silver, their bronzes, ivories, porcelains, cloisonnes, silks, jades and carvings, and streaming frantically out through every gate of the Tartar city, seemed merely to stir the girl to a romantic impatience for the event.

Mrs. Wilberly pressed her hands to her throbbing temples, and reflected on the burden he bears who assumes responsibility for another life.

Miss Austin came slowly down the broad stairway into the main hall of the hotel, pausing on the lowest step for a glance at the gay, exotic scene before her. She made a pleasing picture in her jaunty turban and well tailored costume.

The walls of the passage blazed with the mandarin coats, skirts, and squares of embroidery that privileged venders were offering for sale. Moving about, chatting quietly, sipping tea or whisky and soda with richly gowned women, were officers in the uniforms of many nations, nearly all with the blurred eyes of the hard drinker, yet all vigorous of body. Dignified, cynical gentlemen from various legations were in evidence here and there. Almost at her elbow, two Russians, a Norwegian, and a Chinese mandarin were talking together in French. "Shanghai isn't the Paris of the east," she thought. "This is. A little pasteboard Paris." In a near corner sat a group of weary tourists in wrinkled clothing who were asking one another—snatches of their conversation floated to Edith's ears—whether, in the event of actual revolution, this fortified legation quarter would really be safer than the seaport of Tientsin.

Her breath came more quickly, and a barely perceptible heightening of color intensified the beauty of her girlishly immobile face. She was aware, moving slowly through the queerly mixed little gathering, that she ought to resent the really alarming glances of these fascinating officers; but no resentment could stand against the rising sense of sheer adventurous delight that had set her nerves tingling. She had to pick her away around the wizened old native conjurer who was sitting on his heels in the midst of his glass bowls and lacquered flower pots and mysterious lumpy objects under colored cloths. And as she stepped out on the porch there was a faint, happy smile dancing in her eyes and hovering about her mouth—a smile that died suddenly when she found herself face to face with Capt. Waters and the girl gambler.

She had met the captain a number of times since he had proved useful to her uncle in arranging one or two rather important introductions. He was a man of nearly middle age, with a close cropped mustache, a flushed face with minute but observable purple veins over the cheek bones and on the nose, watery blue eyes with a network of criss-cross lines under each, and magnificent shoulders. Edith had lately made a point of avoiding him.

The girl gambler, on the other hand, was easily the most interesting person in the hotel. Apparently she lived there alone. In the dining room she had a table to herself. Except in the evenings, she invariably wore a simple blue middy blouse and a short blue skirt; and her black hair hung loose on her collar, gathered in a bow at the neck. "She makes up for 16," thought Edith, "looks 20, and is probably all of 25."

The girl's eyes were a strange, pale blue, the palest eyes Edith had ever seen. In figure she was slim. Her thin face was cold, verging on the ascetic, and appeared always to be under perfect control. A strange, silent person who appeared to have no friends and no emotions, yet was inexplicably attractive. The one definitely known fact regarding her was that she was to be found any evening in the year presiding over a gambling "club" just outside the quarter and not so far from the Italian glacis.

The two moved squarely into the doorway as Edith came out—there was no escaping them. The captain was saying something in a low voice—something that had to be broken off short in the middle of a word.

Embarrassed, Miss Austin looked away from the captain to the girl. And the girl, some faintly humorous thought flickering about her pale eyes, returned the gaze with a rather pleasing directness.

Meantime Capt. Waters' alcoholic flush had deepened to a rich red. "Miss Austin," he finally got out, "Miss Carmichael."

The two girls smiled as they bowed; and with that smile went an unexpected wordless flash of understanding.

"You were going out—alone?" asked the captain, after a moment.

Miss Austin nodded briskly. "Why not!"

"Well—it will be dark within the hour, Miss Austin."

Edith repressed an impulse to say: "I am perfectly able to take care of myself, thank you!" Instead she merely inquired: "Isn't there a native market near by where you can buy dogs?"

The captain looked densely at her without replying; but Miss Carmichael nodded. "Not so near, though," she said. "It's quite a way up the Hata High street."

"My dear girl," the captain put in, quite himself now, and genuinely shocked, "you weren't thinking of going clean out of the quarter—by yourself!"

Edith nodded, with smiling eyes but compressed lips.

"Then you must surely let me go with you."

He was insistent. Edith shrank from the prospect. "But after all," she thought, "perhaps it would be safer with him than without him, especially as I don't know where the market is. And of course he won't insult me. He'll have to behave."

The captain hurried in for his coat. Miss Carmichael's eyes followed him; then she turned and looked thoughtfully at Miss Austin. "You won't like my suggesting it," she remarked quietly, "but why don't you wait until morning and go with your own folks."

Miss Austin bristled, and was pointedly silent.

The girl gambler gave a little shrug. "I know him," she said. "He's the wrong sort."

Miss Austin pursed her lips and turned away. Then the captain was with them again and was struggling into his coat. He quite unnecessarily took Edith's arm as they started down the steps. She withdrew it and moved away from him, chatting with perfect composure as she walked along. And Miss Carmichael stood looking after them closely until they had passed out through the courtyard, stepped into separate rickshaws, and whirled away. For a moment longer she stood there—thinking of this ungoverned, desperate life of "the coast" through which little Miss Austin was moving with utter innocence but with an adventurous question in her demure eyes. She wondered what that aunt was thinking of. Was she insane? The uncle was a fool, of course; all men are fools. But the aunt ought to feel a little responsibility. On the coast, of all places! Did she suppose you can feed a male brute on whisky, gin, and the coast ladies for five years and then expect him to know adventurous innocence when he sees it?

Miss Carmichael started slowly down the steps; hesitated; came back to the porch; hesitated again; and finally stood motionless, her pale eyes turned toward the street and the line of waiting rickshaws. And she drew her thin lip in between her teeth.

Edith Austin breathed deep and looked about with joy in her heart. For two days she had been cooped up in the hotel; now she could fill her healthy young lungs again with the crisp November air. All along legation street were soldiers—meek, machinelike Germans, snappy little Japanese, slouching American marines, brigandish Italians, loose breeched French—walking and loafing by twos and threes. There were extra sentries at the gatehouse of each legation compound. Long heaps of reserve sand bags were piled along the curbs like paving material. From somewhere—nowhere—floated the magic notes of a bugle.

Lifting her eyes, she could see the top of the fifty foot Tartar wall that backs and dominates the legation quarter. There were sentries up there, too—toy men silhouetted against the radiant sky. Just beyond either end of the confines of the quarter, more than a mile apart, loomed the great square pagodas over the Chien and Hata gates. She knew that these, like the wall, were occupied now—the Hatamen by German troops, the Chienmen by American—in order that the perils of 1900 might not be invited again. Each structure stood broad and high, 200 feet and more. And even in the fading, varicolored light of the afterglow she could distinguish the gay reds and blues and greens of the painted woodwork and the intricately carved outlines of the curving eaves.

The hotel might be a pasteboard Paris; this, this was Peking—Peking the swarming, Peking the ramshackle, Peking the barbaric, Peking the enchanting. Hidden somewhere to the south were the glories and grotesqueries of the Temple of Heaven. At their backs, northwest, stood the red brick walls and the glazed yellow roofs of the Forbidden City. She wished, for the moment, that the scattered mutterings of revolution might really gather and break. Then perhaps the royal Manchu family would flee again through those sacred gates as in 1900; perhaps beautiful, painted harem girls would seek refuge here in the quarter; perhaps wonderful old eunuchs, right out of Marco Polo and the Arabian Nights, would come flying in terror from within the secret walls that had hidden the intrigues of an empire.

For a moment the two rickshaws ran side by side. Capt. Waters looked across at the glowing face beside him; then, with speeding pulse, dropped his eyes.

A German sentry stopped them at the east gate, marked the captain's uniform, saluted, and stood aside. They swung across the flat glacis to the wide and populous Hata street. As they turned north the captain showed his teeth and pointed ahead. The light was fading fast, but she could make out a long string of laden camels approaching, swaying and dipping and winding above the traffic of the street like an endless brown serpent.

"You see," he called across, "the danger is past now. Traffic is going on again. You can trust John Chinaman's instinct."

Edith looked about. Hundreds of yellow skinned ones were passing; coolies in tatters or bare of back and leg, merchants in long blue gabardines and black skull caps with red buttons. A few young men caught her eye, fell in and ran behind her, shouted oriental insults and swelled to a crowd.

The rickshaws were close. "Are you sure it is safe?" asked Edith.

The captain scattered them with a look and a word. "Perfectly," he replied then. "They would do this any time. There's always some anti-foreign feeling, you know."

"Baron von Ketteler was killed here in 1900!" he called, a moment later, indicating a marble arch that spanned the road. They passed under it and on, on deeper into the heart of the Tartar city. A thousand yellow sparkles were twinkling now in the fringe of shops on either side of the highway; a row of electric lights suddenly flared out overhead.

The captain shouted at the rickshaw men. They turned off, picked a way through the crowd, and entered a narrow side street. It was nearly dark here. The captain stepped down and came to her side.

"We'll leave the rickshaws here," he said, "and have a look-see on foot."

He reached up to take her hand, but she eluded him and leaped to the pavement as nimbly as a boy. As she did so she was uncomfortably aware that his eyes were intent on the free movements of her slim body. Then he took her arm and guided her along the crowded footway, up the dim little street.

They stopped before a row of barred and shuttered buildings.

"That's what I was afraid of," said the captain easily. "We're too late. Not much doing here after nightfall, you know. They haven't learned yet all that artificial light will do for them. I guess it's a case of go back to the hotel—that is, if you feel you must hurry." He consulted his watch. "It's early—not much after 5. We might walk along the big street and see the sights."

Miss Austin looked squarely at him and shook her head. "No," she said; "we'll go back."

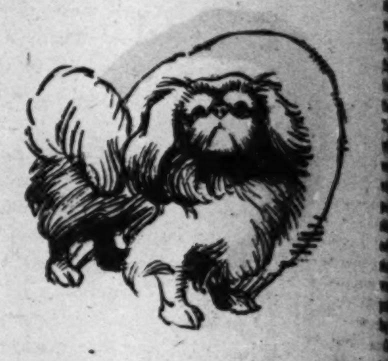
There was something in the quality of her voice that caused him to relax his hold on her arm. A puzzled expression flitted into his eyes and out again.

"See," he observed in a casual voice as they turned, "if you are still thinking of any possible danger, look at that."

Wheeling into the narrow way from the Hatamen street came an imposing procession of mule litters and carts, preceded by a huge, gaudily decorated sedan chair with eight bearers and as many outrunners.

"It's some rich Chinaman," the captain went on, "coming back with his wives and his treasures. A fortnight ago they were all flying to the seacoast for foreign protection. This tells the story. If there was the slightest danger you'd never see that outfit turning into this street. John, I tell you, is a wise person—the wisest on earth."

The natives were crowding against the buildings to make way for the great man. Miss Austin stood on tiptoe and looked over a blue shoulder.



Behind the glass front of the red chair some object was moving. It was a face, doubtless the face of the personage. She looked past it to the row of three, four, five litters. Was there a wife—or a concubine—shut away in each? How would it seem to be one of a man's several women? That was certainly what you had to submit to in China. Perhaps—she was thinking of the man at her side with the big shoulders and the watery blue eyes—perhaps the experience was not wholly unknown to the secretmost hearts of patient women in western lands. She wished she hadn't come with him—even moved half a step away from him, almost against a staring yellow man. Why did men have to be like that? Why were they always brushing your hand, or holding your arm, or scheming to build up the preliminaries of a kiss? She controlled a physical impulse to shudder. If the man only knew how she hated to be touched!

A dark figure appeared on a roof farther down the street, at a point that the red chair was about to pass. He wore baggy trousers and leggings, a carbine slung across his back, a small turban on his head, and on his left wrist a falcon. By this token she knew him for a Manchu.

The man slowly raised his right hand, poised it for an instant, then threw something that might have been a piece of pipe and that circled slowly, end over end, into the shadows of the street.

"A bomb!"

She heard the word; then before her mind could compass the situation Capt. Waters lifted her off the ground and almost threw her back into a recessed doorway.

There was an explosion that flattened her against the wood as if it meant to drive her through, that tore at her ear drums, that rocked the ground under her feet, that hurled sprawling figures against her. For a moment she was unconscious. She must have fallen into the captain's arms. Certainly, when her brain cleared, he was gripping her close in his iron left arm, and his right was in the act of lowering an automatic pistol. She wondered if he had been shooting.

Her eyes opened wider, and she made an effort to free herself. It must have been a weak effort, for he paid not the slightest attention to it. He was staring out into the little street, that was now a smoking litter of wreckage. The dust got into her throat and made her cough. Her eyes smarted dreadfully. The captain raised his revolver again, hesitated, then lowered it. She tried to make out what he was looking at, and then peered up and down the roadway.

The red chair had disappeared entirely; indeed, what appeared to be a piece of it was lying almost at her feet. Where it had been when the bomb fell the street was choked with a confused tangle of bricks, boards, mules, and human bodies.

The captain suddenly turned and looked straight down at her. The expression in his eyes first frightened, then angered her. She tried again to push him away, but realised, with a sinking of the heart, that she was weak and faint. In her confusion of mind it

They had got nearly to the Hata street when the captain again stopped and held her close to the wall.

"Better go slow here," he said. "There may be trouble outside. Keep ready with that pistol."

There was again something disturbing in his nearness to her. His voice had become hoarse and unsteady, and he seemed to be trying not to look at her. The veins stood out sharply on his flushed forehead. Not knowing what to say or do, she raised the pistol and showed him that her finger was caressing the trigger.

Suddenly he turned and looked deep into her eyes.

"Maybe I was too—well, too rough back there," he began, a note of excitement rising in his voice as he went on. Edith felt herself growing cold and shrinking back against the wall. "Maybe I took too much for granted—perhaps you didn't mean it. God, how do I know what you mean! But feeling you there by me—in my arms—your face so near. . . ."

Again his arms were about her shoulders, holding her close to him. A blaze of hot anger rushed up within her. She wrestled her right arm free and waved the pistol unsteadily.

"My God, girl!" he cried. "You don't mean——" Then he caught her wrist.

Suddenly Miss Austin's tense body relaxed. Her face lighted with a shock of surprise that ran swiftly off into relief. For picking her way coolly up the narrow street, her long blanket coat, thrown back, exposing a blue middy blouse, a boy's plaid cap on her head, a matter of fact expression on her thin face, was the girl gambler.

Capt. Waters caught the expression on Miss Austin's face, and was puzzled. Then he turned.

"Hello," said Miss Carmichael coolly. "I followed you up. Thought I'd like one of those dogs myself." She was quietly looking them over as she spoke. "The row's most finished, I guess. The police are running all over the place. They'll be in here before long, cutting off heads. Better get out before they begin—it's so spattery."

The captain was biting upward at his mustache. "Think we'll have trouble getting back?"

"We might, a little. But it's unnecessary. There's a mission within five minutes of here—American, too. Let's get her over there. Say, Miss Austin, there's some one trying to talk to you back there. Friend of yours?"

The Tartar of the split lip, still squatting by the body in the red and gold robe, was beckoning and smiling eagerly. He pointed at his prize, and beckoned again.

"He certainly thinks he's got a joke there," said Miss Carmichael. "Watch him."

The soldier, still laughing heartily, raised the arm that was clasped across the dead girl's breast and prodded at the embroidered sleeve. Out crawled the smallest dog Edith had ever seen—a jet black, almost blue black, silky haired, pug nosed little creature with one white ear. The hair of his back and sides hung almost to his feet. His beady eyes peered out through a black and white jungle. If he had not been so absurdly small—surely no more than seven or eight inches in length—he might almost have passed for a cocker spaniel. As it was, there was no mistaking him.

"A Peking pug!" cried Miss Austin. All the inner torment of the last ten minutes dropped from her like a discarded cloak. Her eyes danced. Her pistol clattered to the pavement and was forgotten; she did not even know that the captain, with a queer, dense expression of face, picked it up and without a word put it in his pocket. Nor was she aware that the strangely pale eyes of Miss Carmichael were studying them both out of a cool, expressionless face.

The soldier gathered up the dog in one hand, shook it playfully, and held it out. Miss Austin ran back and took it.

"Is it really for me?" she cried, wholly unconscious that she was speaking in English to a Manchu. "O, how nice of you! Thank you ever, ever so much!"

The soldier rose and bowed, clasping his hands before his breast. Edith had never seen a man bow with such utter grace; she suddenly felt crude, as if she were the barbarian. Then, still smiling, as with a pleasing memory, the Tartar knelt by the body of the dead girl and swiftly, one after another, tore the gold mounted rubies from her fingers.

The native police were ranging the Hata street, beheading looters as they caught them. The shooting had stopped, except the occasional crack of a revolver to the southward. Every house and shop was closed; every private light was out. A primitive fire company, dashing to the scene of trouble in the market street, had the deserted highway almost to itself.

The big white man and the two girlish figures walked northward in silence.

"Are you all right?" whispered Miss Carmichael when the two had fallen a little behind. "Was he ugly?"

Miss Austin was cuddling the dog close to her face, like a muff. At the question she puckered her brows as if trying to remember something, and a look of pain came into her pretty eyes.

"O—it hardly matters now," she said. And then, as if realizing the girlish inadequacy of her reply, added: "But it was good of you to come."

"Certainly, when her brain cleared, he was gripping her close in his iron left arm, and his right was in the act of lowering an automatic pistol."

Miss Carmichael fell silent. But when the captain started to turn in toward the gate of the mission compound she rested a light hand on his arm and whispered something. Then she herself rang the bell; and when a Chinese servant answered, pressed back against the wall and kept the captain by her.

"Go in," she called to Miss Austin, "go in. Good-night. Don't forget that your dog is a delicate little mite. Don't give him meat without chopping it very fine. Good-night."

"Why—" faltered Miss Austin—"aren't you coming, too?"

"No—not in there. You're best alone. It's safe enough for us, now that the row's over." And slipping her arm through the captain's, she hurried him away.

Well around the corner she stopped short, clasped her two hands about the captain's big forearm, and looked up into his face that was baffled and sullen. "What's the matter, Jim?" she whispered.

"Never you mind," he growled.

"You were roughing it with the girl. I saw it. I didn't think you were a dirty coward, Jim. But I guess you are. You're like the rest—one of the worst, really. They've kept you on the coast too long. It's got you, the way it gets all of them sooner or later. Sometimes—I even think it's got—me."

"Didn't think anything would ever get you," muttered the captain.

"Never mind that now. What about this girl? Haven't you got any brains left? Can't you see she doesn't talk our language? Can't you see she's decent, Jim?"

Capt. Waters chewed his lip. "How was I to help it! She had me going—I was razy. I can't—now look here, I've got to go back to that dam' hotel and talk to her uncle and try to remember I'm an officer. An officer—O, God! Guess you're right, Dixie. The coast's got me. It's got me, all right. But talking this way don't help. I'd like to know what I'm to do. I've got to go back to that dam' hotel—I——"

"Shut up, Jim," said Miss Carmichael. Still clasping his arm, she leaned back against the wall. Her face looked white and delicate in the faint light. Her usually hard mouth had softened. "There's a few things I ain't, Jim," she breathed. "I'm a gambler, yes. I work for big Tex Connor of Shanghai, yes. But there's a few things I ain't. There's no man ever made love to me in Peking—not in Peking. . . . Jim, you leave that girl alone. Do you get me? They'll only be here a week or two. I guess there's a little plain manhood left in you somewhere." She caught her breath. Her pale eyes were luminous. Something that might have been either a sob or a bitter little laugh escaped her. Under pretense of brushing back a straying lock of hair she covered her face for a moment with her hand. Then her head drooped and sank against his breast. His arm slid about her shoulders.

"Let that child alone, Jim," she murmured. "I—I'll help you, Jim, if—if—— Let her alone, that's all!"

Capt. Waters, between density, surprise, and weakness, looked down at the dark head against his coat. "Hell," he muttered, "you're acting as if you cared about her!"

Then he kissed her.

A khaki clad sergeant of marines (on special duty) held conference with four grave missionaries in the big house at the head of the compound. Five minutes later a rocket swished and soared in a slow curve high above the roofs of the Tartar city, north, by the great Hata street. Twenty minutes more, and a long column of troops—slouching fellows in gray campaign hats—came shuffling up on the double quick, whistling to a man "I'm a Yankee Doodle Dandy" (Cohan version) as an accelerant to the step.

While the beardless captain, leaving his Kentucky horse at the gate, entered the compound, two sergeants conversed by the long line of fighting men in the road. One stood on his two legs and grinned unreservedly. The other leaned on a new model Springfield and softly tapped his fixed bayonet.

"How many men did ye bring on th' dangerous mission, Pete?" inquired the one.

"A full comp'ny—hundred an' six."

"Th' last mentioned six would 'a' done, Pete."

"Then why, in the name iv——"

"Tut, tut, me boy. 'Tis holy ground ye're all but standin' on. 'Twas a little matter iv th' tellyphone wires bein' down. An' th' exercise ull be fine f'r th' boys. Not to say there ain't a bit o' class to th' young lady that thinks mebbe she'd like to go back to th' hotel—an' her dog."

So it came about that forty men in khaki with fixed bayonets marched in rigid fours before the rickshaw of Miss Austin, and sixty-six men marched as rigidly by fours behind. Of whistling there was none. And to the beardless captain who rode beside her desperately thinking up common acquaintances she confided impulsively: "I never realized before that our own soldiers were so good looking. Why, it's just like being with a lot of the boys at home."

To which the beardless one replied: "Well, of course, in the marine corps—have to be picked men, in a way—you see, the work we do . . ." And inasmuch as his baritone voice had been found pleasing by the ladies of many ports, he hummed blithely:

"From the halls of Montezumas to the shores of Tripolee,
We fight our country's battles on the land and on the sea."

When they reached the hotel he said good-night and then shook hands twice.

Miss Austin smuggled the morsel of a dog under her coat and went directly to her own room. Here her first task was to make Wing Tee Wee—which was his new name; as was fitting, for did it not stand that "Wing Tee Wee was a sweet Chinee"?—to make Wing as comfortable as possible exactly in the middle of the broad white bed.

Then she confronted the mirror, and momentarily depressed by the wan, pallid face that stared out at her, slapped her cheeks and rubbed her temples and forehead to bring the color back. After which she rearranged her somewhat tousled hair and dressed for dinner.

Looking only a little less than her usual brisk self, she sat on the edge of the bed and examined little Wing with great care.

"Yes," she said, holding him up to the light and playing with his one white ear, "you may not be quite the same sort of blue and white as the dishes and vases, but that wonderful hair of yours is certainly about as near blue as black can be."

As if in reply, Wing threw back his head and made the smallest sound that was ever dignified by the term of barking. Miss Austin laughed softly, and cuddled him close against her pretty neck.

There was a knock at the door, and Mrs. Wilberly, still in negligée and drowsy of eye, came in from the adjoining room.

"I've had quite a nap," she observed. Then—"O, you got that dog!"

Her niece nodded brightly, and held him up for inspection.

"He is cunning," mused Mrs. Wilberly. "But—O, yes! It wasn't a dog Harriet wanted. Wait a minute—I can show you on the letter. We read it wrong. It isn't a P at all. It's meant for an R. But the pen points spread out on the last down stroke, and the ink didn't run. If you look closely—there, you can see the little scratches. It's the rug she wants, not a pug—a Peking rug."

"O, I see," replied Miss Austin demurely. "It was a natural enough mistake, though. And it's just as well, because now I can keep Wing for myself. Look at him, aunt. Did you ever in your life see anything so perfectly darling?"

HIS SECOND SELF

A COUPLE of years ago Victor Rousseau loomed up on the literary horizon of the United States with the publication in this newspaper of his "The Flights of Francois," as one of the most promising writers of the day. If you read that series of short stories you will remember them by the sparkling, virile, moving style of the author, his keen observations and his plot inventiveness. Herewith is offered another serial by this writer, who is now become one of the outstanding figures in current fiction. Besides this story, he is the author of a serial story now appearing in one of the leading magazines, and of numerous short stories appearing in the current periodicals. This story, a mystery story of human nature, a mystery that will hold your attention from the first installment to the last, and a love story of unusual power, is perhaps the finest piece of writing Mr. Rousseau has done. You should read it every week.

SYNOPSIS.

Joan Wentworth, a country girl, is employed as a nurse in the Southern Hospital at Avonmouth, presided over by Dr. John Lancaster, a bully and a man of loose character. She faints during her first operation and she goes to his house to beg to get her position back. To her astonishment Lancaster appears altogether different; he is manifestly ill, and gentle with her. He says she needs a change and offers her a temporary post, while her case is being considered at the Institute in the hill country, founded by his father with the Lancaster Fund. Joan goes to Lancaster (the name of the hill village) and finds a dilapidated old building, with a colored doctor, a matron, and a crazed woman, Mrs. Dana, who is locked in her room. There is a superintendent named Myers, whom Joan dislikes. Next day she is surprised to see Lancaster come down to the Institute. She has a quarrel with Myers, who takes her into the doctor's room and shows her Lancaster insensible from an overdose of morphine. Joan discovers that he is addicted to the drug. Lancaster begs her to aid him fight the habit, and a grim battle ensues, first with the drug, then with Myers whom Joan suspects of trying to induce Lancaster to continue the habit.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT.

THE ENGAGEMENT.

IT was a serious case, and the patient was already comatose. The tree had fallen across the chest, crushing it and driving a rib into a lung. An immediate operation offered the only hope, and the doctor decided to perform it in the cabin.

Joan, having bundled out the family and the neighbors, administered the ether. She had never been greatly impressed by the legend of the skilled surgeon with the wonderful touch; her first operation at Avonmouth had seemed to her like a sort of glorified plumbing, and the leisurely manner of the surgeons had reduced the art to a science in her estimation. Now she revised her opinion as, seated at the patient's head, she watched Lancaster working within a compass of fractional inches, where a slip would have been deadly. His fingers, which had trembled as he held the reins, were as steady as the steel instruments he held; his deftness and precision were amazing; and when at last the operation was ended, and the patient's recovery announced as probable, she could not conceal her enthusiasm.

They were to remain at the cabin overnight in case of a change for the worse, returning to the institute in the morning. After a scrappy meal they had wandered to the end of the village toward a patch of woodland that was encroaching on the tiny settlement. The long summer twilight still held the land, although the mountain tops were already vague and shadowy. They stood there looking down toward the level country under them.

"I think you are the most wonderful surgeon in the world," said Joan. "And you see I didn't faint this time," she added.

"Faint? Why should you faint?" asked Lancaster, looking at her with a puzzled expression.

"You seemed to regard my weakness in the operating room as a sign of my incapacity," she replied, a little chagrined that he should have dismissed the matter from his mind.

Lancaster looked at her with that strange glance which seemed always designed to hide his thoughts. Then his face softened.

"Joan, do you know that I owe everything on earth to you—to you, my dear?" he asked.

And he took her in his arms and kissed her.

"That's what you mean to me," he said. "I can't lose you; I want you to fill the life that you have given back to me."

And at the touch of his lips on hers Joan knew that in truth she loved him; all that she had heard of the man's past, his dissolute life, the talk of Avonmouth, was forgotten. She only knew that she loved him, not with the wild passion of which she had heard, but with a quiet and abiding fondness, none the weaker for its qualities of calmness; and it was the most natural thing in the world that she, who had given him life again, should give her own life also to this wonderful, strong man who had risen above his wrongs and driven the besetting devils from him by valorous strength. Her heart was lifted up; serene and trustful she returned his kiss.

"I love you, too," she answered. "Nothing of the past shall ever come between us."

They were at the verge of the forest, upon a height that overlooked Miliville and Lancaster, hill villages, but now outspread in the shadowy plain beneath them. A dozen counties could be dimly discerned from that spot by daylight. Far in the distance were the coastal lands, nearer the cultivated belt, nearer still the little farms, and the matchless mountains all about them. It was their home country—both of them were thinking that the smell of the rich soil was in their nostrils, and in their hearts the sense of home.

"Joan, can a man begin to build up his life again at 38, after he has missed everything?" asked Lancaster after a long silence.

"You have proved that he can," she answered. "But you have not missed everything, my dear. You are a very great man, and a man with a great work in the world. Many men have gone along the path you took, but few have found the strength to turn back as you have done."

"Joan, I want to tell you something. I was engaged to be married once—years ago. She ran away on the evening before our marriage day. It was the beginning of my downfall. I thought I loved her."

His face was haggard. Divining his distress, Joan slipped her hand into his.

"Joan, dearest," said Lancaster after a pause, "I have often thought that some day I would tell you all the wretched story of the past. But I have been thinking differently today. I was entrapped by an unscrupulous man who robbed me of everything that made life worth living. But there is nothing that would make me afraid to look my fellow men in the face. It is myself whom I have shamed and humiliated. Joan, I want to say nothing, not because I would keep anything from you, but because I want to start my life anew. I shall never go back to the institute."

"You mean, dear——?"

"Never. I shall not return tomorrow. I want you to come to the southwest with me, Joan, my dear. We will drive across the hills to Carroll's and catch the through train there. I shall begin to live the new life you have given me. Will you leave everything for my sake, Joan? Is it too hard a request?"

"It is not too hard," she answered. "But it is not right for you."

"It is right for me to leave a living death behind me."

"No, dear. It is running away. You spoke to me of some harder fight to be fought."

"With nothing to win, Joan—nothing. When I leave Lancaster no human being will miss or regret me."

"There is your work at Avonmouth. There is the hospital which you have made famous throughout the United States. Your work is there, not in some obscure place where it would be of less use to the world and no example. Besides, consider that if you become famous again, as you must, you will be discovered. And one can never leave his past behind him. That follows everywhere."

"Yes, that is true," muttered Lancaster, staring out over the darkening hills. "Well, I leave it to you, my dear; but to go back to fight out a futile battle seems to me now something unendurable."

"You must go back to the institute, and then to Avonmouth, and meet your enemies, John," she said. "I shall be at your side. Nothing will make me afraid or weaken my love for you."

His face twitched. "Not if I tell you things which prove me worthless of your love?" he asked. "Not if you find I am an outcast man who has deserved his misfortunes?"

She only smiled at him. "I shall not judge you by your words," she said, "nor yet by other men's opinions, but by my knowledge of you."

"Then I shall tell you everything," he answered, drawing Joan's hand into his. "Everything, but not here. Here I shall keep the peace of the hills within my heart, and you."

So they strolled back toward the cabin, and Joan's drab colored life was transmuted in this, her first love, to gold. She lived in her lover; she trusted wholly in him who had brought love to her, not like a conquering god, but in the simplest guise, making it the unfolding of her own loving nature. She gave her youth, her innocence, as love's price, and thought the exchange her profit. There was never such peacefulness in any place as there that evening, and in Joan's heart was abounding peace likewise.

When they reached the cabin the patient was better. Lancaster spent the evening giving detailed instructions to the man's wife.

"I shall do my best to come again if I am needed," he said, "but I can't promise. I may be called to Avonmouth at any moment. Keep him quiet, for heaven's sake keep him absolutely motionless for a week, and then let him sit up if he wants to. And nothing to eat but the schedule I am making out for you."

Afterward Joan told Lancaster that she wished to stay for a few days to take care of the man. But Lancaster would not hear of it.

"These hill people never die," he said. "He'll be up and about before the week is over."

"But the diet?"

"They'll feed him on soda biscuits as soon as he's well enough to eat anything. Fortunately he won't be able to eat for a week, so he won't come to any harm. I shall send Jenkins over two or three times to report progress."

Joan's room was a tiny place under the eaves. She spent a sleepless, happy night there, thinking over the happiness that had come to her. It was strange and wonderful to lie awake under the same roof that sheltered Lancaster and to reflect how soon their lives would flow together calmly in their own country. She could not have wished any happier fate in life.

With her limited experience it seemed ideal that after the years of stress in Avonmouth she should be returning, almost to her own home, a wife. She had puzzled sometimes over Lancaster's long residences in the place that bore his name. But she dreamed of the time when he would give up his work at Avonmouth and retire to a new institute, a spacious home where they could fill their wards with the country people, where her life's vocation and her life's happiness would be united.

At last she fell asleep, and when she awoke Lancaster was tapping at her door.

"Time to get up, Joan!" he called cheerfully.

She sprang out of bed. "How is the patient?" she asked.

"Doing finely and wants to go to work," said Lancaster, laughing.

Joan dressed in a hurry and ran downstairs. Lancaster was waiting on the porch. She raised her face for his kiss, already natural to her, already the happy fulfillment of her innocent dreams of love. Then arm in arm they strolled out into the sunlight.

The glorious light lay on every hill. It swept the land in a torrent of golden brightness. In that light all the shadows of the past seemed to shrivel away.

"We are going back to the institute this morning, Joan," said Lancaster.

She nodded happily. "I am ashamed to feel so gay when you are unhappy," she said.

"I am not unhappy, Joan," he answered. "I thought over everything last night, and I see now that you were right. I shall go back. I shall regain what I have lost, and I shall face my enemies and beat them."

At 10 o'clock the horse was harnessed and the drive back began.

At first Joan, seated at her lover's side, breathed in the mountain air, the sense of freedom, the scent of the pines, the joy of the sunlight. Then the peaks began to tower above them. The duller valley air struck something from her joy, but not too much for her to dream. She looked fondly at Lancaster, who drew her hand into his.

"I am going back to win," he said again.

Later the sun went into clouds. The air grew moister, the hills inclosed them, the familiar landmarks began to reappear. And now something of Lancaster's despondency of the evening before came over Joan. And again, as if sensing her mood, he reiterated:

"I am going back to fight and win, my dear."

But when the institute came into sight at last the long, gaunt building cast its chill over the girl's heart. In contrast with the mountain village Lancaster was depressing and lonely. And Joan was conscious of one gripping fear. Suppose that Myers had returned!

She understood now how Lancaster had felt the evening before when he said he would never go back. It was like plunging out of the sunlight into a dark mountain pool.

The matron came forward as the buggy stopped. Joan looked at her in terror. But her face was placid enough, and she was able to read in it the secretary's continued absence.

"Dr. Lancaster, there was a telephone message for you a few minutes ago from Avonmouth," she said.

Lancaster leaped from the buggy and helped Joan down. "I'll be with you in a few moments," he said, throwing the reins over the hitching post.

He went into the house. His step was firm, his demeanor unruffled; the matron, who followed him, seemed undisturbed. But already everything was changed. The black shadow of Myers seemed to loom up until it overspread the institute again. Joan paced the porch in fear which gathered strength each moment that Lancaster failed to return. When at last she saw him coming her suspense was unbearable.

She looked at him in mute fear as he laid his hand caressingly upon her shoulder.

"I have to go to Avonmouth at once," he said. "I have no choice in the matter. It is a patient who must undergo an operation—my operation—within twelve hours. It is fortunate that we have the buggy, because I shall just have time to catch the afternoon train and get into Avonmouth at midnight."

Then he looked at her white face and read the fear in it. "If you tell me to stay, I'll stay," he said.

"And the patient?" whispered Joan.

"Will die. No, of course I shall go. Nothing could keep me from going, not even you, my dear. But you would not have me stay."

"You are right. Yes, of course you must go. But I am afraid," said Joan. "I am afraid of Myers."

He started, as if he, too, had been thinking of the secretary. "But the man can't harm me, dear," he said.

"The message came from him!" cried Joan in fear.

Lancaster looked away. But when she repeated the question he answered, "No."

"He is at Avonmouth? Is he not there?" she asked.

"Well, Joan, I think he is," said Lancaster reluctantly. "But he may not be. I only know that the message was not from him."

"It was from the hospital? Not from MacPherson?"

"It was from a man connected with the hospital," said Lancaster. "But it was not from MacPherson and not from Myers, and it did not mention Myers' name. Why, my dear, you mustn't give way to nerves now that I am losing mine. It is a simple request for me to operate tomorrow."

She pulled herself together. "Of course you must go, John," she said again. She put her arms about his neck. "Dear, if you should see that man you will not fall into any trap that he may set for you?" she asked. "You are so strong; you will not let him trample on you? You are yourself again, and you will remain so for my sake?"

"Never fear!" he answered cheerfully. "I am not going to take morphine again. Why, I shall have none with me, my dear Joan, and I should have no opportunity to buy any even if I wanted to. I shall operate perhaps as soon as I reach the hospital, and return on the morning train. I may not even go to my house at all."

"I am not afraid that you will take morphine," said Joan. "But you will not see Myers?"

"Not if I can help it. He can't come to the hospital, and I don't think he will dare to lie in wait for me at the station. If he does he'll find me a tough customer to kidnap in broad daylight. There, my dear, be calm and sensible, and when I return I shall tell you everything that you must know."

He kissed her and hurried in to pack his suitcase. He came out in a few moments and placed it in the buggy. "Good-by, Joan, dearest Joan," he said. "And you will not hint at our engagement to Mrs. Fraser while I am gone. I have very special reasons for this."

She shook her head and laughed, and returned his kiss, and all the while her heart grew heavier. And long after the buggy had disappeared from sight she stood upon the porch looking after it.

That night was sleepless as the last, but the joy that had filled her heart in the cabin was gone. She lay awake, listen- to the rain that pattered on the roof, king and wondering. How strange her had become, and how far away the old dmarks were! She had fought for a 's soul in darkness and snatched it into t, and now the darkness seemed closing out her again. And she could only hope d wait through endless hours.

In vain she tried to tell herself that it was ly an ordinary summons. On the face of the call was natural, but Joan's instinct d her that there was more behind it. ers had not surrendered his prey so dly as he had assumed to do. And Lan- ter had been evasive—to spare her, per- —but evasive. And her task now was y to wait.

She tried to follow Lancaster in her mind, picture him at the various stages of his ey, now in the train and now at Avon- h. Then she fell asleep for a few min- , awakening to find that the same es had been going on in her dreams. l she rose. She imagined that he must finished the operation some time be- and be at the station, or on his way , but her soul could not go out to his the distance, and their communion ed to be cut short by the same impene- le darkness. Dressing, she was con- of a stronger presentiment of ap- ching evil which she could not shake y.

It was a gloomy day, and the rain came in torrents. About 11 o'clock Dr. kins arrived in his buggy, and inquired Lancaster. He seemed surprised to learn he had gone to Avonmouth.

He was preparing to return, but Joan felt need of speech with him irresistible. did not mean to cross-examine him; she wanted to shake off the feeling that caster had passed out of her reach by ing to one of his associates. She dly knew the purpose of her accosting kins until she saw the look of concern n his face.

"Miss Wentworth, you aren't well!" he ex- ed. "You have been overdoing it."

"No, Dr. Jenkins, but—Dr. Lancaster has into Avonmouth——"

"Yes, Miss Wentworth. But he won't to any harm there, thanks to you. 've taught me a thing or two about phine patients, Miss Wentworth," he t on, in his polite, complimentary fash- "I never saw any one get well as fast Dr. Lancaster, nor any nurse that could le a situation as you did," he added.

"Yes, but it was not really morph'ne, you ," said Joan, and then she almost gaped astonishment. What had she said? Why she said it?

Dr. Jenkins was staring at her, too. "Not phine, you say, Miss Wentworth?" he mered.

"I mean, the symptoms weren't those of morphine poisoning," said Joan.

"O, well, Miss Wentworth, everybody takes it in a different way," he answered. "Yes, I reckon it was morphine, right enough. They wouldn't put the wrong label on the bottles. You certainly did set things humming, Miss Wentworth," he added, laughing and raising his hat.

"That's what you mean to me," he said. "I can't lose you; I want you to fill the life that you have given back to me."

"Wait a moment, Dr. Jenkins," persisted Joan. "I am so anxious about the doctor. He ought not to have gone; he was in no condition to go. And yet a man's life is at stake."

The doctor's face became at once impenetrable. He seemed to be on his guard against her. He seemed to know more than she, Dr. Lancaster's fiancee, knew; it was humiliating and ironical, but Joan saw that to question him, even if she had been so minded, was useless.

She was not minded. That would be a disloyal act toward her lover. Soon she would know; and meanwhile she kept down her fears. She watched Jenkins drive away with sinking heart. And somehow the morning passed.

The hours of afternoon were leaden ones. Five o'clock came at last, with no cessation of the downpour, and Joan went out and paced the rain soaked veranda endlessly, looking anxiously in the direction of the station, though she knew that it must be at least two hours before she could hope to see Jenkins' buggy again on its way up the hill.

Through the lowering western clouds the sun, emerging for a moment, streaked the west with angry crimson splashes. Lancaster must be nearly home. But it was no use waiting there, where her fears grew from moment to moment. She went into the building and saw the matron standing within her door. Suddenly she sensed the reflection of her own fears in Mrs. Fraser's heart. She knew the woman was doing nothing as she stood there; was waiting, like herself, and in the same manner, hoping against hope for the doctor's safe return. Impulsively Joan entered the room. She could keep silence no longer. She broke down, sobbing distractedly.

"I am afraid something has — happened to the doctor," she wept.

"Now, you sit down in that chair, Miss Wentworth," said Mrs. Fraser, kindly. "It's been a trying day. But Dr. Lancaster will be home in an hour, and there's no use becoming anxious about him. Heavens, if we got anxious before we had cause, what should we do?"

"I know," sobbed the girl. "But I can't bear waiting. I know something has happened to him."

"Now, my dear, you are all worked up about him," she said. "He won't come to any harm. He can't come to harm when he went straight to his own hospital," she added.

But she spoke without conviction. Joan's hysterical mood was infecting her, increasing her own fears and forebodings.

"I reckon you know, Miss Wentworth, how much Dr. Jenkins and I feel we owe to you for taking care of the doctor," she said, seating herself at the girl's side. "And for getting that man out of the place, my dear. Man? He's a devil—he's the doctor's devil, Miss Wentworth. And no harm can come to the doctor with you watching for him and praying for him."

Joan looked up at her with troubled face. "Mrs. Fraser, I am so much at a loss," she said. "Dr. Jenkins and you have known Dr. Lancaster so long, and I am a stranger here. I am like a child in comparison with you, so far as knowledge of Dr. Lancaster is concerned. I have been fighting his physical troubles, and I do not know his mental ones. That is what puts me at a loss. How can I know that Dr. Lancaster's enemies are not waiting for him, or have not hurt him?"

The matron placed her hand on the girl's knee. "Why, my dear, Dr. Lancaster has no enemies," she said. "How could such a splendid man have enemies? Of course, there are troubles; who hasn't them? And it may be there's things that Dr. Jenkins and I don't know. I've thought there might be. But we've only been here three years, and that was long after the doctor's troubles began. And, of course, we never listened to the village gossip. But, oh! Miss Wentworth, you can't imagine the sorrow in our hearts when we saw that splendid man giving way to his habit and letting it creep over him little by little and gain the mastery.

"At first, when I came here, it was only at times that he'd take the morphine, and then he'd have terrible outbursts of rage, and it was all that we could do to control him. I used to think that his mind would go, especially when he'd have those fits after he came back from Avonmouth. But after that the hoodoo got him. That was when I was afraid."

"The hoodoo?" inquired Joan.

"Miss Wentworth, the devil who was at him so long got hold of him once or twice. I've seen him come back from Avonmouth a different man, Miss Wentworth. That's when I've been afraid. Because the devil that can kill the body isn't much of a devil, but when he kills the soul there is no help but prayer. When he's in those dreadful moods he's another man. He's a wicked man, Miss Wentworth, and I'd shoot him then, if he tried to harm me or any of mine, and I wouldn't think I'd killed Dr. Lancaster. It all began after they accused him of stealing the trust funds."

"It is not true," said Joan.

"I'm sure it isn't, Miss Wentworth. But, you see, old Dr. Lancaster didn't leave the charge of the fund to his son; he left it in the care of the trustees. And there were complications about the hospital at Avonmouth. And, then, after the doctor's bride ran away on the eve of their marriage, it changed all his nature."

"I have heard of that," said Joan quietly. "But we must not discuss that in the doctor's absence."

"Why, everybody knows about that, Miss Wentworth. Before it happened they say the doctor was the most respected man in Lancaster. He'd been born here, you know, on the plantation down in the valley Millville way. She was a Miss Reid. She came from Farnley county. She was the reigning belle there, admired and flattered, and it turned her heart to a stone to have all the men after her, crazy to marry her. The doctor was a young man then, and he couldn't see any further into her heart, such as it was, than the rest of them.

"She led the doctor a chase before she promised him, they say. But the very day before their marriage was to have been she left her home without a word to any one to go off with another man who's never been discovered. That broke the doctor up. He took to drugs then, they tell me. The institute had been a big place before; it stood over on Morley's hill, but it burned down one night, and we took this old farmhouse. And the doctor was using the funds, they said, and wasn't responsible at all.

"The trustees found that the money was gone. Nobody knew where it went, because the doctor had his own inheritance, and he wasn't the man to steal or squander. They wouldn't do anything to him because of his family, but they put Mr. Myers in charge of the finances. That's all. None of us liked him, but what could we do about it? He was here when Dr. Jenkins and I were appointed, and as soon as we understood how matters were we agreed to stay as long as we could and try to help the doctor."

"Mrs. Fraser, I want to know why Mr. Myers incited Dr. Lancaster to use morphine," said Joan.

"Miss Wentworth——"

"You know he did. You told me so. And Dr. Jenkins knows."

The matron looked agitated. "What could we do?" she cried. "Suppose we knew, what can two people do against a man like Myers? Suppose we had said so, who would have believed us? We did all we could do; and we all love the doctor and would rather stay with him and help where we could than be discharged and do nothing."

"I know you did your best," answered the girl. "But why should Dr. Lancaster stay here in Myers' power instead of at his home in Avonmouth, where he is respected and powerful? Nothing of all this is known there."

The matron wrung her hands. "I don't know," she answered. "I suppose that man has had him by the throat in more ways than we know. Whenever the doctor used to go to Avonmouth Mr. Myers would go with him, and generally he'd come back with him. Miss Wentworth, till you came here the doctor wasn't a man; what with his drugs and the hold Mr. Myers had over him he was just a machine. And Mr. Myers was the driver."

Joan had the feeling that she should not listen to the matron's talk about Lancaster; it seemed disloyal of her; but she felt, too, that she must know more, and speedily, if she was to thwart that menacing evil which she sensed more and more clearly as the moments passed.

"Aye, but there's worse than that," continued Mrs. Fraser, dropping her voice. "I spoke to you of the times when the doctor has come back from Avonmouth, not a man but a devil. I said I'd shoot him then and not think it was the doctor who lay dead before me. Those are the times when Mr. Myers has pulled and pulled until he has pulled the doctor down to his own level. Only two or three times, Miss Wentworth, but the village knows what he is then. That's why the people won't come here when they are ill. O, it's pitiful then, Miss Wentworth, and my heart has bled when I've looked into the doctor's face and seen the eyes of a lost soul; my heart has bled in spite of my fears. For he's terrible then, Miss Wentworth, a different man, a wicked man, and I'd rather see the doctor lying dead before me than see him like that. But what am I telling you this for when that hoodoo's gone forever, and, thanks to you, the doctor will never be like that again?"

Joan rose. "I know that trouble is at an end," she said. "And I am sure Dr. Lancaster is incapable of having misappropriated that money. And if Mr. Myers made him think he had done so when he was under the influence of morphine and has been blackmailing him that has come to an end, too."

"Yes, Miss Wentworth. And even if the doctor did use the money for some purpose or other he wasn't responsible."

They went toward the door. Although she was not aware of it, Joan was straining her ears to hear, through the dripping rain, the sound of the buggy wheels. She had been nearly an hour in Mrs. Fraser's room. The sense of imminent danger was growing stronger, but with it was relief that the hour was come. She felt that the revelation was at hand. However terrific that coming battle was to be, at least it would be a blind battle no longer.

The women looked at each other, a little uneasily. Each had something to be concealed. Presently Mrs. Fraser spoke.

"Dr. Lancaster could never do without you now, Miss Wentworth," she said significantly.

Joan hesitated. There was a challenge in the words, but she remembered Lancaster's instructions to her to say nothing about their engagement. She could not break them.

"Miss Wentworth," said the matron, placing her hand on the girl's arm firmly, "there's something else I ought to have told you about. Mrs. Dana——"

"Hark!" interrupted Joan, holding up her hand for silence.

Then they heard, a long distance away and inaudible to one whose attention was not strained, like theirs, the sound of the wheels of Jenkins' buggy.

SERGEANT GOGO CAPTURES FOUR WILD MEN.

BY WM. DONAHEY

"I DONE got 'em bottled up! I done got 'em bottled up!" shouted Gogo as he ran panting up to the General's tent.

"What's bottled up? What is all the excitement about?" asked the General, popping his head out through the opening of his tiny tent.

"Why, I—I—I done ketched one wild man and turned him over to the guard and three more are done corked up in a bottle."

"Great Guns!" exclaimed the General. "This is exciting; tell me all about it."

"Well, you see," began Gogo, sitting down on a pebble and mopping his forehead with his teenie weenie handkerchief, "I done took a walk yesterday out beyond the picket lines and I done found a big bottle. I was kind of 'spicious about that bottle, for I saw through the glass where some dry grass had been fixed like a bed as though some one had been sleepin' there."

"'Gogo,' says I to myself, 'some one done been campin' in this here bottle and it ain't none of the Teenie Weenie soldiers, for they never have come out this far.' Then I made up my mind that it must be some of them scalawag wild men and I reckoned they stayed in the bottle when they was on guard duty watchin' our army."

"'But why did they stay in this bottle?' I says to myself; 'it ain't cold nights.' But just then a big mosquito come a buzzin' around and then I knew the wild men done stay in the bottle to keep the mosquitoes from bitin' them.

"I says to myself, 'I reckon some of these wild men will be around here pretty soon,' so I done crawled under a leaf near by and waited.

"Pretty soon four of the wild men came sneakin' along and three of them done crawl into the bottle, but one of them just squatted on the ground by the opening of the bottle kind a like a guard.

"'Jimminie fish hooks!' I says to myself, 'If a couple of the fellows were here we could ketch them wild men.'

"Pretty soon I thought to myself 'Why don't you ketch 'em yourself?' So I done sneaked out up behind the wild man what was guardin' the mouth of the bottle and done cracked him on the head with the butt of my gun. I didn't hit very hard—just hard enough to stun him a little—and then I grabbed a cork that was layin' near by and stuffed it into the bottle and braced it with a stick of wood so the scalawags couldn't get out. I then picked up the wild man I had knocked down and brought him into camp and that's all."

"A very brave deed, sergeant," said the General. "And I will immediately send out a squad of men to bring your prisoners into camp."

The Old Soldier was ordered to take a squad of men and go after the prisoners, while the Doctor was sent to dress the bump on the head of the wild man that Gogo had knocked down. After a great deal of work the soldiers managed to pull the three wild men out of the bottle and when they were brought into camp they were securely tied to a strong blade of grass.

By Corinne Lowe

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

Tight Fitting Sleeves of the Eighties, Skirts Just Wide Enough to Whisper a Walk, and Long Coats Are All Features of the New Suits.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If your elbows are the kind to inspire awe and not affection, if your arms start being wrists right at the shoulders—alas for you, poor slimsome maid! For this year sleeves are tighter than they have been since that time when our mother's bustle was the chief presence on the closet door and when Mr. Howells' heroines murmured genteelly, "Yes, mamma."

Nor are skirts much more expansive. Shown by some of the leading foreign dressmakers, they measured not much more than a yard and a quarter. Even in the more liberal editions they make of walking a good deal of a discipline. What is more, the skirts of suits are absolutely puddle proof. Even if you are exceedingly prissy, you will consider six inches none too long. And if you are skirt reckless, eight inches above the ground is plenty to prove that your costume is not all coat.

Taken all in all, indeed, it is just as one New York tailor has said. It is the day of the toothpick silhouette, and those who, like Tony Lumpkin, like 'em fat, whose highest word of praise is "Er'd make two of 'er," will have to wander far from the resorts of fashion.

One thing which helps out the impression of slenderness is the fact that most of the suit skirts are untrimmed. No longer do we have postscripts of material stitched on to the skirt. No longer does the hip yoke enthrall us. As for plaits, although they are still seen, it is in a modified form. The big wide, hungry plait which last year devoured so much of the material has had its day and in its place come small groups.

As a rule, the "petty" is narrow and straight. However, the woman who likes extreme things, the woman who last year took enthusiastically to the barrel, gets this season a more restricted vintage. The "bottle" skirt is the heir to the barrel and quite a few of this variety were shown at the Paris openings. Some of these were gathered into broad bands of four about the bottom; others achieved the idea by the use of fine plaits occurring at intervals and held in by a deep hem of the skirt material.

But, after all, you know, the skirt is just about as important in the text of fashion as is the period. The sentence? Ah, that, madame, is the long coat with its tight sleeves, its elaborate collar, its intricate cut. Jackets roam from hip to almost the edge of the skirt. The most popular with us Americans, however, will probably be the knee length model and in this type of thing those French suit wizards have given us much from which to choose.

Bulloz, for instance! This emperor of the suit world has created one significant model, which is known as "Panam," considered by many authorities as the best suit of the season. This has the knee length coat, with wonderful tailoring at the waist line and a patch of fur both front and back. Speaking of these fur patches, they are wonderfully smart. Indeed, we treat a suit this year much as if it were a piece of baggage, and send it out to its destination with all sorts of funny little fur labels here and there.

ONLY the hardy pioneer constitution can stand going from door to limousine if skirts become much narrower. The model at the extreme left shows a teaspoonful of tight skirt topped by a whole bowl of coat. This model of maroon velvet trimmed with blue fox and black braid is in its way as effective as the center suit—one of blue velvet trimmed with white fox and set off by a girdle made of two five inch strips of black braid. The third costume is a frock from Doucet which shows just how far fur may go this year with a meek piece of Georgette.

Among all the new coats, however, the very most verdant is the slipover kind, which was featured by Callot, Lanvin, Doucet, and other of the Paris dressmakers. These coats were, as a matter of fact, the sensation of Paris. Many of them are knee length, and all of them go over the head exactly like a sweater. They are fastened down the front to a point several inches above the waist line, and although some of them are belted the smartest and ugliest drop straight from the shoulders like a sack.

As to collars, the one of which we shall probably see the most is the great big sailor one of fur, which will screen off a face at a moment's notice. The other is that long scarf of the suit material which is the leading collar novelty of the season. These scarfs, lined vividly with some contrasting color, fasten at the back, are wound, choker-wise, about the throat, and fly back over the shoulders just as free from care as a Russian dancer. Even newer, too, than this accessory made of the suit material is the one of the same knitted yarn as is used in the soldier's muffler. Extremely effective, this—and Jack Frost and the knitted scarf will probably grip New York at one and the same time.

Materials? Well, of course the velour de laine family is the Vere de Vere stock of suits. This comes under new Pullman car names, but it is the same old fabric, and as such is distinctly the most popular one of the year.

In spite of this, the check plague has broken out with new severity. Last summer the photographer on the Bois might have told you that he was tired of clicking black and white checks. He might have told you that they produced the same effect on his spirits as a dish of prunes in the height of the cantaloupe season. The afflicted photographer now gets a change. Instead of being black and white, the newest checks are highly inflamed. Rodier, for example, shows inch wide squares of red, black, and yellow, or the same in red, blue, and yellow. These checks are the novelty of the season, and we shall probably be seeing much of them later on.

Black braid is a feature also of the center costume—this one of midnight blue velvet—and the draped girdle is made by putting together two five inch widths of this trimming. The fur is white fox, and the skirt is the new version of that one which scrapes our ankles—or thereabouts.

Although this is a suit season, in contrast to last spring, when the famished American buyer could hardly find a rib of this kind in the whole Paris style cupboard, the one piece frock is by no means neglected. One of the newest of these is the frock, which crosses at the front and fastens at the side, producing in this way a bewildering double faced costume, which on the east is perfectly straight and narrow, and on the west is a two tier skirt. Panels—particularly the floating variety—are still good, and, be the foundation narrow as it please, there is generally some marvelous meringue of lace and embroidery and paillettes, some whipped cream of trimming to take away the look of severity.

Callot, for example! This favored atelier put forth some of the most stunning creations, the foundations of which looked for all the world like tubes of paint. But when it came to overdresses, how remorse did set in on Mme. Callot! Among her frocks we find one model which is a mass of paillettes from neck to hem. Even the long sleeves of this costume are sown from shoulder to wrist with the glittering black paillettes.

Callot is also fond of lace and uses in these winter creations yards and yards of chantilly and other Spanish webs of beauty. When it comes to fur, Callot uses no more restraint than a polar bear. To give you an idea, here is one frock of velour de laine—no, no, we spoke too soon—this frock is really of beaver, for the fur extends over the skirt clear to the hips, and then not only are deep cuffs and big collar of more beaver, but there is a big cape to let the unobservant know that this is really a fur trimmed dress.

Callot has started something new in furs this year. She alone of all the Paris dressmakers has tried out the simple and unaffected goat—doesn't it sound too primitive for words?—and has given us by way of a novelty Mongolian goat, a particularly curly and long haired member of his profession. Perhaps we shan't see so much of the sacrificial animal this year, but by next season—sing ho! for the merry goat herd!

The costume to the extreme right comes from Doucet and shows breitschwantz—the fabric fur—combined with Georgette in a lighter shade of brown. The draping is extremely simple and attractive, and the long, tight sleeves bring us back to our original thesis—they are tighter than they have been for many a day.

GERANIUMS.

AS THE out-door garden season draws to a close, the disposal of flowers, roots, and bulbs demands consideration before the ground is prepared for next year. Uppermost in our minds is the geranium. It may be taken inside to render the living room more cheerful during the winter months; it may be made to furnish cuttings for the propagation of young plants for next year; or it may be kept dormant to resume, in spring, the growth that will be interrupted with the coming of frost.

Though many leave geraniums intact in the garden as long as possible, taking cuttings after the leaves have been nipped by frost, the better practice is to take them now, before frost, while the young shoots have greater vitality.

Select healthy plants with the finest and most flowers. The cuttings are taken from the ends of young shoots, preferably those with leaf stems [called petioles] close together, one to one and one-half inches apart. Those with internodes of two inches upward are weaker and more subject to fungus disease.

The length of cutting may be from one and one-half to five inches, but the best are those of four to five inches. They must contain at least two leaf nodes—one to be inserted in the ground, and the remainder to protrude. The cuttings are made with a sharp knife, a quarter inch below a leaf node; thus they strike root more readily and are less subject to decay than when a longer shank is left below the node.

Remove all leaves except those sprouting at the end and the topmost large leaf. Remove also all the stipules or ears at the base of each leaf stem. These stipules, if allowed to remain, invite fungus affections.

In home culture prepare seedling boxes for the windows not less than two and one-fourth inches deep, of any size to suit the window sill. A hot-bed, cold frame, pots, tomato cans, or any other receptacle with drain hole may be used.

Clear sand is best. Fill the receptacle to within a quarter inch of the top and insert the cuttings in regular rows, one to one and one-half inches deep, an inch apart in the row, one and one-half inches between rows. When all are inserted, water thoroughly to settle the sand and place the receptacle in a sunny exposure, with cheese cloth stretched over it, four inches above the cuttings. Remove the cover after five or six days. Withhold all watering, unless there are signs of wilting, regardless of the outward appearance of the sand. In about three weeks the cuttings will be sufficiently rooted for potting.

If clear sand is not available, a sandy loam may be used instead. Greater care must then be exercised in water to prevent sogginess and still provide sufficient moisture.

As soon as a leaf show signs of rotting, remove it. If a stem shows such indications, remove the entire cutting or cut out the rotten part and reinsert.

Potting large numbers of rooted cuttings is not a serious matter if done methodically. Use two or three inch pots and any good sandy garden soil. The practiced gardener holds the plantlet in the left hand, so that the bottom of the stem is at the middle, about three-fourths inch below the rim of the pot. With one sweep of the right hand he lifts the soil around the plant, then releases the latter, and with the index and middle fingers of both hands firms down the soil around it at one uniform pressure, bringing the soil surface about a quarter inch below the pot rim. The filled pot is then placed on the right with a lightly jarring motion which levels the soil.

An efficient worker does this mechanically, without apparent exertion, potting many times the number of plants another would pot with more fussy methods—and does it better. The soil is on a bench or work table before him; the rooted cuttings and empty pots on top. However, all this has no bearing on the success or failure of geranium propagation.

The potted plants are then placed outdoors in a sheltered sunny position till frost is threatened, when they are moved to the basement windows or other cool, frost free storage. Watering during winter is needed only when the soil is almost dry—once a week in a temperature of 55 degrees F. or more; every ten to fourteen days if less than 55.

Winter Storage of Geraniums.

To be simply stored over winter, geraniums may remain in the garden to lend color to it till killing frost is threatened, in this vicinity usually about Oct. 1. The government's official daily weather forecast should be observed.

When such frost is predicted, lift the plants and roots carefully, gently removing all soil. Trim the overbalanced branches to better proportions, sometimes as much as one-half, and remove all leaves except the young terminal growth. Take an ordinary soap box or any other box obtainable at the grocer's and put one and one-half inches of common garden soil in the bottom. Place the plants on this in rows, quite close, in an upright or gently inclined position. Fill in with loose, friable soil to an inch above the roots and leave a bank of earth against which another row of plants is placed, continuing in like manner until the box is filled or until all plants are heeled in.

If but few plants are to be stored they may be similarly placed in pots.

Whether in boxes or pots, place them in a cool, frost-free place, without watering for the present. If the storeroom or basement is not heated, no water will be required till about the beginning of March. Then begin by watering lightly, repeating every two to three weeks.

Toward the end of April place the boxes or pots outdoors in a sunny, sheltered position and water well. Should frost be predicted, they must be safeguarded by covering with burlap. After the middle of May, the plants are lifted and planted where wanted in the garden.

If the storage place is heated, a light watering is required, from the first, every four to six weeks. In that case some of the plants will have sprouted and made a spindly growth over winter. The topmost of such shoots are removed when the plants are set out. Otherwise their treatment is like that of unheated quarters.

As Winter House Plants.

If the plants are to serve a decorative purpose during winter they are lifted as if for storage, but planted, of course, in individual pots. Remove all leaves except the small terminal growth and two or three larger leaves near the end of each shoot. If the growth of the plants is too spreading, gather the branches around a stake after planting.

Four and one-half to six inch pots, tomato cans, or anything available may be used. Charcoal, pot sherds, or coarse gravel is thrown over the hole in the bottom for better drainage and to admit air to the roots. This is covered with one to one and one-half inches of sandy, rich garden soil. The plant is held well centered over that while more soil is added, jarred in between the roots, and packed down firmly around the inside edge of the pot with the blunt end of a piece of common building lath. The potting is finished by pressing the entire surface evenly and firmly with the thumbs, the soil reaching barely above the juncture of roots and stem. In a pot of this size the surface must be a half inch below the rim.

Water the potted plants thoroughly and place them in a well ventilated, sunny position. In ordinary living room temperature water twice a week to keep the soil moist, not wet.

If they are to be used again as garden plants place them outdoors in a sheltered, sunny position for ten to fourteen days before planting, that they may be properly hardened first.

Questions and Answers.

Q.—[1] My rose mallow grows to full size each year and becomes covered with buds which eventually drop off without blooming. This year the leaves turned red as early as the middle of August. [2] What care is necessary for a papyrus and an umbrella plant, now in a back yard pool, to keep them in the house in winter? The umbrella plants are in pots with the roots spread to the outside; the papyrus in box measuring 15 x20 inches, twelve inches deep, with roots forcing through the cracks. [3] If I send you a map of my back yard, 30x 50 feet, would you care to suggest a planting scheme?—K. P.

Answer—[1] It is a moisture loving plant; the condition is probably due to insufficient watering during periods of drought. [2] The papyrus is too heavy as it is; besides, the state of the roots indicates a need of dividing into several pots. The umbrella plants should be repotted or divided. Both can be placed inside, close to windows, each pot in an outer bowl or all of a kind in a trough of sufficient size. The papyrus pots must stand in water reaching half way up; the umbrella plants, one-third way. In this way, no other watering will be necessary. Keep them in a temperature between 60 and 75 degrees F. [3] I would gladly, but the requests are becoming too numerous for my time and facilities, and I am forced to refer you to any of the landscape gardeners whose excellent work has been given space in these columns.

Q.—[1] How often is it necessary to put bonemeal in the soil of potted plants like aspidistra, Boston fern, and geranium? [2] All the fronds of my fern, for about two inches above the ground, are bare of leaves. What is the cause?

MRS. A. H. A.

Answers—[1] Twice a year, aspidistra and fern in May and July, geranium in April and June. Dust it lightly over the soil, work it in with a table fork, and water thoroughly. [2] Perhaps dense growth or insufficient moisture. It is not serious.

Q.—Kindly tell me what treatment will cure [1] brown scale on spirea and [2] little green aphids on another plant of the same variety.—MRS. J. D. H.

Ans.—[1] I assume you mean the rust pustules which range from reddish yellow to dark brown. No other means of control is known than to burn the affected parts. [2] Spray [not sprinkle] with tobacco extract. The most effective form is Black Leaf 40, diluted according to directions accompanying it. In bad cases, it may need a second and even a third application. Obtainable at any of the large seed stores.

Q.—[1] Kindly let me know the name of inclosed garden blossom. [2] How often should house plants be watered with ammonia where the ground is poor? I use one tablespoonful to a quart of water. [3] At what times in the year is it best to repot house plants?—S. J. T.

Ans.—[1] Mourning bride [Scabiosa atropurpurea, var. King of the Blacks], an annual. [2] It is not advisable at all. The reaction is detrimental, causing weak plants. A diluted liquid manure is no more offensive to the nose and constitutes a far better fertilizer, containing other necessary elements. Use properer ly balanced fertilizers in summer and let the plants sustain themselves over winter on the reserve strength of healthy, vigorous summer growth and good potting soil. If you must use ammonia, a teaspoonful to a quart of water is plenty. [3] April to May.

Q.—1. I planted sweet peas last spring to common instructions in trenches six inches deep, filling gradually as the plants progressed. When the plants were six inches above the filled trenches they seemed to wither at the ends and dry out. The roots and covered portions of plants appeared decayed. Was this a disease or was the ground too rich? 2. Can you advise me how to eradicate or prevent yellow blight in asters? I have tried every preventive I could think of. Is there any?—J. H.

Ans.—1. Probably planted too deeply in heavy soil. The depth planted would not be objectionable in sandy soil late in the season. Sow in drills not over three inches deep, two to three inches apart, two to three feet between rows, and trellis them. If you have plenty of room even four to six feet between rows is desirable for free air circulation to promote healthy plants.

2. The prevention is in the method. Sow in flats or hotbeds, covering the soil with clean sand, which can be kept dry between waterings. Transplant to new ground that has not been in asters for several years. Disbud so as to leave not more than eigrt or ten flowers on each plant. Regularity in watering must be observed.

Q.—Will you please tell me [1] where I can get Spiraea Bumalda, [2] when is the best time to set it out, and [3] any remedy to get rid of a grasshopper plague in my garden?—G. W. L.

Ans.—[1] The two best known varieties of Spiraea Bumalda are Anthony Waterer and Froebeli, both of which are hardy in this vicinity and may be obtained from any large nursery. [2] With equal success, either autumn or spring. [3] The most available and cheapest method is a mixture made as follows: Fresh horse droppings, without straw, one-half barrel; powdered white arsenic [a poison], one pound; finely chopped oranges or lemons, six to eight. Mix thoroughly by forking and working it with the hands, covered with a pair of cheap rubber gloves. Scatter the mixture broadcast over the premises in the early morning and, if possible, induce neighbors to do likewise. It serves as a bait which grasshoppers devour greedily. Keep poultry away from it. Spade or plow the garden in autumn to destroy the eggs as far as possible.

First Aids to Knitters' Eyes.

DON'T KNIT WITH THE LIGHT falling directly into your eyes.

KNIT WITH YOUR BACK TOWARD THE LIGHT and let illumination come from over the left shoulder or to the left and above the head. If it is impossible to have a proper arrangement of the light the latter, if an electric or other form of lamp, should be covered so that sufficient light is thrown on the work to be done and an eye shade ought to be worn by the beginner whose intensity of purpose keeps her at it long hours at night.

HOLD YOUR KNITTING as far away from the eye as is compatible with good vision, as the farther away the work is held the less tax on the eye muscle. Hold the sock at least twelve inches away from your eyes.

THE EYE SHOULD BE TREATED with judgment and forbearance and not made to perform more than a good day's work. Such a resolution would suggest occasionally resting the eyes during knitting hours by looking from time to time at distant objects through a window or by changing occupation to some other form of employment when the eyes become the slightest bit tired.

AT THE END of every twenty minutes of steady knitting a few minutes' complete rest, with the lids closed, should be given the eyes.

UNLESS YOU ARE SO EFFICIENT with your knitting needles that you do not have to watch your stitches, knitting in street cars, in carriages, or in motors or while walking about should not be done if you want to make your eyes serve their patriotic purpose twice as long.

Light colored needles should be used with the darker colored wool and vice versa.

Headaches are frequently the symptom of eyestrain. If, since you have been knitting, these headaches have been more noticeable see your oculist and if you need glasses get them at once, for the eyes are too precious to be neglected for a moment.

Knitting in a constantly fading light, such as twilight, subjects the eyes to strain.

Even though your eyes are healthy it is well to bathe them occasionally in a weak solution of boric acid, say a 3 per cent solution.

For eyes that show tendency to strain daily bathing in a solution of ten grains of boric acid to an ounce of water is recommended.

Practice the following simple eye exercises every day and the muscles of your eyes will be strengthened and the sight and brilliancy greatly improved. Slowly roll the eyes up toward the ceiling, then down toward the top of your nose. Repeat this ten times. Then slowly turn the eye from the right to left as far as possible and then back again. Repeat these movements ten times. Be careful in doing these exercises not to strain the muscles of the eyes.

Don't blame all your troubles on the knitting needles and the dark yarn. Perhaps the veil you wear with the thick dots or figures over your eyes is causing your trouble. The wearing of veils is responsible for not a little deterioration of vision.

Puffiness under the eyes may be caused from some internal trouble, but may also be caused from lack of sleep or eye strain. The cause of the trouble must be found and remedied before the condition can be cured. For temporary treatment bathe the eyes with cold water, rubbing gently underneath them with the tips of the fingers. Be careful not to press the eyeball. Bathe the eyes each morning with a good eye wash.

MRS. R. C. H.: THE ONLY PERMANENT means of removing superfluous hair is the electric needle and in some cases even that is not permanent. The needle, while successful in removing the hair itself, often stimulates the growth of the hair next to it. The instances where this happens are so rare that you need not hesitate to have the growth that you say is so disfiguring removed. A good depilatory may be used on the arms, however. The following is an effective one: Sulphide of barium, two drams; oxide of zinc and starch, each three drams; mix well and keep tightly corked. When ready to apply mix enough water with it to make a paste. The paste is then spread on the part and allowed to remain on for a couple of minutes. Then wash it off and apply a cold cream. There will, of course, be resulting irritation. Generally you can tell when the paste has been on long enough by a slight burning sensation. For a stamped, addressed envelope shall send you the directions for facial massage as well as the formulas for a good skin food.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

TEARS A DRAWBACK.

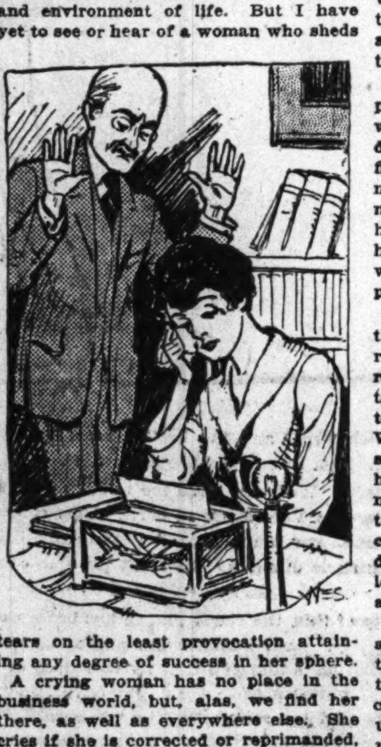
THERE are women in this world whose only defense, retaliation, or appeal is a shower of tears. They are found in every condition and environment of life. But I have yet to see or hear of a woman who sheds tears on the least provocation attaining any degree of success in her sphere.



A crying woman has no place in the business world, but, alas, we find her there, as well as everywhere else. She cries if she is corrected or reprimanded, or if she is called upon in the course of her duties to do something not to her liking. She cries if another than she is promoted; in fact, her working day is just one crying spell after another.

The effect on her employer of a weepy demonstration never reacts to the benefit of a business girl. I have seen an employer throw up his hands in despair after being nearly flooded by the tears of a young woman whom he dared to reprimand for speaking discourteously over the telephone to a client, and he afterward declared that he would have dismissed her on the spot if it weren't for the deluge he would have brought down upon himself.

In an executive office of a large corporation a young woman was given a position as secretary to the vice president of the firm, not only because she fulfilled the requirements of education, experience, and workmanship, but because she was the niece of a man who was a power in the commercial world. The vice president was delighted with his new secretary: she was the means of his conferring a favor on an influential man, and she appeared to be ideally equipped for the position.

It was not long, however, before he realized that his new secretary was addicted to crying spells, for little or no reason. If he failed to say good morning she imagined that he was angry with her, and cried; if he asked her to make a correction in a letter she cried; if, in a moment of abstraction, he talked sharply in giving an instruction, she cried. He stood her crying spells for about six months, and to save himself a visit to a sanitarium he transferred her to another department. On her uncle's account he would not dismiss her from the firm's service.

Her desk was placed in an office occupied by three minor officials, and she worked for all of them. Not until they discovered that she went to each in a flood of tears to complain of the treatment of the other two did they set in motion a concerted plan to get rid of her. They finally succeeded in having her transferred to the general office where fifty or more clerks were employed.

The girl possessed a better education than any of her associates; she had been raised in an environment of culture and refinement; always displayed excellent taste in her choice of clothes; was good to look upon and unusually generous. Withal, she had every advantage for success in her work and popularity with her fellow workers, but because of her maddening propensity to burst into tears over any occurrence that she could construe into a slight to herself she dissipated all chances for success, and lost the sympathy and good will of her associates.

She made life miserable for the manager by running to him with her tearful tales, and in desperation he appealed to the vice president for permission to discharge her. The memory of his own unpleasant experience with the girl carried greater weight than the displeasure of her powerful relative, and the manager was told to do as he pleased in the matter. When she was gone there was not a person in the office from the chief executive down to the office boy who didn't sigh with relief and attack his work with a renewed vigor.

The woman who sits down to weep before every sharp turn and rough stretch on the road to success cannot expect to reach her goal in as good time nor in the same spirit as the one who meets and surmounts all obstacles in the path with courage and fortitude.

AFTER SEVEN YEARS.

I WAS married when I was 17. I was a pretty girl, but vain and selfish. I did not really love my husband, but I was flattered by his devotion and excited at the thought of living in a big city. My husband was quiet and studious and ambitious to succeed in his work.

When the novelty of my marriage and my new clothes wore off I realized that married life was not what I had expected. I had to do my own work and our income was just enough for necessities and would not provide the theaters and gayeties I had dreamed of.

I grew discontented. I thought I was a martyr. I quarreled constantly with my husband. Finally I left him and went back home. I left a letter telling him that I hated him and would never return and advised him to get a divorce. I told him he had treated me like a slave. I wish I could forget that letter.

My parents sympathized with my version and I stayed home six months. Then my father, a banker, died and left us nothing. I was just 19, ignorant of all useful work, and I found I had to support my mother, who was an invalid.

I studied stenography and got a position in Detroit. Then I learned what work meant. I worked ten hours a day and helped my mother at night. I made our clothes and washed them and even scrubbed the floors of our flat.

That lasted seven years; then my mother died and our firm sent me to its new office in Chicago. I arrived there and found that the manager was my husband, from whom I had never heard. I wanted to leave at once, but he would not allow it and I stayed.

Gradually we became friends. One day he asked me if I would try life with him over again, and I did, because I had learned my lesson and because I had found that he was the "only man."

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are

Public Spirited.

> Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

IF you were born during the week beginning today, you take your inheritance from Libra, that airy, sanguine sign that has given to the world so many who have climbed to the high places in life, and through sheer force of unassailable right have stayed there. Libra has bequeathed to you the great gifts of impartial justice, rare good judgment, and fine liberality of thought.

But beneath this broad public spirit of yours is a hidden love of home and closer association. You need the understanding and sympathy that comes from domestic companionship, and you are at your best when you are giving happiness and comfort to those dependent on you.

If you are a Libra man you excel in constancy to those that you love, for just as you are a conserver of force so you are a conserver of affection, and once having made your choice, all other women are as "dead sea fruit" to you.

If, howeer, you are a Libra woman, you are none the less constant than the men, but you inherit a fondness for the good things of the earth. Man or woman, you seem destined to enter life by hard, rugged ways, struggling always against great odds, but you are always the victor in the end. According to astrology, August and December are the most fortunate months in the year for you, and to them, whenever possible, you should confine your important undertakings. Friday is counted the day of days for all Libra people.

Many of the world's greatest actors and actresses have taken their origin in this sign, among them Modjeska, Sarah Bernhardt, and Peg Woffington. You will succeed as a musician, teacher, scientist, dramatist, doctor, jurist, or minister.

Your chief characteristics are pride, ambition, perception, and respect for laws.

You are a strong, earnest worker, but too often you are impatient and subject to fits of uncontrollable anger. When, however, you have learned to conquer this fault there is nothing in the world that is too hard for you to master. Appreciation from others is the breath of life to you, while criticism seems only to hurt your feelings and to accomplish no real good.

Your choice of a life partner is indeed a large one. A marriage with Sagittarius, Nov. 22-Dec. 21, or with Aquarius, Jan. 20-Feb. 19, is a harmonious one, but perhaps the most harmonious of all would be with Aries, March 20-April 19. A union with Pisces is one to be avoided, for as a rule Pisces people are the kind that require a reason for everything and always have one to give and Libra acts entirely from impulse and intuition and never has a reason for anything. So you can see for yourself the matrimonial rocks that such a combination would be likely to strike.

The colors of all Libra people are crimson, light blue, and black, and the birthstone is the sapphire.

Questions Referred.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 20 years of age. Since I was 15 I have loved a young man and he loves me. He has asked me many times to marry him, and I don't know what to say. There are objections on both sides because we are cousins. I have tried many times to leave him. I have told him not to care for me, and he tried to stay away, but we always go back. Now, please tell me what to do. HANNAH."

Before you consider matrimony, write to the Eugenics Record office, Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y., giving complete family history on both sides, and they will tell you whether or not you two should marry.

Try Green Eyed Remedy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am past 19 and have been going with a fellow who is 21 for a year. He told me several times that he loved me, and yet he goes with other girls and has their pictures. I love him dearly and wonder how I could win his whole love. He gets mad if I even talk to another fellow. Do you think that he really loves me? If I thought he didn't I wouldn't waste my time on him, even if I do care for him. Will you please advise me? I go over to his home a great deal because his mother is fond of me. I also drive his car for his mother. Do you think because I am there so much, it causes him not to care for me? Your advice will certainly be accepted. LENA."

Don't let him think you are crazy about him, and don't make yourself too "ever present." Give him a chance to miss you once in a while. In fact, I would advise you to play on his jealousy a little bit, and get some other men interested in you. Then if he really cares for you he will declare himself if he sees a possible chance of losing you.

Various Questions.

"Dear Miss Blake: Will you kindly tell me which a boy should remove first, upon entering the house, his hat or his gloves? Also, when a girl is given a box of candy, should she take the first piece herself or first offer it to the boy? I should appreciate it greatly if you would tell me what my handwriting indicates. I am 19 years of age. MARY."

1. His hat.
2. Offer it to the boy first.
3. I am sorry I am not a handwriting expert, but your writing is very neat and good.

Just Trifling Quarrel.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 21 years old and have been keeping company until recently with a young man 21 years old. I work until 7 o'clock on Saturday, and he was supposed to meet me. I waited about 15 minutes, and as he did not come I went to the show with my sister, thinking he missed the train. So I wrote to him, telling him why I did not wait, and to call me up. He called, but I was not at home, and he has never called up since, but speaks when we meet on the street. One of my girl friends asked him why he stopped going with me and he said I got tired of seeing him. Now, Miss Blake, this is not so, as I like him very much, and had reason to think he liked me. I would like some advice from you. "FLORENCE."

I don't think the fault was yours. No man should expect a woman to wait more than fifteen minutes for him. In fact, lots of women wouldn't wait that long, but then I think this is just a silly little quarrel over nothing at all, and if I were you, the next time I met him on the street I would stand and talk to him and have it out and be friends again. You both will be happier for the making up, I feel sure.

Carrying a Swagger Stick.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would you please give me a few important points about the use of a walking cane? My gentleman friend wants to get me a cane and I don't know how to use one. Also, can canes be carried when going to a dance, show, or cabaret? LORETTO."

You need to be just about the last word in style to carry a walking stick becomingly. It is one of the extreme touches that only an unusual type of girl can, if I may be slangy, "get away with." It looks thoroughly silly in the hands of an ordinary looking and ordinarily dressed girl, and it is entirely out of place at a dance, show, or cabaret. Its place is on avenue parade.

Order Blank for Clotilde Patterns

CLOTILDE, SUNDAY TRIBUNE, CHICAGO.

Inclosed fine $........ Please send me the Clotilde patterns listed below:

Pattern number. Size. Price.

Name............................................................

Street............................................................

City.................................... State................................

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

It Looked Easy.

One day I saw a parachute descend at a street fair. It looked so easy that I decided I could do it. I took the largest umbrella that I could find and, climbing to the hayloft window, opened the umbrella, and jumped. Instead of sailing gracefully to the ground, I came down in frightful haste, landing on top of the umbrella with an awful jolt. Luckily, the only casualties resulting were one broken rib belonging to the umbrella, and a wiser and sadder child. M. A. J.

Hoping for a Surprise.

It was the ambition of my childhood to have a birthday surprise party. Surprises were so thrilling. I longed for the experience, but in vain until my twelfth birthday approached. Then I imagined I detected an atmosphere of mystery and secret preparation at home. I considerately absented myself whenever possible, assumed an innocent, detached air, refrained from questionings, and secretly construed many remarks of my friends and relatives to have reference to the surprise.

The longed for day arrived. It was easy to sense the undercurrent of excitement that pervaded my school and home. I marveled, uncomfortably, at every one's confidence in my stupidity. After supper, which I scarcely tasted, I ran to a neighbor's house, on some pretext, there to await summons to the "surprise."

At 7:30 I began to have misgivings about the party, but soon my straining ears heard voices and presently there came a knock at the door. Mother had sent for me. I just flew across the street with my heart pounding loudly.

I found about a dozen girls, and when I urged them in an unnatural voice to remove their wraps, one said, "Oh, no, we can't stay. We are decorating the church for tomorrow, and came for your mother's house plants." In ten minutes they were gone, and shortly I was in bed with hot tears soaking my pillow.

That was more than twenty years ago and I have never had a "surprise."

Mrs. E. G. H.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When——." Address Embarrassing Moments Editor, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Write on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts will be returned.

Winding Up the Yarn.

As I drove my sister home from town a most embarrassing accident occurred. She was knitting a bright cerise sweater and her ball of yarn blew out of the auto and before I could stop the car the yarn was a block behind us, a conspicuous thread of flame stretching from our machine down the center of the boulevard. Because I am only 15 she made me get out and pursue that elusive wool to its lair. Traffic halted. Crowds gathered. 'Mid their hoots and jeers I breathed, "When a feller needs a friend." D. J. V.

The Pie Was Good.

My husband is the most tactless man in the world. When I prepare a meal for just us two of two chops, two baked potatoes, three sliced tomatoes, and a small pie, it is most embarrassing to have him bring home three full grown men to dinner with him.

That is what I was up against the other day. So I hurried and opened canned things and took my husband in the kitchen and tried to impress on his mind the necessity of refusing certain dishes, and in no circumstances was he to urge the guests to have a second helping.

By cutting the pie in pieces about half the usual size we had just enough to go around, and I began to think everything would be all right when my husband asked for another piece of pie and insisted on our guests having a second piece also. I. A. C.

Sudden Rise of Sentiment.

A friend of my brother's had been visiting at our house for several days. He was a number of years my senior, but so handsome it is little wonder I became infatuated with him, though I would not have him know it for the world.

Then one day I was cleaning my brother's room when I found the photograph of his friend. It was a splendid one of him and I gazed at it a long time. The clear dark eyes looked at me so earnestly that, yielding to a sudden rise of sentiment, I passionately pressed it to my heart, then tenderly raised it to my lips. Holding it off at arm's length I turned, that the light might fall on it more fully, and—horrors!—there in the doorway, watching me with an extremely amused expression, was my brother's friend. O. P.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Hops.

Before we were married he was so attentive! He always helped me in and out of the car. Now he says, when we reach the car, "Hop in," and when we get out he says "Hop out." L. U.

Made Up for Neglect.

Before we were married my fiancé never had the money to bring me candy, flowers, etc. [not even an engagement ring], because he was working his way through school. But we have been married eleven years, and he not only brings me flowers, but willingly goes to the woods, tramps, and climbs over the hills, digs up roots, and does everything for me.

I believe hundreds of women would gladly give up the flowers before marriage if they could be assured of these attentions afterwards. F. B.

A Rose on the Corn.

One day my cousin came home to her mother in tears, after she had been married for about two months.

Her name is Rose, and during the engagement her husband to be had always had embroidered on his socks a rosebud. Soon after they were married he one day brought home several pairs of socks which were not so marked, so Rose spent hours painstakingly putting on the little sentimental emblem.

When he went to put on a pair of the new ones he growled: "Gosh, do I have to have these cornmakers on my feet for the rest of my life?" F. M. H.

His Highest Compliment.

Before we were married my husband paid me compliments, but now he does better—he pays my bills. Mrs. J. K.

Juice of Lemons Creates A Clear, Soft, Rosy Skin

Tells women how to make a lemon beauty cream cheaply for the face, neck, arms and hands

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as sallowness, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy or toilet counter and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is wonderful to smoothen rough red hands.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

SLOW COOKING MEATS.

PERHAPS the University of Idaho's list of slow cooking meats is as good a one as has ever been compiled. I have never seen a better. Other bulletins giving recipes for the slower cooking and formerly the much cheaper cuts of meat do not give a complete list of those requiring this treatment.

These slow cooking cuts of meat are universally the ones that are extended with water, vegetables, rice, barley, and in some cases dried peas and beans. By the addition of the leguminous dried vegetables the protein content of the whole is raised.

In the new farmer's bulletin 824, the third in the series of "How to Select Foods," with the title, "Foods Rich in Protein," there is a recipe for beef and bean stew containing from three to four ounces of protein, a third of which is added by the beans, though we consider that the meat is the prime protein food. Some people think a chili con carne is a meat and bean stew, but people who have traveled up and down Mexico say that in its native state it contains no beans.

An interesting thing has happened in the last half dozen years to teach people greater accuracy in their use of different cuts. In other words, the geography of a side of beef looks like a much more thickly settled territory than formerly. The charts representing a side of beef for half a century or more seldom had more than sixteen divisions, or merely the wholesale cuts. Some of the latest ones have the retail cuts, seventy or more. Besides this, by means of photography a great number of these retail cuts have been pictured.

By studying these pictures and buying meet one may soon learn whether he is getting cut No. 1 from the round or cut No. 14 or No. 10 or No. 6, etc. He may study the chuck cuts, and the rib cuts, and the loin cuts in the same way. Some butchers have the steak cuts represented in papier maché, just as the parts of a man are so represented for the study of physiology. All this advance in accuracy or precision took place before food administration was thought of, but it really was a working towards many forms of conservation.

Undoubtedly greater precision is yet to come, for young meat has come into wider use and attention, and that has its advantageous cuts, which are smaller than the wholesale or general divisions. When it comes to cooking, too, the different age of the meat counts, and we might have more precise information along this line than most housekeepers realize or than cooking textbooks show. In other words, a great deal of the technical knowledge about meats, formerly known only to the trade, is becoming general knowledge, much to our gain, especially in thrift.

A bone requires long slow cooking, no matter what the age of the meat, and almost any bone will yield some precious fat and those jellies which in high class cookery are so highly prized. Even bones that have first been roasted may be slowly and long cooked for gravies, the rack of a roast turkey cooked for twelve hours giving a serviceable stock. The frame of a roast chicken should yield the same service, and I have got enough stock from the bones of two small broiled lamb chops to make the base of a good sauce for macaroni or spaghetti. Beef bones, whether from roast or steak, contain fat enough to make it worth while to cook them slowly and long.

An item that is not quite to the point here, but one worth while in these days when more small meats than ever may be used, is that we get more calories per pound from the young than from older meat, but, of course, we usually pay more. For instance, green goose ready this month contains practically 800 more calories per pound, according to farmers' bulletin No. 34, than older fowl. A capon yields almost twice as many calories per pound as young chicken, but a fat old hen contains almost as many. The duckling exceeds the duck in calories by almost 500 calories per pound, and squabs contain nearly 400 calories more per pound than pigeons. But young turkey is considerably behind its elders in caloric content.

In large establishments, for nobody knows how long, there have been meat cooks who could not make anything save meat to perfection, and this has not always been because there were so many to cook for. These cooks often have had years of apprenticeship in the sole art of cooking meat. Little by little what they have known to perfection is getting into the practice of those who formerly spoke of "plain" cooking as quite sufficient for all but extraordinary service. In plain cooking best meats were only tolerably well cooked, and those requiring exacting attention never well cooked. But in ornamental meat cookery nothing has been more and more finely used than the slowly cooked meat stock, while pieces like beef tongue, requiring slow cooking, have been mounted and speared with decorated silver skewers, piped and garnished.

Slow cooking meats in the Idaho list:

BOILING MEATS.

- Beef horseshoe piece—end round.
- Beef shoulder clod.
- Rib ends of beef.
- Short ribs of beef.
- Beef brisket.
- Corned beef.
- Rump.
- Flank.
- Plate.
- Beef tongue, fresh.
- Beef tongue, smoked.
- Leg of mutton.
- Shoulder of mutton.
- Shoulder of lamb.
- Leg of pork.
- Ham, smoked.
- Pork shoulder, fresh.
- Pork shoulder, smoked.
- Pork hocks.
- Back bones and neck bones.

STEWING MEATS.

- Beef plate.
- Beef flank.
- Beef skirts.
- Beef neck.
- Beef shin.
- Breast of mutton.
- Breast of lamb.
- Veal breast.
- Veal neck.

SOUP AND BROTH MEATS.

- Shin soup bones.
- Hind shank soup bones.
- Knuckle soup bones.
- Oxtail.
- Beef neck.
- Beef shoulder clod.
- Beef round.
- Mutton shoulder.
- Mutton neck.
- Mutton shanks.

All the pot roasting pieces, several of which are included in the Idaho list, are really meats that should be slowly cooked, and the best piece of beef for pot roasting is the chuck. Stewing and fricassee chicken should be included in a list of slow cooking meats, and if we made the division between slowly cooked and the quickly cooked meats, we would include roasts, for while they are subjected to high temperature at first, this must be greatly lowered for the real and slow roasting. The first or high temperature is merely to close the pores of the meat, so that the juices will not escape, and instead of this hot fat may be poured over them to start.

Boiled Meat.

A piece of boiling beef should be dropped into rapidly boiling water from a pint to a quart per pound, so as to seal the pores somewhat, but after that the meat must be simmered because it takes time for the heat to penetrate to the center, and if the water outside is too hot this heat gets in more slowly, because the outer surfaces are too much hardened or toughened. The connective tissue, if the meat is gently cooked, will not be dissolved out, and leave the meat a mass of strings. The meat of an old hen can be so hardened by too much fire in the first half hour that it will never become tender, no matter how long cooked.

Beef and Bean Stew.

A recipe from farmers' bulletin No. 834: "One pound of beef (lower round), one cup of red kidney beans, one onion, one cup of canned tomatoes or two or three fresh tomatoes, two ounces of salt pork. Wash the beans and soak them overnight. Cut the pork into small pieces and try out the fat. Cut the beef into small pieces and brown it in the pork fat, then add the vegetables with water enough to cover. Cook just below the boiling point for about three hours. This dish serves about eight persons."

Spicy Pot Roast.

Almost any of the slower cooking cuts of meat may be pot roasted in a small Dutch oven—beef chuck, round, horseshoe piece, shoulder of mutton or lamb, breast of lamb and mutton, and almost any small fowl may be roasted and flavored deliciously in this way, although they might be too dry baked in the oven. The dryer the meat the more necessary it is to cook it in a well seasoned moisture, and to seal the pores carefully at the start by rolling it in flour and then searing it on all sides in some tried out fat.

To make it spicy, rub it over with a clove of garlic and put it to cook on a bed of vegetables which have been stirred around in the fat and cooked until the moisture commences to come out of them. The careful cook need not add any water, but by adding a little boiling water there will be a thick and palatable gravy formed within five minutes of the browned flour, fat, and liquid. This thickened liquid shortens the cooking time, and is good for the several bastings, as it becomes seasoned with the onion, carrots, celery, etc., of the bed of vegetables. A little dried pepper and other herbs to taste may be used and a little fresh ginger root—just a bit—also improves the blend. The blend must be perfect or the meat will not be as perfectly seasoned as it might be.

An iron Dutch oven is best on account of its heavy cover closing the kettle so closely, but an aluminum one would be better if it had such a cover, as the careless cook would have a greater margin of safety, since neither meat nor vegetables would so easily catch to that metal as to the iron. But if the fire is kept at the lowest point after the dish is well started, all will be well. With the fire at the lowest you can hear it cooking, if you listen carefully, and know that it is all right.

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

FIRST TEACHINGS LASTING.

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

LESSONS learned early in life make most impression on the receptive young mind; so manners taught then become second nature and a part of the individual. Therefore, begin as soon as possible to teach your children "deportment," to use an old fashioned term. Especially train them in the attractive and suitable way to greet older people.

In England and other European countries the "bob," or curtsy, is universal among young girls. In this country it is only among those versed in continental manners that this ceremonial greeting is in vogue. A young girl's curtsy indicates that her parents know the ways of the beau monde—at least to that extent.

As for boys, some careful mothers try to teach their sons the manners of the French boy, heels together and a deep bow to a man, while a woman's extended hand is lifted to the lips without the least embarrassment or self-consciousness. But this does not come easily to all American boydom, and can be relinquished in favor of a more simple greeting. It is second nature for French boys, and now that we know France better we perceive that it is not incompatible with courage and manliness. A French lad's mother receives the same deferential greeting from her sons that they give any other woman.

The writer knows some American boys with these attractive manners, and loves to meet them. However, for those boys whose mothers prefer "plain American" it is proper enough to bow politely and to say, "How do you do, Mrs. Smith?"

The great thing in this case, as in almost all others, is to insure unaffectedness and simplicity, whatever the accepted form of greeting may be. To do this, an early start must be made and strict rules adhered to, or else the children will grow away from instead of toward the desired perfection.

MRS. G.: When a married woman is calling upon another married woman, the former leaves two of her husband's cards and one of her own; when the recipient of the call is unmarried or a widow, the caller leaves one of her husband's cards and one of her own.

HELEN: It is not necessary to answer an invitation to a reception. If you are able to go, leave a card for each hostess when you depart; if it is impossible to attend, mail cards to the hostesses so that they will arrive on the day of the reception.

The HOME HARMONIOUS

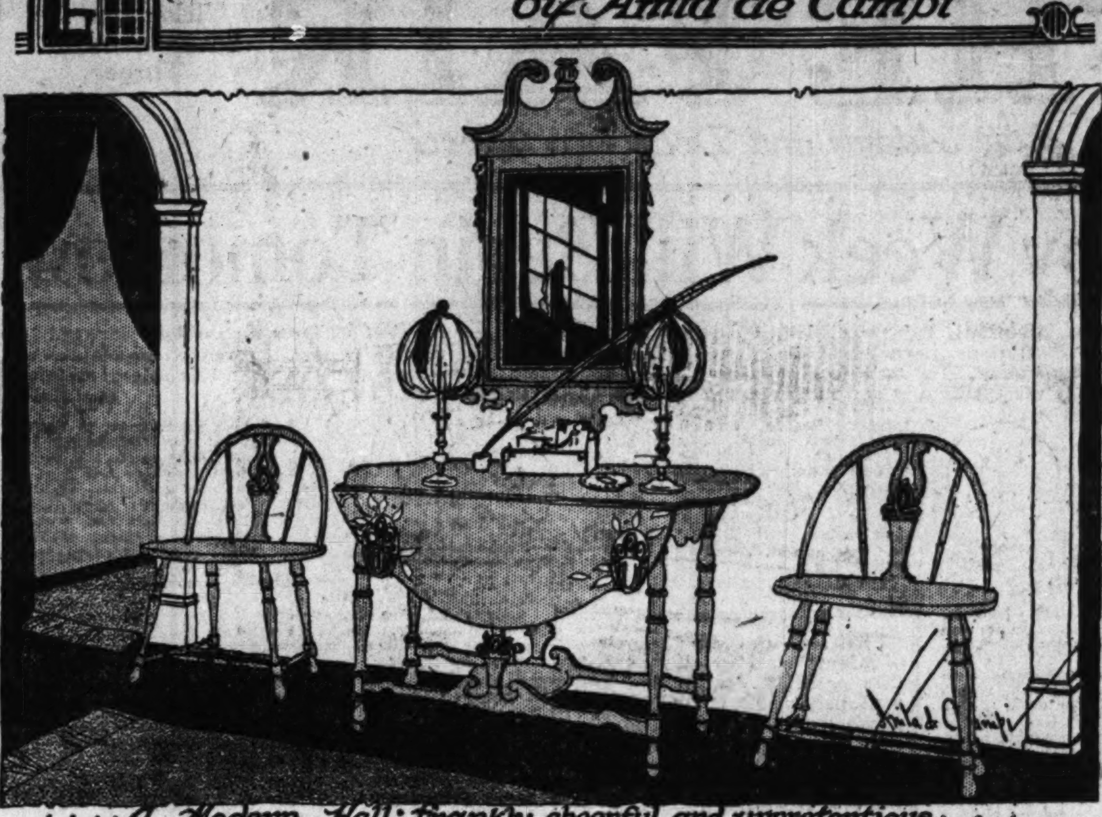
by Anita de Campi



. . . A Modern Hall; frankly cheerful and unpretentious . . .

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

SO little is required to make the hall hospitably cheerful that there is hardly an excuse for not having it so. The pieces to be purchased are few in number and need not be expensive. The trouble with the majority of halls is that they are too dark and somber.

The tendency of the day, to counteract this, is to use light wallpaper and to do away with heavy fixtures. Light woodwork, too, is considered desirable. If the hallway is in white enamel, the baluster, spindles, and risers of the steps are painted white, while the treads of the stairs and baluster railing are left "natural." If a dark carpet is used on the stairs, the whole stairway, including the treads, is painted white. The carpet is allowed to come to the bottom of the last riser, and a rug is drawn up to it on the floor below.

The floor and walls present their own problems that must be dealt with before the question of furniture is touched. The large majority of city people live in rented houses or apartments, and cannot choose the hall flooring they would like. To those who have a voice in the matter, it might be suggested to break away from the usual conventional hardwood and to use instead floors of tile or concrete. These are vastly preferable to wood, as they are qualified to withstand, without showing wear, the repeated washings that passageways from the street need. Brick, concrete, and stone are none the worse for good scrubbings. Large red quarry tiles are the best of all.

The walls nearly always require treatment that lights them up—so seldom does one see a hall that is sufficiently lighted. Painted paneled canvas is an ideal material, especially to use in conjunction with decorated furniture. Indeed, it is good with any sort of furniture. The color that reflects the greatest amount of light is buff, and so, whether paint, paper, or sand finish is to be used, this color should be interjected into it, either singly or combined with other colors. The woodwork may be white or old ivory enamel. Two toned papers in buff and fawn are lovely for halls.

In the matter of floor covering nothing is better than an oriental rug. It should not be hefty or unwieldy, but small and light enough for the maid unaided to lift and carry it out of doors to sweep it.

Could anything be uglier than the built in hat racks that still deck many of our hallways? It will often be found, however, that they can be altered with facility and made to adapt themselves to new treatment. The first thing to do is to take off the hardware. The hooks are usually screwed on and are easily removed. The same is true of the umbrella holder, and the base is nearly always removable. Store these things carefully and replace them at the expiration of your lease. The screw holes left in the wood should be coated with glue and filled with putty. After that the nicely stripped hatrack may be enameled to match the rest of the woodwork.

The mirror which is a recognized part of the hatrack may be left as it is, and it will not be objectionable if an arrangement of furniture such as is shown in the accompanying sketch is used with it. Draw a little hall table, chest, or stand with drawers directly under it and place a chair at either side and the passé hall will be completely modernized.

The furniture illustrated here is the manufacturers' latest offering to cheerify the diminutive "reception hall." It comes in light neutral tinted enamels, oyster green, gray, mauve, taupe, old blue, etc. The queer little Windsor chairs have wide seats that are shallow in depth, and the back splats are ornamented with motifs in brilliant color. The motifs are repeated in the table flaps. Little electric candle shades are attractive. These are made of charmeuse gathered at the top under a bright silk pompon and tassel. It is quite simple, yet vivacious and interesting.

Any sort of "wall furniture" is suitable for halls. This includes narrow sofas, high boys, low boys, chests, mirrors, cabinets, chairs, small tables, etc. It is important that these be dignified in aspect as well as few in number, and they must not be littered with bric-à-brac. Pairs of candlesticks always are appropriate. A silver salver for cards is acceptable. Bric-à-brac is not entirely taboo, but it must be restrained. A pair of fine vases on either side of a low bowl is excellent on the hall table, but anything added to this would detract from the neat effect.

Hats, coats, and umbrellas must most emphatically be kept out of sight. An easily accessible closet should be reserved for their housing.

It is in good taste to have one or two pictures in the hall, but caution must be observed not to make a picture gallery of it. In an extremely limited space I have seen just one piece of furniture, and that was a long, narrow modern adaptation of an Italian bench. It was flanked by a pair of floor candlesticks holding great red wax candles, and above it was a breadth of machine tapestry. The same idea is carried out and greater convenience gained by substituting a chest for the bench.

Another small hall arrangement is not bisymmetric, but has a little William and Mary table in the corner, with a brown mahogany chair before it. The chair seat is upholstered in satin and silk striped peacock blue and old ivory stuff. The branch candle wall lights have little shield shades of gold colored silk. A small mezzotint at one side is framed in walnut. On the desk is a scarlet leather folio and a quill pen nearly a yard long made of a speckled feather is stuck into a tiny jade cup filled with shot. This is on one side of the guest's folio and an ivory carved ink well is on the other. The walls are paneled old ivory. The floor is covered with taupe filling and partially recovered with a Persian rug.

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. L. M. M.: Use a long narrow runner of brocade finished off with galloon for your dining room table. It need not be lined.

MRS. WILLIAM J.: I believe your best choice for the whole first floor would be putty colored grass cloth. Use candle sidelight electric fixtures in all the rooms except the dining room. Here use an electric candelabra center light.

MRS. J. W. M.: I believe a black rug would be too sharp a contrast with the rest of your things. Besides, really black rugs are not satisfactory. They show every dust mark from the feet and soon grow shabby. A mulberry colored rug would be nice with your things, or a deep bronzed taupe with self-colored border in a darker shade.

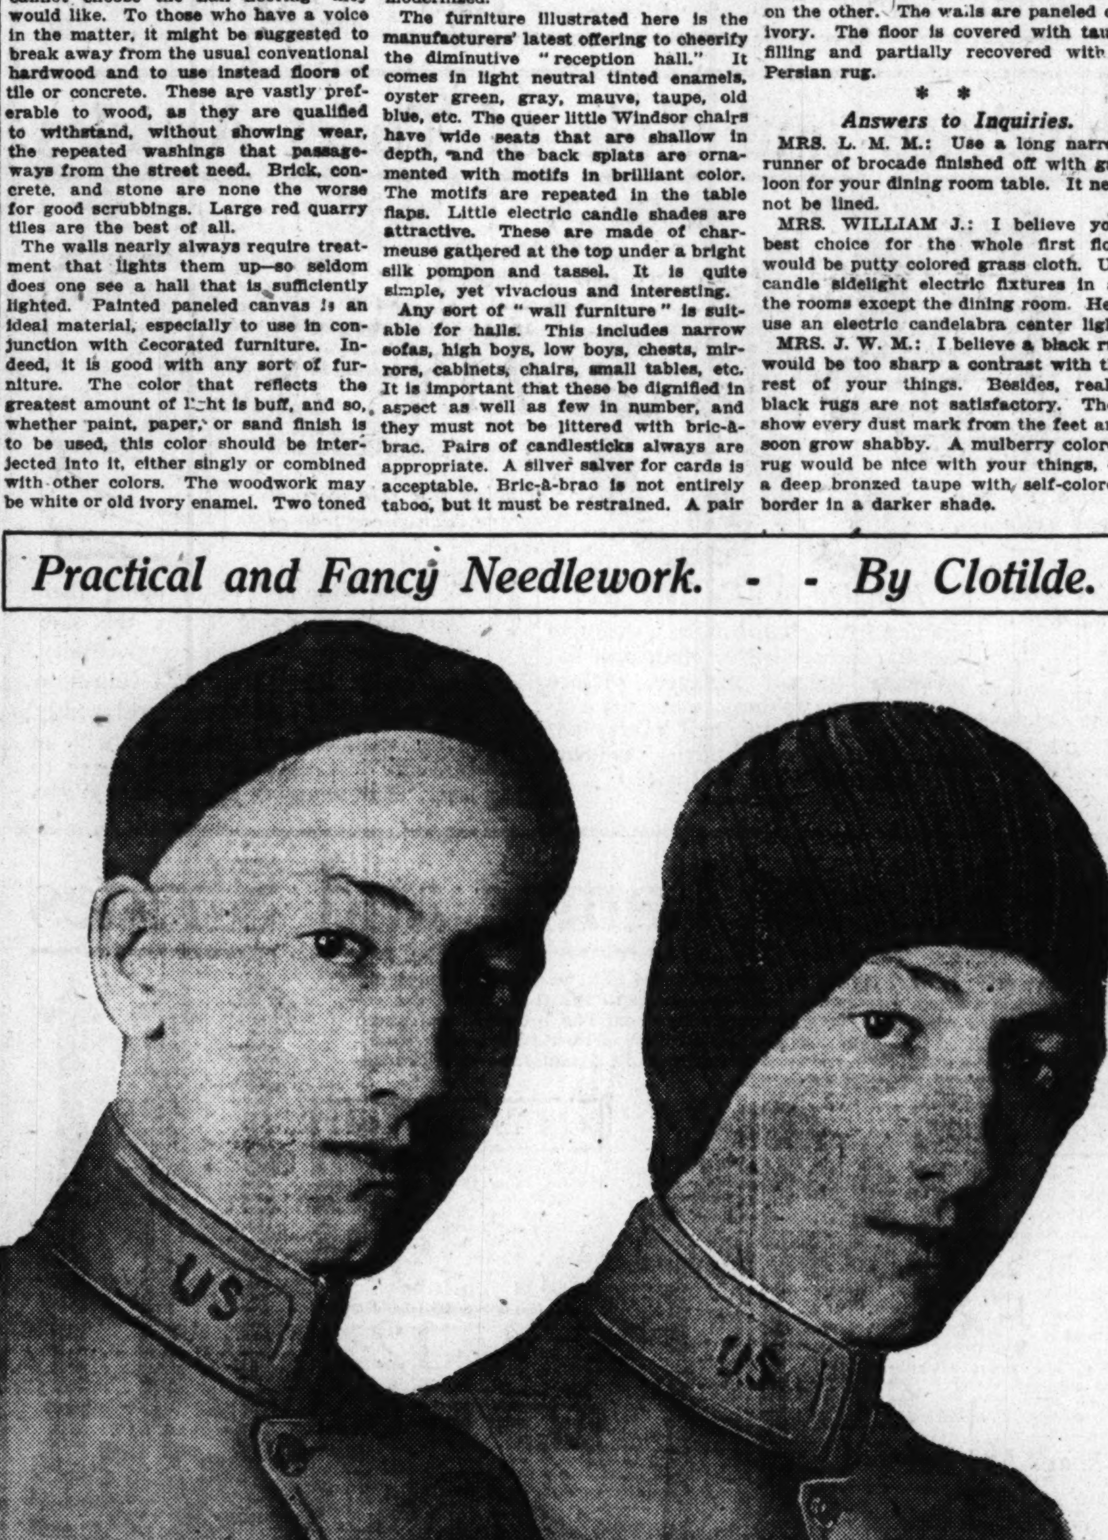
Practical and Fancy Needlework. - - - By Clotilde.



Today are given the directions for another knitted Article which the Red Cross has found to be useful for the soldiers. It is called the trench cap. The men wear them under their helmets, and they also make excellent sleeping caps. The directions for making are as follows:

Materials: One hank khaki colored or dark gray wool, and four needles in bone, steel or celluloid the size of the No. 10 steel needle.

Cast on loosely on three needles 112 stitches, 40-36-36.

Knit 2, purl 2 for 6 inches, knit 1 round plain.

Knit 2 stitches together, knit 11, knit 2 stitches together, knit 1. Repeat to end of round. Knit 4 rows plain. Then knit 2 stitches together, knit 9, knit 2 together, knit 1. Repeat to end of round. Knit 4 rows plain. Continue in this way, narrowing on every fifth round and reducing number of stitches between narrowed stitches by 2 [as 7, 5, 3, etc.] until you have 28 stitches left on needles. Divide on 2 needles, having 14 on one needle and 14 on the other.

Holding the knitting needles together with "front" needle next to you, wool at right end of "back" needle, you are now ready to finish the cap.

With wool always under knitting needle, and at right of darning needle, slip darning needle through the first front stitch in the position of knitting and slip stitch off the knitting needle.

Slip darning needle through second front stitch in the position of purling and leave stitch on the knitting needle, making a prepared stitch. Draw wool close as in knitting.

Slip darning needle through first back stitch as in purling and slip stitch off knitting needle. Slip darning needle through second back stitch, as in knitting, and leave stitch on knitting needle as a prepared stitch.

Now slip darning needle through second front stitch in position of knitting and slip stitch off knitting needle. Slip darning needle through third front stitch in position of purling to prepare.

Purl second back stitch, slip it off knitting needle, and knit third back stitch to prepare.

Continue until all stitches are slipped off and then weave thread lengthwise through the cap for four inches. Also thread the length of wool at beginning of cap and weave it lengthwise.

This cap may be drawn over the ears or roll back, covering only the top of the head.

Joining the D. A. R.

"WILL you kindly give me the information as to how and where I may become a D. A. R. and to whom I must make application. I have the proof that I am eligible. M. J. H."

Your best plan would be to write to the national headquarters of the D. A. R. at Washington, stating your qualifications and asking them for information as to how to proceed. They will supply you with all data and also advise you as to the chapter with which you should connect yourself.

From a Prisoner of War.

"I beg leave to express my sincerest and most heartfelt thanks for your kindness. Today I received a nice, cheerful letter from a nice little girl and some pretty movie photographs. She did not give me her name and address, and herewith I desire to convey my profoundest thanks to her. She promised to send me more pictures soon, and I will be glad when they arrive. J. V."

This letter is from the prisoner of war in a detention camp who wrote to us some weeks ago speaking of his loneliness and desire to receive cheering letters. I am glad that he has one, but from the correspondent not sending her address, I gather that possibly she does not wish to receive an answer from him and thus start a correspondence. As the readers of the Corner know, we do not wish to bring young girls in touch with men whom they do not know, and the only reason for giving the address of this particular man to a girl who applied for it was because of his position as a prisoner of war and our sympathy for him in his homesick plight. I trust the "little girl" may see this and thus become aware of his appreciation.

House-Bound Two Years.

"If I could get some quilt pieces I could make good use of them. I would also like a wheel chair so that I could go into another room or get out into the yard. I think it would be nice, for the trees are so pretty. I am nearly 60 years old and I haven't been out of doors for two years. The kind of pieces I want most are some woolen ones with which to finish a quilt. N. S."

This impressed me as a sad case. A house-bound woman who has not been in the open air for two years has especially hard conditions in summer and I do hope there may be some means of procuring for her the wheel chair she longs for. So many kind deeds of this kind have been achieved by Cornerites that I have great faith in their powers. I am sure the quilt pieces will be forthcoming and I shall hope for applications for the writer's address, accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope.

Supports the Family.

"I wonder if the Corner, which is always helping some one, can become a helping hand for me, too. My husband is an old man, 76 years of age, a veteran of the civil war. I am myself no longer young, having reached the age of 50. I am at present nursing at $2 per day to provide food, clothing, and a room for my husband and little daughter. Our son, although he is just 17 years old, joined the national guard last year when the Mexican trouble threatened and is now away in the service of his country. [My dear little boy; God bless him!] So the whole burden falls upon me. I do what I can, but $2 a day does not go far in these days of high cost of living. I write to ask you if you have any idea of how I can dispose of some civil war relics. Can you advise us in this matter? MRS. W. H. C."

Unfortunately, we cannot offer articles for sale through the Corner, but some one may be able to advise you. It may be that some reader knows of a museum or a historical society which would be interested in securing such relics, and if any one does, he or she will write and ask for your address in order to bestow the desired information. It is a difficult matter to make both ends meet on even a more liberal income than $2 a day when it must support three persons, and I hope most earnestly that times may improve for you before long. In writing for the adress of this correspondent, kindly send stamped, adressed envelope.

Rug and Quilt Pieces.

"I wrote a while back for quilt pieces and rags for rugs. I will send stamps for them if you will let me know to whom to write. I would be so glad to get some pieces, as I am a shut-in and have been for eight years, and I get so lonely and discouraged. I have a lovely husband and two children and am so afraid the dear big one will be drafted. "MRS. G. W. S."

I wish I could have printed more of this appeal, but it was written in pencil and the handwriting was difficult to decipher. But the desire for the quilt pieces and the shut-in condition are both clear, and after all, these are the most important items. I hope to receive soon applications for her address from those who can send her the pieces she craves. In writing please do not omit to send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Cripple Wants Reading Matter.

"I am writing to the Corner at the request of a friend who is unable to write for herself. She is an elderly woman, past 50 years of age. When a young woman she suffered from a cancer for several years, but finally gained relief. While being treated for this trouble she was seized with rheumatism, which rapidly grew worse and since then she has been in continual pain.

"The rheumatism has so drawn and crippled the poor woman that with the exception of turning her head from side to side and moving her arms she cannot stir. Her fingers have become so twisted and stiffened that she is unable to do fancy work or any sewing. She is a widow, living with her daughter, who has her own family to care for.

"My friend asks me to say that she will greatly appreciate it if some of the Cornerites who have books and magazines to spare will send them to her. She can read and enjoys it.

"And now I have a request to make on my own behalf. I am desirous of learning shorthand, and if any one has a manual that she will exchange for something of equal value will you please let me know? I hope, though, that if there is any choice the request of my friend may be met rather than mine. I am the girl who was lonely."

Both of these requests appeal to all of us. The crippled woman who can find no means of entertaining herself except by books, and longs for these; the girl who wishes to learn shorthand and offers to give something of equal value in exchange for a manual, but asks that her friend's need be considered before her own, have an almost equal pull upon us. I trust that both needs may be met.

Wads of Water Soaked Paper Good for Fuel

By Isabella Gibbons.

PARIS.—[Office of the Army Edition of The Chicago Tribune.]—An American woman came into the office of the army edition the other day and asked that every mite of waste paper be saved and she not only would cart it away but would pay a good price for it. When reminded that waste paper was netting 80 cents a hundred in Chicago last May, she laughingly replied that it was worth more than that to her now.

Being a newspapr office, this sounded like a story and every one wanted to know why this well dressed young woman was out buying, or rather, trying to buy, waste paper. She grudgingly gave her reason, realizing no doubt that the Army Edition of THE TRIBUNE would be as much in the market for waste paper as she after they had heard her story. Here it is:

One day she discovered her thrifty maid rolling soggy balls of what seemed to her to be dough between her hands and placing them to dry in the sun. She said nothing, thinking it was another way of getting around the regulation war bread; but after several days, when she had as yet not seen them on the table, she inquired, and the maid proudly showed her a pile of these round balls as hard as briquettes, and equally good for fuel. The maid had saved the waste paper, pouring hot water over it, and when it was soft and soluble, rolled it firmly in her hands and dried it, making a good substitute for the much needed and scarce coal and wood.

This seems now to be a common method throughout Paris, as every one dreads the coming winter and a recurrence of the fuel shortage which they experienced last season. Some homes and factories have presses, which of course make the briquettes firmer and therefore more lasting and quite like the original one of coal dust and carbon scraps.

Although it would hardly do for our furnaces at home, there are many families living in old fashioned apartments or houses, burning air-tight heaters or stoves, who would be glad of these home made briquettes to take the chill off the "best room," if they only knew how to make them. It seems to be just the thing for the fireplaces and therefore appeals to everybody here both rich and poor.

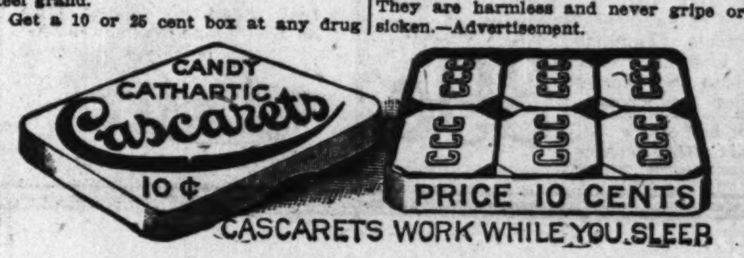
"CASCARETS" FOR COLDS; HEADACHES

They Gently Clean the Liver and Bowels, and Stop Headache, Colds, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath.

Enjoy Life! Take Cascarets and Wake Up Feeling Fit and Fine—Best Laxative for Men, Women, Children—Harmless—Never Gripe.

Cascarets are a treat! They liven your liver, clean your thirty feet of bowels and sweeten your stomach. You eat one or two Cascarets like candy before going to bed and in the morning your head is clear, tongue is clean, stomach sweet, breath right, cold gone, and you feel grand.

Get a 10 or 25 cent box at any drug store and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Stop sick headaches, bilious spells, indigestion, furred tongue, offensive breath and constipation. Mothers should give cross, peevish, feverish, bilious children a whole Cascaret any time. They are harmless and never gripe or sicken.—Advertisement.



LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once if bilious or constipated.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

WHY SOCIETY WOMEN WASH THEIR OWN HAIR

They do, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. They have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only. Many of our friends say they get the best results from a simple home-made Canthrox mixture. You can use this at a cost of about three cents a shampoo by getting some Canthrox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. This makes enough shampoo liquid to apply to all the hair instead of just the top of the head, as with most preparations. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear in the rinsing water. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you.—Advertisement.

Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any other magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

"Anna, O Anna, come here," called mamma, coming to the door with 2 year old Charles in her arms.

A muffled voice under the porch said, "Mamma?"

"Come here, Anna."

"Has you dot somefing for me?"

"Yes."

"Well, I don't want to tom den, 'cause I slapped bruver and I know's fot you'se dot for me." O. E. A.

I was visiting a friend of mine who has two children. She had just baked a cake and had the frosting in a dish ready to spread on the cake. Robert, a neighbor's child, who was there, asked her: "Is John or Betty going to lick the dish?"

She answered, "No, dear, they are in school."

"Well," he said, "who is going to lick the dish?"

She replied, "Why, you are, Robert."

Robert's eyes got as big as saucers. Just then his mother called him. He went to the window and said, "Just a minute, mother. I'm doing something for Mrs. Smith." C. S.

Robert had been named after his uncle. On Robert's fourth birthday the uncle paid the family an unexpected visit. They were quite astounded when the child came into the dining room and greeted his uncle in this fashion: "Hello, there, Uncle Me!"

MARELLE C. SLICK,
72 East Oak street.

My sister was trying to keep my little niece quiet, as they were getting ready for a funeral next door, but Mary persisted in laughing aloud. Finally, she said: "Mary, do be quiet; don't you know there's a dead lady next door?"

Mary looked up at her with wide open blue eyes, "But, mother dear, she can't hear me, can she?" L. V. M.

A neighbor kindly presented two boys with a bag of candy and inquired later how they enjoyed it. "Just fine," said one. "Will you bring us some more when it is done? We are pretty big eaters!" C. B. F.

One day Marion went to visit her aunt who had a large collie dog named Jim. Marion played with him for a while and then went into the house and asked for something for Jim to eat. Her aunt gave her a few crusts of bread, which she took and laid before him, but instead of eating them he merely smelled them and stalked away. Marion looked after him a while and then shook her head and said, "Gee, but he is a 'culier kind of a dog." X.

Naomi's father brought home a fuchsia which was minus blossoms. One morning Naomi awakened to fin the plant covered with its heart shaped flowers and, calling to her mother, exclaimed, "Come quick, mother, and see daddy's plant; it's growing valentines."

Helen, after spending the afternoon at a little friend's house, was asked to come over again that evening. She replied, "Yes, thank you, I will." That evening, sitting on the porch with her mother, she said, "Ise dot to go over to Gracie's." Mother, replying, said, "No, not tonight, Helen." "O, but, mother, I'se dot to. 'Cause I means what I says." R. W.

How I Overcame Insomnia

Have you discovered relief from the agony of sleepless nights? Have you found some remedy for broken sleep? If so, won't you please pass your secret on to some poor sufferer from insomnia? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Overcame Insomnia." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Antoinette Donnelly, Chicago Tribune.

Every night just before retiring I took a brisk walk around the block and [illegible] a glass of milk. Now I am able to sleep like a brick. A. B.

Light Meal at Night.

For years I was unable to sleep in the early part of the night, and I used to grow nervous just lying in bed trying to force myself to sleep. Then business changes made it possible for my husband to be at home three meals a day and we began to have our dinner at noon. I [illegible] ate a nursery supper with the children at 5:30 and, being hungry again by bedtime, I formed the habit of eating a bowl of bread and milk just before retiring. I now fall asleep almost immediately and sleep soundly all night. But if I go out to dinner and eat a hearty meal at 6 o'clock or later I pay the penalty of a sleepless, restless night. And if I omit my bedtime bite, as the children call it, I do not go to sleep as readily. So it's two slices of bread and a pint of milk for mine every night as long as the wheat lasts. M. M. P.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Lost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

He Can't Forget.

On our return from the park a woman entered the car with a child in her arms. Unable to find a seat she held a strap near us. I failed to notice her and kept talking to my sweetheart, when to my surprise and embarrassment she stood up and offered the woman her seat, after giving me one quick, scornful look. She refused to see me and later she returned my ring with a message saying she would never marry so thoughtless a man and that if I could so easily forget my manners I could also forget her. This was untrue, for though I am now an old bachelor I still remember her. P. M. G.

I am naturally fastidious, I am afraid. On one particularly dusty day, while we stopped beside a shop window, I noticed "the only girl" carefully rubbing first one shoe and then the other against her stockings. She restored a fine polish to her patent leathers, but she rubbed the bloom off my admiration and love by that small action. And now there is another "only girl." H. B.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH 'DANDERINE'

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair—You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

A PRICE MEANS NOTHING BY ITSELF—BUT WHEN YOU DISCOVER AN ARTICLE SOLD AT HARTMAN'S FOR TEN DOLLARS—WHICH ELSEWHERE WOULD COST TWELVE DOLLARS—THE PRICE MEANS MUCH—AS ALL FAIR PRICES ALWAYS WILL!

WE urge you, however, not to consider a price low just because it looks low in an advertisement. Examine first of all the value you buy. You will find articles in our extensive assortments which may cost a trifle more than similar-looking articles in other stores—but the value you receive for your money is so superior that there can be no comparison. When the need of new home furnishings arises, go to that institution whose merchandise performs faithful service in the homes of your friends. Seek the store where the salespeople are obliging and courteous; where a constant effort to please is manifested; where stocks are complete and service prompt and efficient. Look for the store that advertises truthfully; whose prices are modest but uniform; where loyal patrons, having once experienced satisfaction, return again and again, secure in the knowledge that their money will be well and profitably spent. Go to Hartman's.

AMONG US MORTALS
SIGHTSEERS AND OTHERS DRAWN BY
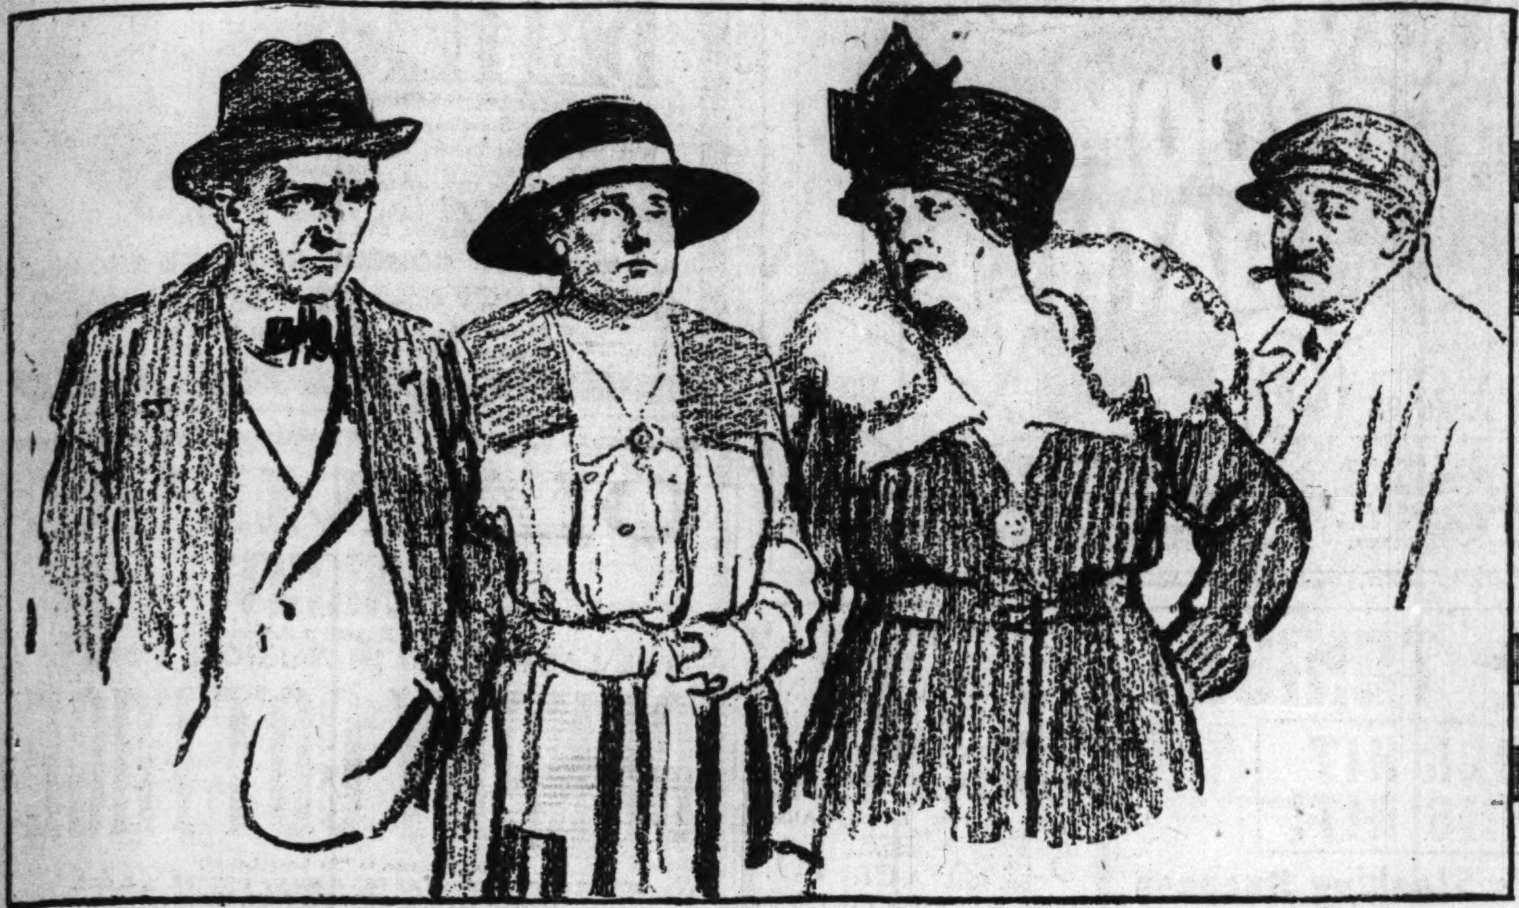
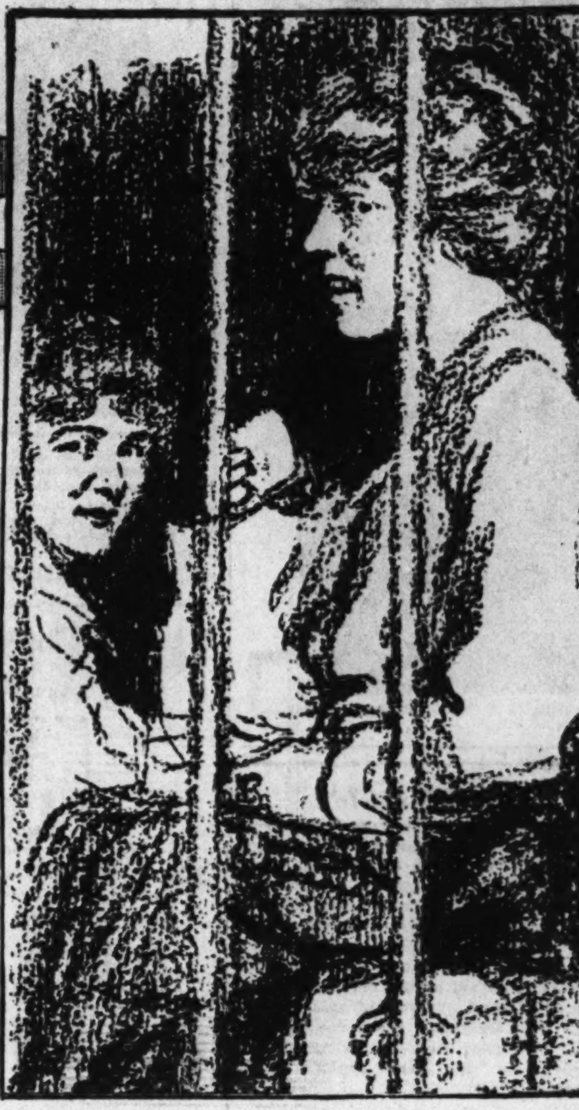
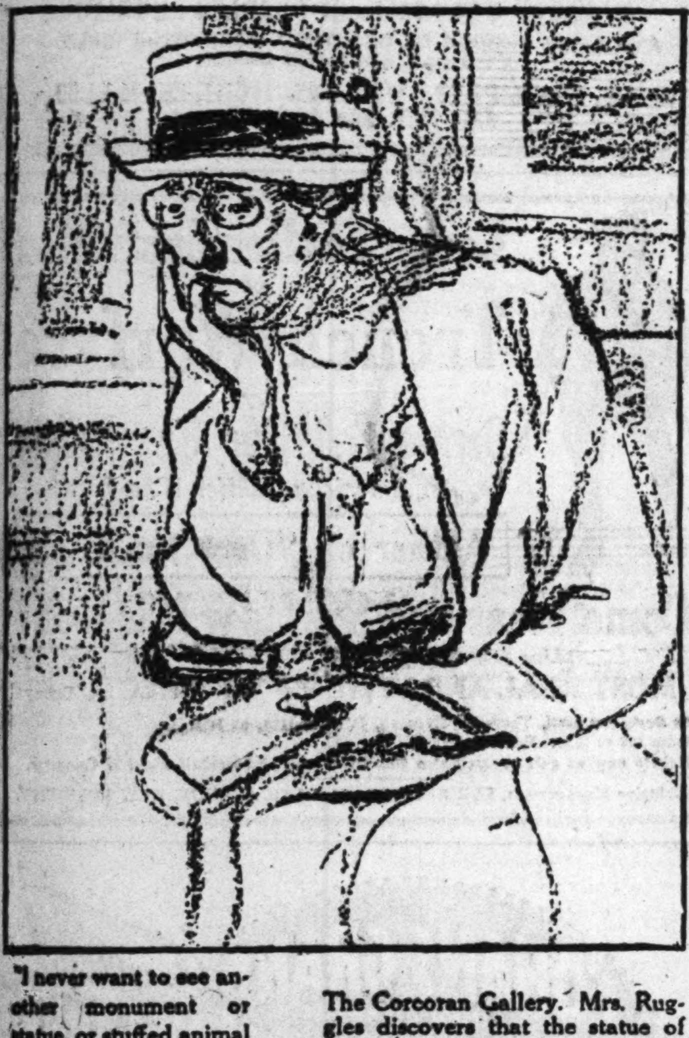
W. E. HILL
WASHINGTON.......... D. C.



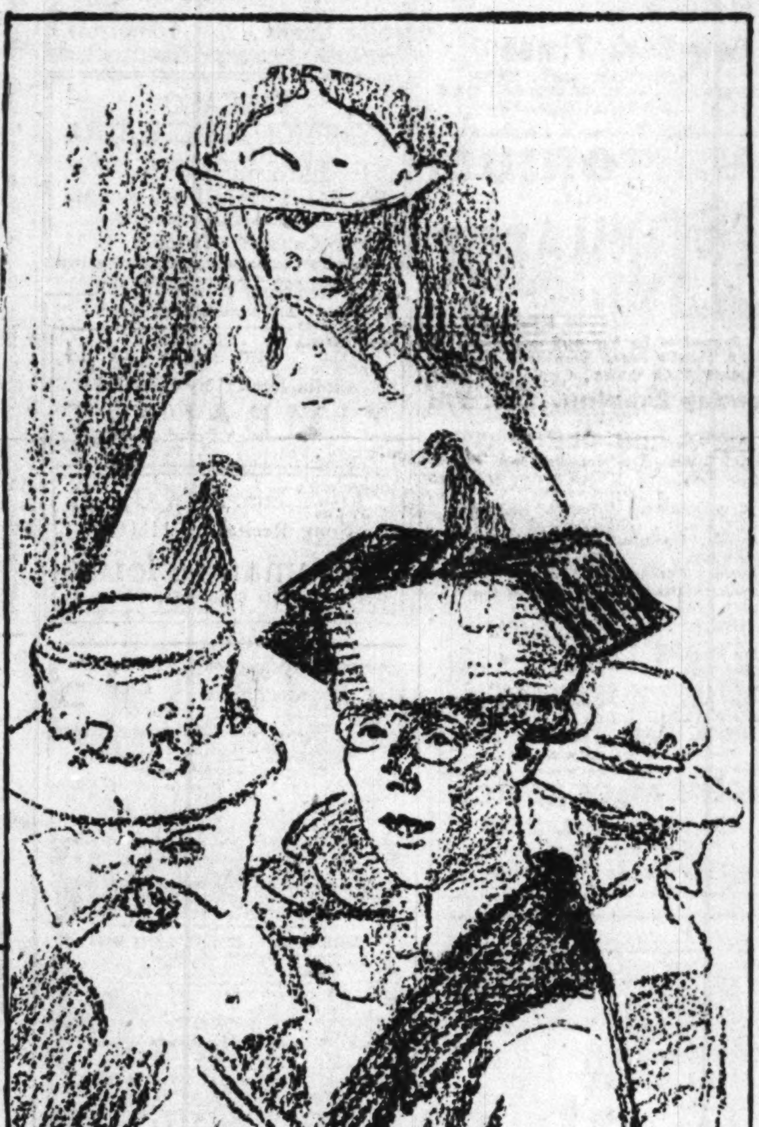
Opposite the White House. "Well, it doesn't look to me nearly as big as our place in St. Louis."



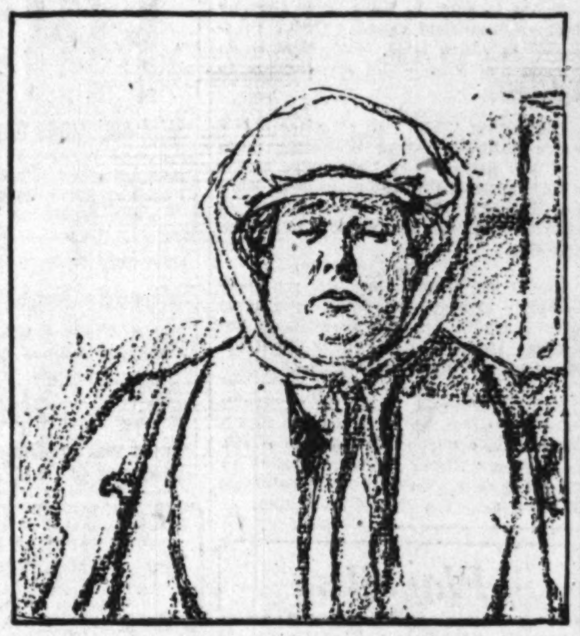
Behind the bars of the Treasury window at lunch time.



"I never want to see another monument or statue, or stuffed animal —I just want to go home and lie down."



The Corcoran Gallery. Mrs. Ruggles discovers that the statue of David is wearing a hat not unlike the one the cook at home has been wearing for the past two seasons.



The Washington Monument Aunt Hattie, notwithstanding the fact that she is hardly the right size to get through the window, has that sensation of wanting to jump off, and is terribly frightened.

Two "cullud pussons" whose regard for proprieties is upset by the suffrage pickets to such an extent that it causes Eliza, on the right, to blush for her sex.

Leo Ditrichstein Exhumes a Drama

By Percy Hammond.

MR. DITRICHSTEIN, a fine actor with lofty ambitions, aspires, it is inferred, to be the First Actor, and in furtherance of that yearning, has turned to the "classics."

One suspects that he did not have in mind the belief that mediocrity is the firmest foundation for permanent reputation in art; he is too honest and earnest a player for that. But he selected, nevertheless, as his contribution to the worthy-things-done-worthily tradition, an old play (which, as produced in Milwaukee Thursday night) was dull, commonplace, and of no visible value either as drama or entertainment.

"The Judge of Zalamea" ("El Alcalde de Zalamea") is the title and the author, the Spanish Calderon, who wrought with such celerity in the seventeeth century that he left 220 plays to a dubious posterity of book-worms. He thrived in Spain's most wretched epoch and his patron was the lugubrious Philip IV., a royal third-rater of whom historians record that he laughed but three times in his life. He was a facile plagiarist, with a gift of gaudy rhetoric, and he fashioned his dramas with all the naive contempt for illusion that marked the dramatists of his time. Honor was most frequently his theme, and in excuse of his methods critics have narrated the fable of the ermine which rather than suffer its fur to be soiled resigns itself to its hunters.

From Mr. James Gibbon Huneker, who at Mr. Ditrichstein's suggestion has prepared a brochure on Calderon, it is learned that there are other opinions of "the Spanish Shakespeare." Shelley read Calderon's "ideal dramas with inexpressible wonder and delight," and Goethe, a dissimilar genius, was always moved to tears by the perusal of his works. James Russell Lowell undertook the American embassy to Spain that he might see a Calderon play acted, which was no more a sacrifice than that of Mr. Cohan, who went from New York to Milwaukee, similarly curious. "A true poet, indeed, if ever a man deserved the name," wrote Schlegel of Calderon, "employing the noblest and most delicate flowers to satisfy his taste." These critics might have been even more eulogistic had they seen Mr. Ditrichstein put life into a Calderon rôle, for it was a belief that the author was least skillful in his drawing of character.

Calderon read in the original and Calderon acted in an adapted translation in such material centers as Milwaukee and Chicago are, however, not the same. Since "The Judge of Zalamea" was "Englished," as Mr. Huneker puts it, by Edward Fitzgerald of the Rubaiyat and, perhaps, touched up a bit by Mr. Ditrichstein, there is no reason to believe that it is abused. At times the new version is startlingly colloquial. Such modern remarks as "safety first" and "stop your kicking" sound odd when uttered by a plumed hidalgo or a picturesque Castilian peasant in a red bonnet; and the information that they were current in the English of the period does not lessen the jar. The frayed quality of some of the lines is indicated in the speech of an impassioned don to the lady of his vagrant desires. He tritely likens her eyes to "twin stars." A comparison of the Judge's speech of admonition to his son, with the advice of Polonins, shows with what little reason Calderon was called "The Spanish Shakespeare."

Some post-performance conferences at which I eavesdropped on Thursday night in Milwaukee between Mr. Cohan and Mr. Harris, the owners; Mr. Forrest, the director, and Mr. Ditrichstein, the star, promise that "The Judge of Zalamea" tonight at the Grand will be different and better. Further expostulation, therefore, should be deferred. It was intimated in those deliberations, for instance, that the two clowns, who had scarcely a remote connection with the story, would be omitted, and that the ghastly spectacle of the ravisher, hanging dead from his gallows, would be tempered. There will be other amendments of an improving character. If it is possible to galvanize so obsolete an institution as the Spanish drama of three hundred years ago the feat will be performed by those who have it at present in charge. More citizens and soldiers will be seen tonight, and there will be more musicians in the orchestra, in an endeavor to make amends for the romantic glamour which was absent on Thursday night.

Mr. Ditrichstein's delicate and finished method is applied exquisitely to the impersonation of a rich old patrician peasant, who for his uprightness and fine sense of honor is elected magistrate of his village. Save for some symbolic wisps of straw with which he enters the play, he bears no trace of the rustic, but is rather a polished sort of gentleman-farmer, humorous and well-spoken. The tranquility of his life is interrupted by a troop of soldiers, the young captain of which, billeted in his house, abrades his hospitality by kidnaping his daughter and ravishing her.

This child is acted by Miss Madeline Delmar, late of Mrs. Fiske's company —a new kind of ingenue with fresh tricks of sweetness and unusual power in performing them. To her fall the most poetic speeches of the play, in her tragic return to her father, desperate and disheveled, from her violator. "It is worthy of the Greek Antigone," cries Mr. Huneker, quoting Fitzgerald. Such conflict as the drama contains is between the judge of Zalamea and the general of the soldiers over which shall have jurisdiction in the punishment of the brutal trooper. The judge, disdaining legal red tape, hangs the culprit, and to show that he stands "four square with the world" imprisons his only son for having assaulted the despoiler. The conflict might be more effective were the general less senile and squeaky and querelous in the hands of so good an actor as A. J. Andrews, who, one fears, is miscast. It all ends happily enough with a quaint little epilogue spoken by Mr. Ditrichstein.

Adding life and atmosphere to the exercises is Miss Betty Callish as a bold and dusky Amazon, a fleshly vivandierre to the army, which, by the way, is disturbingly veteran in appearance. Mr. Gareth Hughes gushes reticently as the judge's son, and Mr. Walter Howe is royal enough as Philip II. Messrs. Cohan and Harris signify their initial sortie from Longacre square to the medieval classics with much scenery of a high grade.

News of the Shows

From the score of "The Riviera Girl" three songs are said particularly to warrant engravure upon the waxen tablets of the music machines—"Half a Married Man," "A Little Bungalow in Quogue," and "There'll Never Be Another Girl Like Daisy." Other pretty tunes are present, they say, but comedy is missing.

The Shubert show plant is working double time, and it announces for early production "The Dangerous Age," by Edward Locke; "The Lieutenant," by Wilner and Bodansky; "The First Wife," by Eibenshutz and Berte; "A Young Love," by Thelan and Bodansky; "The Riddle Woman," by Dorothy Donnelley and Charlotte Wells; "On Credit," by Renie H. Jaff; "Key to Room 10," by Owen Davis, and "A Man's Home," by Anne Steese Richardson and Edmund Breese.

Baird Leonard in the New York Morning Telegraph thinks that one of the retorts of George Jean Nathan, editor of The Smart Set, is worth reprinting. It was made to a newspaper interviewer who asked him if it was true that a disgruntled theatrical manager named Morris Gest had alluded to him as a "pinhead." "That," replied Mr. Nathan, "is, on the face of it, absurd. 'Pinhead' is a word of two syllables."

The Four Marx Brothers seem to have been examined for the army by a board of dramatic critics. One was rejected for flat feet, one for defective eyes, one for physical incapability, and one for "general reasons," according to Variety.

Dear Mr. Hammond: A statement given generally in the New York press Wednesday morning credits me with a determination to "go into the movies." Such determinations, when they are genuine on the part of our actors, usually mean an S. O. S. sign. As I have no need for sending up distress signals I would be indebted to you to allow me to state to your readers, if so there be those who take interest in any statement of mine, that I have no intention of abandoning the spoken drama.

The picturization of "Kismet" has been put up to me by various producers with the admonition that it was my bounden duty to perpetuate myself on the films to generations yet unborn. As the proposition concerned what has been considered by some to have been my most prominent and most pictorial achievement, I have listened with interest to the siren voices of various silver tongued orators for the past three years, and I am free to confess that the idea has haunted me.

But I have been too busy to take any active steps toward its consummation. I certainly am not going to abandon my Italian friend, "Mister Antonio," for at least another year. He is too vital, too appealing in his approach to the patrons of the regular theater for me to relinquish my hold on him. Aside from any sentimental reasons it would be very bad business to do so, as the Tarkington play is filling Mr. Powers' theater nightly well nigh to its capacity.

So, my dear Mr. Hammond, if, among the vast number of people who are following the affairs of the theater there are any who may be consuming with curiosity to learn what I may be about to do, I can truthfully say to them that if ever I really do "Kismet" for the silent theater it will be many moons away.

OTIS SKINNER.

New York newspapers say that George Broadhurst's "Over the Phone" is on its way hither. Chicago managers profess an ignorance regarding its location when it gets here.

The Frohman corporation acknowledges the receipt from Sir James M. Barrie of the manuscript of a new one act play, "Barbara's Wedding." It has not been assigned as yet. Miss Maude Adams probably has an option on it, Miss Barrymore being busy with "Camille," et cetera.

Emmett Corrigan's rôle in "Drafted" is said by him to be so despicable that he asks his manager (Mr. Frazee of baseball and the drama) to insure him from the expected wrath of the audience—in case there is an insurance company willing to take the hazard.

William Hodge is to have a new play by himself and Earl Derr Bigger, called "A Cure for Curables." It is founded on a story by Corra Harris.

Rehearsals of Louis K. Anspacher's comedy, "Madame Cecile," will soon begin under the direction of the Selwyns. Kathryn Kidder (Mrs. Anspacher) will return to the stage to play the leading rôle.

News and Views of Music

AGITATED letter-writers insist, by implication, that the war is to be fought out and settled in the concert-halls and opera-houses of the United States between now and May 1. Mr. Stock puts Wagner and Beethoven into his first bill: he is, by that token, an enemy, flaunting his tribal insolence. Mr. Campanini explains succinctly, in his annual bulletin, that German opera is out of the schedule because it did not pay when given last season: he is untruthful, a mischief-maker, a fomenter of racial prejudices, a solicitous and insincere mendicant on the highway of American good-nature and tolerance. Down in Manhattan Island, Mr. Gatti-Casazza lists most of Wagner; and the mail-men carry extra loads to the newspapers that print communications of protest. Dr. Muck is the target of like letter-writing in Boston and suburbs. The Government is besseched daily to intern or shoot Stransky.

There is, of course, nothing to say that has not been said as to Mr. Stock's case and that of the other conductors of the American symphony orchestras: none of the others, perhaps, is of such catholic taste and feeling as Mr. Stock; but none of them can make programs if German composers be ignored. One Chicago musician who has been for years a good missioner is so inflamed on the subject that he thinks a Federal ruling should issue against the inclusion in programs of any German music save Beethoven's: he grants the exception because, he says, Beethoven was a Belge!

Campanini is patently within the truth when he says that the German performances of last season were not supported: they were not; and, as performances, they deserved the best the community might do by them. Not only were they extraordinarily good in all the circumstances of a company organized for a season of ten weeks: they were good, in most ways, by comparison with the best performances of German opera to be heard anywhere in the world, those of the Metropolitan. None of the Wagner Sundays was marked by a "house" more than sixty percent as large as the attendance on the corresponding performance of the season before. Only one performance, that of "Lohengrin," was forthright bad. The cost of preparing a Wagner opera for one performance is greater than that of preparing one from the standard French or Italian répertoire for five or more. To say that last year's neglect was a reflection of national feeling were sheer bunkum: the Ring and "Parsifal" drew audiences that were virtually capacity in 1915-16, when the community, like the country-at-large, was raw with resentment for the Lusitania. And, as to the Metropolitan, the situation is again one of commerce, and nothing else: Wagner draws there its due share of the annual subscription; and, besides, the singers are of service in other German works—Strauss', Gluck's, and in "Fidelio."

Ten dollars—twice what is asked in Chicago, and four dollars more than the Metropolitan gets—is the price of a main-floor seat in New Orleans for the Chicago Opera: that city, long the possessor of a French season of its own, is in Campanini's itinerary for his tour with Galli-Curci in "Lucia" and Muratore and Melba in "Faust." The back seats in the gallery are two dollars. When, in January, it goes to New York, the best seats will be six dollars, as in the Metropolitan.

"On the whole question of German music and the war, the public have taken a much saner view than that expressed by some of the critics. They have realized that Wagner and Brahms are no more responsible than babes unborn for the horrors now afflicting the world. In proof of this happy state of mind, one has only to cite the audiences attracted by the Beecham production of 'Tristan' in London, Birmingham, and Manchester."

Percy Grainger's Marching-Song of Democracy and Henry K. Hadley's "Music: An Ode" will be novelties in the first of this season's concerts by the Philharmonic Choral Society, which had its baptism last March. The Hadley work is a setting of Henry Van Dyke's like-named poem. O. Gordon Erickson, conductor of the Philharmonic, is of the belief that the organization's usefulness has to do with new things.

Glenn Dillard Gunn's orchestra, the American Symphony, is to give ten Sunday-afternoon concerts in the made-over Studebaker, starting October 21, when the program will have a half-hour's contribution from the Marshall Field Choral Society in an arrangement of the folk-songs and national airs of the United States and the Allies. Later in the season, Mr. Gunn will, under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE and the Board of Education, give a series of ten Sunday concerts in the public schools.

F. D.

Opera in English

BOTH those who think that singers ought to use English in opera and those who say that five dollars is too much for a seat should find matter to their taste in the season, to start tomorrow night with "Il Trovatore," of the Boston English Opera Company in the Strand Theater. This auditorium was expensively refurbished two years ago for the purposes of the film-audiences. The management sets no limit, in its announcements, to the length of the season, but explains that "Martha," "Faust," and "The Bohemian Girl" will follow "Il Trovatore," each piece save "The Bohemian Girl" to be revived for a week: the Balfe work will, according to the schedule, be sung for two weeks. Sunday-night performances are in the plan.

The roster of singers includes Joseph Sheehan and William Wagener, tenors; Hazel Eden, Agnes Scott Longan, and Florentine St.-Clair, sopranos; Elaine DeSellem, May Carley, and Melvina Parry, contraltos; Arthur Deene and Overton Moyles, baritones; Francis J. Tyler and Lemuel Kelly, bassos. The promise for tomorrow night is of Mr. Sheehan as Manrico and Miss Eden as Leonora.

Other Music This Week

Wednesday at 11:00 a. m.—Recital by Miss Christine Miller, contralto, in the Ziegfeld Theater. This is the first of another series of Wednesday-morning recitals in this playhouse under the management of Carl D. Kinsey.

Stage Notes

In Mr. Cohan's entourage at the opening of "The Judge of Zalamea" was Senator Steven Reardon, a confirmed New Yorker, making his first visit to the territory west of New Jersey. "What do you think of Chicago, senator?" inquired Mr. Cohan as they looked over the suburban aspect of the neighborhood of Cohan's Grand. "George," said the senator with decision, "it's a double Newark." Senator Reardon described Milwaukee as "the Perth Amboy of the middle west."

W. F. Connor, Madame Bernhardt's manager, thinks that this is the best Bernhardt story that he knows, though as Percy Burton, her press representative, says, it is to be taken cum grano salis. Some time before the present war a German impresario telegraphed for her terms for appearing in "L'Aiglon" in Berlin. She wired back at once: "Alsace-Lorraine."

O. P. Heggie, known here for good acting in several rôles, including that of Androcles, is to help Henry Miller play Galsworthy's "A Bit of Love" He will have the part of the clergyman hero.

Among the young women who will appear in "Yes or No," by Albert Goodrich, till now a stranger in the drama, is Miss Emily Polini, once of "Hindle Wakes" and later of Holbrook Blinn's abused organization. Miss Mary Boland is another selection made by the producers, "Broncho Billy" Anderson and Lawrence Weber.

There is soon to be a new play by Sydney Rosenfeld called "Under Pressure," in which Fred Niblo, Miss Hilda Spong, and Miss Violet Heming are to act.

Discarding "The Pawn" after a few performances, Walker Whiteside takes to "Mr. Jubilee Drex," a London favorite by a former Chicago press man, Walter Hackett. Horace Annesley Vachell is implicated with Mr. Hackett in the authorship.

For Miss Grace George's repertory company engagements have been made with Rockliffe Fellows, Miss Norah Lamison, Howard Kyle, Miss Beatrice Prentice, and Lynn Hammond.

Robert Edeson's return to vaudeville is assured, for he is appearing in the New York suburbs this week in a new act called "Flying Arrow," written by Toni Vegas, a graduate of Carlisle. Mr. Edeson plays the rôle of an Indian.

AS MARY MACLANE WOULD SAY.

By Mae Tinée.

I HAVE a confession to make and it belongs in this column because it is the confession of a motion picture editor who believed, alas, that she had the soul of an artist!

The other night after reading till late I became conscious of the gnawing of hunger. I looked frantically about for a box of candy. Some raiding hand, however, had found the box before me and my fingers closed on nothingness.

"Well, the pantry for mine," I said. I gathered my draperies about me and went kitchenward.

The pantry was empty! There wasn't so much as a cracker or cookie there. The last of the cake had been eaten for dinner and hungry as I was I didn't feel like a can of corn.

"Ha," thought I, "the icebox! There will surely be something in the icebox!"

There was. Some ice and a cold boiled potato!

I looked at the cold boiled potato and it seemed to look back at me with watery and understanding eyes. It seemed to say: "Ah, were you but I, Mary MacLane, your heart would leap for joy at sight of me. How tenderly you would gather me up and make me one with yourself! And as we became one, how you would thrill from palate to pedals!" All of this the cold boiled potato seemed to be saying to me as I looked at it and it appeared to look at me.

"Well," I said aloud, "I am an artist and here is artists' food. A cold boiled potato! The gods be good to myself and I and Mary MacLane. I will eat this cold boiled potato and know the joy of perfect gastric satisfaction."

I took the cold boiled potato and drew it towards my lips. It had a strange and neutral odor. "Ah," quoth I to myself, "what is a cold boiled potato without salt," as I, Mary MacLane, would say. "A little salt, garcon!" Then I bit delicately into the anatomy of the cold boiled potato whereof I had salted. It tasted funny.

A little pepper, perhaps, is all that it would need. Perhaps it would make me feel like I, Mary MacLane! So, I put on a little pepper. Delicately I bit into the now salted and peppered cold boiled potato. It tasted funnier than ever!

To make a long story short I may inform you that I left nothing undone to that cold boiled potato. I buttered it, I paprikaed it, I sprinkled it with a little vinegar, and finding a piece of parsley I garnished it, but—here's the confession:

I couldn't eat that cold boiled potato!

I couldn't eat that DARN cold boiled potato!

Winifred Kingston had a narrow escape recently. The actress wandered away from the rest of the company while views of "Roaring Bill's" cabin in the mountain were being taken. She began exploring the surrounding peaks for herself.

She had not gone far when a big bank of snow became loose and slid down the slope. Miss Kingston, on a rough roadway below, received the full force of the slide. Before she could cry out it had completely covered her, obliterated all trace of the roadway, and tore on down into the chasm.

One of the men among the photographing troupe below saw the slide. He called out for help. Every one in the neighborhood rushed to the spot where Miss Kingston had stood and began digging away as best they could with sticks and boards. A party started to the nearest house for shovels, pick axes, and help.

Dustin Farnum seized the tripod of the camera and rammed it into the heavy drift. It did little good. But with the aid of a longer rod, used for measuring work, he succeeded in making a slight aperture through the snow to the point where Miss Kingston was imprisoned. Through this opening he was able to speak to her. The snow was packed tightly, and there was nothing to do except to wait for help. Meanwhile the girl, held tight and motionless, was almost freezing.

The first detachment of the party which had been sent for help returned without shovels, but they brought a long piece of lead pipe. This was pushed through the opening to Miss Kingston, and a quantity of warm coffee was poured through it. It helped in reviving her, for she was almost unconscious. She had not lost her courage and was waiting patiently for her rescue.

Half an hour later the first aid party returned, bringing a number of picks and shovels. With continued work the imprisoned girl was soon released. She was found unconscious and nearly frozen. Her finger tips were blue. A physician had meanwhile been brought to the spot, and a few minutes' work revived the little actress. She was rushed immediately to the warm climate of the valley below and put to bed.

The woman who wrote recently inquiring as to the whereabouts of Romaine Fielding will be interested to know that he has signed up with Harry Newman to "especially represent" a certain automobile.

Julia Sanderson owns three horses, named, respectively, Shem, Ham, and Japhet.

Harry Carey has a dog kennel and has four ribbon winners among them, but most of the inmates of the kennel are the ordinary alley breed. Mr. Carey has a weakness for homeless and starving canines.

Douglas Fairbanks and Billy Sunday are to captain a baseball game soon for charity.

A doll with an earning power of $1,200 a year—a hundred a month! No, not an ingénue motion picture "doll"; simply a regular, ordinary kiddies' plaything. This particular money making doll is one which was presented a year and a half ago to the Children's hospital of Los Angeles by Fred Church, Universal photoplay star, and auctioned at a charity bazaar. Originally the doll, dressed as the "Atlantic City sport," was sold for $70. Since then it has been sold and resold until the aggregate for the eighteen months of the "sport's" existence has reached $1,800, the purchasers in each case donating it back to the charity fund.

Julian Johnson has been appointed editor in chief for the Triangle Film company. He was formerly editor of the Photoplay Magazine, you know.

George Beban has signed a new contract with Paramount, and will make two more pictures after "Lost in Transit."

Juliette Day thinks that soldiers need sweets as well as smokes, and her charity consists of sending confections to them.

In the six reel picture being made by the Commonwealth Pictures corporation, in which Charlotte, the skater will appear, she skates, dances, dives, swims, and rides horseback.

"BABY-TALK"

Is Her Specialty in Tarkington Play.

Miss Ruth Gordon in "SEVENTEEN" THE PLAYHOUSE
MONDY PHOTO

Miss Ruth Gordon, who plays Lola Pratt, the "baby-talk lady" in Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" at the Playhouse next week, had the rôle of the fluffy little wife in "Fair and Warmer" on tour last season. This part was originated by Madge Kennedy, and was played in Chicago by Francine Larrimore.

Burns Mantle's Letter from New York.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Somewhere on Long Island sound, as the dispatches read, the water cuts an irregular half moon in the shore line. In between the jutting ends of the horn the north Atlantic squadron rides at anchor.

This is the largest fleet of American warships ever assembled in wartime. There are some fifty ships including thirty-nine battleships.

It isn't easy to sit and watch them, as I am doing, and still write of Broadway theaters. Forty-second street is a thousand miles away and the war and the preparations for war are near. Last night when I arrived for the runaway week end they were having a searchlight drill, spotting and popping at imaginary aircraft. As far as one could see the sky was traced with shafts of light, now broad and fan shaped, now narrowed to a concentrated incandescent stream that might have been played from a moster fire hose.

The village grocer's wagon had just passed. The Negro boy driving it was lying on his back on the seat singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the top of his voice. And there goes an auto with a chauffeur, a chaperon, a lieutenant, and a debutante in it. Is the lieutenant's arm around the debutante? Well, it is as far around as the regulations will permit. It is a great day for officers.

It happens, too, that a historical play was the principal offering of the week in town, George Arliss playing Alexander Hamilton in a drama called "Hamilton" at the Knickerbocker. The play was written by Mrs. Mary Hamlin and revised by Mr. Arliss and threatens to become at this writing a popular success equal to that achieved by "Disraeli." At least in New York. Just how the western country will look upon it is not easily determined, for it treats the revered Alexander as a very human rather than as a star-spangled hero of the school histories.

Of course we all know that even the immortal George Washington was not always home to carve the roast when Martha called, and that on occasion, in fact, he was even late for breakfast, but we never have made a point of telling the children about it. And so it is with Hamilton.

However, Mr. Arliss and Mrs. Hamlin have selected Alexander's intimacy with Mrs. Reynolds, and his open confession of it, as the incident best suited to dramatic treatment. It comes as a bit of a shock in the play, but the scene is so honestly treated and played with such becoming dignity by Mr. Arliss that the local experts, at least, have approved "Hamilton" as noble drama and good entertainment.

The first act, showing a meeting of the political gossips and big wigs of the time in the Exchange coffee house in Philadelphia, proceeds awkwardly, but most interestingly. Thomas Jefferson is there, holding eloquently for democracy and the rights of men; and James Monroe, airing his suspicions of Hamilton and his belief that Washington would like to make himself king and America a monarchy. That scurvy fellow, Representative Giles of Virginia, has the plot in charge. He is jealous of Hamilton and of his success, and it is he who trafficks with Reynolds to set the latter's wife on the trail of the statesman and thus pull him down from his high moral perch and hold him up to the scorn of the puritan citizens proud of their new enfranchisement.

Hamilton, as secretary of the treasury, strongly set on his state's solvency bill, is willing to trade with Jefferson and Monroe his influence to have the capitol of the country established somewhere in the south for their aid in helping him force through his financial measure, and it is Giles' plan to make the deal unnecessary by first arranging and then exposing the Reynolds scandal.

With Mrs. Hamilton in Europe on a long visit, Alexander grows lonesome and is easily led into the trap. Mrs. Reynolds [played alluringly by Jennie Eagels] comforts him and he falls. Made victim of probably the first "badger game" ever played in the American colonies, Hamilton pays hush money to the unspeakable Mr. Reynolds. And this money, his enemies profess to believe when they spring the trap, is being taken from the United States treasury and diverted to a swindle scheme.

Forced either to confess his intimacy with Mrs. Reynolds and thus risk public disgrace and the ruin of his home life, which has been most happy, or to betray his country by giving up his fight for its financial honor, Hamilton confesses the liaison and stands ready to be sacrificed as a husband.

But Mrs. Hamilton is the sort of forgiving wife that furnish happy endings for fourth acts. She hears Mrs. Reynolds' story, considers Mrs. Reynolds' blue eyes and blonde curls, realizes Alexander's temptations, and agrees to give him another trial. Jefferson and Monroe manfully repudiate the despicable Giles and the way is cleared, not only for the passage of the Hamilton bill, but for the later establishment of the capital on the shores of the Potomac, which, as the secretary says, will be of practical use in "carrying off the refuse of debate."

Arliss' performance is similar, both in technical finish and intellectual quality, to that of his Disraeli. Similar, too, in general form, though his Hamilton is, of course, a much more spirited and less crafty individual. Mrs. Arliss plays the Mrs. Hamilton and Carl Anthony an excellent Jefferson.

The principal other play of the week, "The Scrap of Paper," does not amount to much. It is another of those trick melodramas in which the audience is expected to voluntarily work itself into a state of great excitement over a series of highly improbable situations.

In this instance three greedy monopolists—one controlling the cold storage warehouses, another the coal output, and a third the railroads of America, plot to aid Germany by completely tying up the industries of their country. They draw up an agreement to this effect and sign it. Then they open the door, admit the laughing breeze and let it whisk the paper out the open window.

It falls ten or twelve stories into Broad street, directly at the feet of "Handsome Harry" Mack, the cleverest crook in all Christendom. They see him pick it up and send a private detective to recover it. But Handsome Harry, being a smart rascal, realizes on the instant the value of the paper and seeks to cash it. For the next three acts there is a chase for the possession of the document, which finally falls into the hands of a stenographer lady so high minded that she decides to risk all rather than let the people's enemies betray them.

In the end the monopolist who engineered the scheme harkens to the plea of his dying child and is reformed. The scrap of paper is torn up and sent to the rubbish heap, where, I suspect, the play will soon follow it. Owen Davis made it from a short story by Arthur Somers Roche.

Old Auditorium in New Dress for Coming Grand Opera Season

By Mme. X.

THERE is one institution that we Chicagoans have got to support this coming season, war or no war, and that is our grand opera. If ever we come to the desperate pass that we must close our Art institute and forego our symphony concerts, then we may consider abandoning what is, at the present time the finest grand opera, bar none, in the world. New York may fuss and fume at this assertion, but what combination of artists has New York to equal—merely to mention our tiptoppers—Galli-Curci, Muratore, Melba, and Marcoux? And what opera house on this side of the Atlantic or the other has our dear old Auditorium's wonderful acoustic properties? In that great temple of sound Galli-Curci's softest, most subtle note reaches the backmost seat of the topmost gallery as perfect and pellucid as it left her throat, though, except through opera glasses, she is so far away as to be an indistinguishable puppet.

The opera fan, who has for the past twenty-five years sacrificed his sense of the esthetic to his love of sweet sound at the Auditorium, will have a joyful awakening this year, for under the magic wand of Mrs. John Carpenter that vast garish interior has been turned into a glowing jewel of a place. The ceiling and side wall panels are overlaid with a dull gold, while the boxes and the lower parts of the house are tinted a rich crimson—Vienna crimson, the decorators call it. The seat covers will be a Prussian blue. The steel drop curtain has been painted in shades of the same blue, while the old, rather dusty yellow velvet curtains, that slowly fell and closed on dying Carmens, sleeping Brunhildas, and starving Aïdas, will be replaced by rich blue velvet hangings to match the seat covers. The lights, too, have been so treated that, what was always a trying glare, will henceforth be, what those full of language would call, an effulgent radiance.

In short, the house is going to be a delight to the eye and a most becoming setting for the chic toilettes and the flashing jewels that are the opera livery for many of its patrons. It took 60,000 feet of white and yellow pine (costing the contractor who put it up $23,000) to make the scaffolding necessary for the workmen to reach the upper regions of the hall. The only thing to be regretted in the redecorations is that the exquisite lacelike, gold tracery that bordered each one of the ceiling's great, expanding, shallow arches was not left intact. It was a thing of joy to any student of design, a rare and perfect thing, and, in a way, a monument to a man who was in his prime one of our real, original artistic geniuses, Louis H. Sullivan.

New Opera for the Opening.

Our opera season will open on Nov. 12, with Mascagni's work, "Isabeau," given for the first time in this country. This is the story of the Lady Godiva put into music, though, I believe, the principal achievement of her life is not made a feature of the scenic development.

The company makes a three weeks' tour of a western circuit of cities with an alternating bill of two operas—"Lucia," with Galli-Curci, and "Faust," with Melba and Muratore. Minneapolis, St. Louis, Houston, New Orleans, Cincinnati, and Detroit are among the cities on their list.

Another enterprise that will distract a prominent group of Chicago patrons of "polite drama" from the more serious business of life is the Playshop, which is billed to open tomorrow evening in what was formerly the Little Theater in the Fine Arts building. Four playlets will be presented—"Pierrot and the War," by the Louis Laflins' young son, Louis Ellsworth Laflin Jr.; "The Egg and the Hen," by Kenneth Goodman and Ben Hecht; "Cabined," by Mrs. Florence Kiper Frank, and "The Dead Eyes," by H. H. Evers of New York.

The Playshop invites writers, artists, and players to join its ranks. It aims to be the local exponent of the little theater movement throughout the country—a movement that before the war had quite a vogue. It remains to be seen how much this has been affected by our present grave preoccupation. Among those on the long list of people who have joined the Playshop are, of course, first and foremost, the Arthur Aldises, whose consistent support of the little theater cult has been generous and unwavering. Others are the Charles Atkinsons, Pierce Anderson, Alfred Bakers, Cecil Barneses, Laird Bells, Edward Bennetts, Arthur Bissells, Dorr Bradleys, A. A. Carpenters, Samuel Chases, Robert Dunhams, Victor Eltings; Howard Eltings, Kenneth Goodmans, Arthur Heun, Louis Laflins, Arthur Meekers. Hugh McBirneys, Eames MacVeagh, Howard Shaws, Charles Schweppes, Charles Pikes, and Russell Tysons.

The hope of the organizers of the Playshop is to get a roosting place somewhere on the north side near its patrons—a shrine to drama which can be a sort of studio or rallying place for the writers, actors, and artists who will here find an outlet for their budding genius. A monthly magazine is promised to subscribers. It will be interesting to old Chicagoans, who saw the Chicago theater, the Little theater, the New theater, and other similar enterprises wax and wane, to watch the course of the Playshop. Some day some small theater will take root here for a certain permanency (nothing endures forever) and why shouldn't this be the one?

It was a cool summer, but apparently not cool enough for the "Harry" Highs, who are reported to have gone on a camping trip to Hudson's bay—quite an arctic expedition! Westerners who have summered in the east comment on the utter change in the social aspect there. There has been practically no dancing in that part of the world and dancing teachers who went to fashionable resorts have almost starved in the midst of plenty for lack of pupils.

Stocking Up for a Dry Spell.

Many Washingtonians have hurried home a month earlier than usual in order—why, do you think?—to stock their wine cellars for a long—perhaps a perpetual—season of drought, for tomorrow the District of Columbia goes dry. One well known citizen there expended $7,000, chiefly on Scotch whisky, to set his cellar in order for the coming time of stress and strain. He'll be one of the most popular and sought after hosts when this becomes known. The representatives of foreign countries, especially the younger ones, are all much concerned about the arid prospect ahead of them. With parched throats and cracking voices they cry, "Why should we go thirsty just because you Americans don't want to drink? We don't oblige you to drink in our country; why should you oblige us to go dry in yours?"

There's nothing more absorbingly interesting to women than bachelors' houses and housekeeping. It is with subconscious resentment that they concede that bachelors are often capital housekeepers and have an undeniable ability to combine the comfortable and the esthetic. Chicago has several noted bachelor establishments. There is the famous trio of incurable celibates—Col. Rathbone, Robert Shanklin, and Frank Hamlin—who live in the roomy, comfortable, old fashioned house on the corner of Pearson street and Tower court. That district within the radius of the waterworks tower's slim shifting shadow is rather a favorite haunt for bachelors.

Nearby, to the south, under the Kinzie's peaked witch's hat of a tower, two other well known baches have each had establishments for several years—Arthur Heun and Heman Gifford. The former, however, moves tomorrow to a brand new and quite up to date abode in East Pearson street, which promises to be a permanent residence not to be disturbed by city beautiful improvements.

Feared the Boulevard Link.

Fine though his new home may be, it is possible that Mr. Heun may regret the premature alarm that drove him away from his entirely charming nest in Lincoln parkway. Last spring he was threatened by the prospect of the twenty year old boulevard link's being finally put through. Terrified lest some fine morning he should awaken to find the entire façade of his abode annihilated and its interior exposed to the gaze of the public, he hastened over and secured the apartment in East Pearson street opposite the new armory, the playground, and the site for the tabernacle planned for Billy Sunday's next spring crusade. In that neighborhood the enterprising can view man in his various aspects—martial, athletic, and religious.

Though he will undoubtedly make his new dwelling a study in color, arrangement, and furnishings, and will still further enhance his fame as an artist-architect, Mr. Heun will probably not achieve anything more attractive, delightful, and original than his former apartment. Chinese curios, early Italian paintings, rare bronzes, lovely brocades, fine rugs, and everything else that a connoisseur would recognize as choice and desirable were gathered together to make as cozy and attractive an interior as could be found in Chicago. To pack these lares and penates, move them, and rearrange them in new quarters is no slight task for their owner. Still, the possessors of beautiful things usually love nothing so much as rearranging them. To change the placing of the furniture in a room is to many as restful and recuperative as a trip away from home.

More cautious than his neighbor was Mr. Gifford. Perhaps he knew his Chicago and realized that what seemed like a real civic awakening from the dream of a city beautiful to its realization was only a case of turning over in sleep. There'll be nothing doing yet awhile. Twenty years is too short a time to mull over any such self-evident proposition as the linking of north and south side boulevards with a broad, beautiful, connecting avenue. So Mr. Gifford, Willis McCrea, the "Jack" Winterbothams, the "Sam" Walkers, and other residents on that imperiled parkway can go on, sure of still a probable few more years' peaceful occupation of their homes.

Other Bachelor Abodes.

Another bachelor establishment within the water works tower's radius is that of the two brothers, Adrian C. and N. K. Honore, who for many years have been living in Lincoln parkway, just north of Pearson street. Of course, the dean of the college of bachelor housekeepers is Frank Cramer, whose cozy and charming house in Ritchie court has been the setting for many a cheerful little dinner and luncheon.

If Frank Cramer is dean, James Deering in his sumptuous house on the Lake Shore drive is lord high chancellor of this same order of b. h.'s. His Chicago home, however luxurious as it is, is as but a humble cot compared with the royal palace he has built for himself in Florida, near Miami. Kubla Khan would have perished of envy could he have seen this triumph of the artist's, architect's, and landscape gardener's genius.

Of a more restrained type of bachelor menage, but second to none in perfection of detail is Capt. Abram Poole's thoroughly exquisite Georgian house in Lake View avenue. Although he had planned for it and collected treasures for it for years, yet, when the moment came, when the country, his country, asked for volunteers there wasn't an instant's hesitation on his part. He donned khaki, went to the first R. O. T. C. at Fort Sheridan and is now an adjutant captain of infantry helping train the drafted men at Camp Grant, having given the use of his house to the David Adlers.

Other well known bachelor housekeepers are Frederick Tuttle, who has a large, old fashioned house in Michigan avenue; Horace Oakley, who has a book lined apartment in Astor street, and William C. Kitchell and Martyn Johnson, who have a gay little flat in East Walton place.

Winter Coming in France.

Whew, how the women are working these days! Those connected with the A. F. F. W. have recently provided 3,000 Christmas comfort kits, which Mrs. Russell Tyson has already shipped to France to cheer the French wounded. She is now asking donations of blankets at $5 the pair, as the winter is coming on and France's one million hospital beds, with their one million wounded, are ill provided with these, and cold sometimes makes a life and death difference to these French heroes.

The dispensary unit, headed by Dr. Alice Barlow Brown, and sent by the Chicago A. F. F. W., within a fortnight of leaving this country was established at Toul and aiding the sick women and children of the tragic, ravaged, evacuated district. This unit was the first of its kind to reach France. A second one from here is now on the eve of departure. Mrs. Thomas Taylor Jr., Mrs. Edgar Stanton, and Mrs. Albert Kales in a few days' campaign in Winnetka raised $5,000 to help in sending this second unit.

Daily the answer to the country's call grows louder and more emphatic—from women as well as men.

WEDDINGS

The marriage of Miss Ruth S. Wilhartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wilhartz of 5200 South Park avenue, to Samuel Edward Hirsch, son of Rabbi and Mrs. Emil G. Hirsch of 3612 Grand boulevard, will take place on Saturday at the Standard club.

Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster of Lake Forest are in New York for the wedding of Mrs. Foster's sister, Miss Eleanor Baxter, who has many friends among society people here, and C. Perry Beadleston of New York. The wedding took place yesterday in New York. The bride is the daughter of ex-Gov. and Mrs. George White Baxter of Knoxville, Tenn., who have a summer home on Long Island. Mr. Beadleston is a graduate of Yale university and a member of several fashionable New York clubs.

Many Evanstonians attended the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Eva Lillian McElveen and Leslie Brown Krumsick of Edgewater, which took place in the First Congregational church of Evanston, with the Rev. William T. McElveen, the father of the bride, performing the ceremony. After the wedding there was a small reception at the home of the bride's parents at 1110 Judson avenue.

Miss Eleanor Levering Denman, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. D. T. Denman of Oak Park, was married last evening to W. W. Krogman at the First Baptist church of Oak Park. Dr. Denman performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the church parlors.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Waller Pank of Evanston and Harold Hinchman Day of Montclair, N. J., was celebrated last evening at St. Luke's church. Later there was a reception at the bride's home.

Here are three enlisted women. Some knit, some sing, some drive motors, some do any number of other things. Mrs. Thomas Jerrold Bryce, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Glenn of Evanston, and who recently had a soldier's wedding in Washington when her husband had a twenty-four hours' furlough, expects to knit with all her might for the sailors this winter. Miss Mary Glenn, her sister, is a sign of the new era as she drives a huge delivery motor truck between Chicago and the Great Lakes Naval Training station, carrying supplies for the sailors. Ensign Bryce has left for the east and is assigned to duty with the Atlantic fleet. Miss Irene Pawlowska sings for the cause of the allies.

Doing Your Bit at Home Means Buying a Bond

By Grace Dixon.

[Member Federal Reserve Board.]

IN the midst of these warring times, when our hearts and minds are filled with the titanic struggle that is encompassing the world, our thoughts turn instinctively to service. "How can I show my loyalty and devotion to the land of the free and the home of the brave" is the thought that animates every true patriot today.

This opportunity for true helpfulness has never been greater, and this opportuntiy for awakening people's consciousness to a passionate love of country has never been greater. It is in moments like these that we can arouse the thoughts and feelings of the people to bring them to a unit in thought and in action.

It is the spirit of our age to recognize the value of women and give them positions of trust and responsibility. Now they are called upon to assist in the problem of providing the sinews of war. Foremost in consideration must be the proper equipment, sheltering, and nourishment of our soldiers, sailors, and marines, for they are our representatives of courage, daring, and fearlessness, and our spirit of obedience, gentleness, loyalty, and stern determination to do or die.

There are only two ways to raise these huge sums of money to finance this war, by taxation and by Liberty bonds. The history of wars has shown us that the only adequate means of raising the funds is by Liberty bonds, for it divides the expenses over this generation and on future generations.

Organizations in various states are being perfected to do effective service. Each state, city, district, and village has been organized in such a way that every woman in the United States will be reached, for we realize that if the women of the household are interested the whole family will become imbued with the spirit of being partners with Uncle Sam, and the more people that are interested the more contributors there will be to add to the glory and strength of our nation's solidarity.

"Doing your bit" means buying a bond. It supercedes all other obligations and surpasses in importance all the activities we have for conserving and preserving the resources of our country. This question is put squarely to each and every citizen, "What sacrifice can I make that will equal the sacrifice made by those who are giving up all for peace, eternal peace for mankind?" And this sacrifice desired is buying bonds generously, bountifully, enthusiastically, for only by right financing can this terrible war be brought to a successful close—only by right financing can we take care of our soldiers as they should be.

The success of these bonds will reflect the national character, spirit, and soul of our nation and ever remain an emblem of patriotic service.

WOMEN IN WAR WORK.

The bureau of information of the Homemakers' guild will be open every Monday all day in charge of an efficient committee. On other days it will be open during the noon hour for an exchange of information concerning the best method of meeting and solving the present home problems.

On Wednesday, Oct. 10, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon at Recital hall, Mlle. Victor Horta, authorized by the Belgian government, will speak to the members of the Chicago Woman's club on "Belgium Before the War and Now." Each member may bring one guest.

The Chicago Society of Ohio women's war emergency committee will meet Tuesdays and Thursday at 10 a. m. in its clubrooms, 607 Marquette building, to sew for the soldiers. All Ohio women are invited to come and bring their friends.

A service flag is flying from the third floor of the Tribune building with eighty-two stars on the white ground, signifying that eighty-two TRIBUNE employés are serving their country. In the east service flags are flying from homes, and it is suggested that Chicago may adopt the custom. The flags have a white ground, a red border, and blue stars to the number of the men in the household who are serving their country.

The Woman's Proclamation society, the national women's organization for Jewish war relief, with national headquarters at 203 Broadway, New York, and with branches in the leading cities of the country, has issued a booklet containing the story of Lorena Cohen, now residing in Memphis, Tenn. The girl was one of a few young women refugees who escaped from the war zone early this year, coming from Kovno, in Lithuania, after the German occupation. The booklet also describes the activities of the Woman's Proclamation society and contains a foreword by the national officers. The proceeds from the sale of the booklet will go to the fund which the society is raising to be turned over to the joint distribution committee for the $10,000,000 fund.

Since the troops have been called to Rockford the demands upon the home service department of the Red Cross have been increased three fold, according to Marquis Eaton. Mrs. Katherine Briggs, for many years associated in the work of the United Charities, has been placed in charge of this branch of the Red Cross work, the aim of which is to give emergency financial aid at once to families of men called to the colors.

The settlements, through the home charities department of the woman's committee, C. N. D., are calling for helpers. Gads Hill center needs sewing, cooking, and music teachers, library assistants, kindergarten assistants, and an enthusiastic woman to take charge and put "pep" into a club for women which has just been organized. Hull house is in need of teachers of English and dancing and leaders for literary and social clubs. Maxwell street settlement wants club leaders, and needs men workers especially, for most of its men assistants have gone in the army.

A number of women interested in the Second Illinois Field artillery, commanded by Col. Milton J. Foreman, are about to organize for the purpose of supplying the wool for knitting of sweaters, scarfs, and mittens for the men by the women of the regiment. Among the women who are interested are Mrs. William Holabird, Mrs. Marshall Field III., Miss Agnes Foreman, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Allan Ripley, Miss Estelle Foreman, Mrs. John A. Holabird, Mrs. Harry D. Orr, Miss Marie Plamondon, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. Leonard A. Busby, and Mrs. Harvey Austrian.

The Colonial Dames have turned over seventy sets of knitted things to the Navy league for distribution.

By the end of the week it is hoped the three departments of the Red Cross will be permanently established—the teaching center in the Tower building, the Chicago offices and the volunteer workrooms in the Garland building, and the division work in the Le Moyne building. The Chicago chapter is anxious to get speakers—those who have been in the war zone will be most welcome. Volunteers should communicate with the speakers' bureau, Randolph 3480, 112 West Adams street.

Evening classes for knitters have been started by the West End Woman's club, for the purpose of assisting the Red Cross to complete its allotment of 60,000 sets of knitted articles which must go from Chicago to France before cold weather, in order to ameliorate suffering among the troops on the fighting line. Mrs. S. K. Falls is in charge of the evening classes at the West End club, which will be held in the clubrooms at Ashland avenue and Monroe street.

At a meeting of Mrs. Raymond Robin's committee on women and children in industry, Miss Helen Bennett, Miss Marian Curtis, and Miss Catherine McFadden were named as a committee to investigate the possibilities and the conditions under which women elevator girls should work in Chicago. The following standards were offered: Preference to be given to women over 25, no woman to be placed until thoroughly trained, no night work, nine hour day and six day week, equal pay for equal work. The Y. W. C. A. in Chicago, the Eleanor clubs, and Supt. Shoop of the public schools are to be asked to assist in getting the proper training for elevator girls and all others who have to take the places of men called to fight.

The Red Cross teaching center in the Tower building has a class in elementary hygiene and home care of the sick, composed of members of the Business Girls' Coöperative club.

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross took quick action upon learning of the needs of the soldiers who are located at Camp Mills, L. I. A wire was received in the morning calling for 2,000 pairs of socks to be forwarded to the men of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth field artillery, stationed there. The local chapter at once wired the Atlantic division of the parent body, which within twenty-four hours had assembled, packed, and delivered the socks to the boys in camp.

Mrs. William Duff Haynie, chairman of the war relief committee of the Chicago chapter, D. A. R., announces that the workroom, 921 Fine Arts building, will be open Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays.

Arrangements for the ball to be given at Fort Sheridan on Friday evening, for the benefit of the Army Relief society, are in charge of Mrs. D. L. Tate, wife of Col. Tate, who will have the help of Col. and Mrs. Ryan. The money will go to the relief of needy families of soldiers. The wives of officers at the post will act as chaperons with other women from along the north shore.

We are not to give up knitting for a moment. "Full steam ahead" is the order from the Red Cross headquarters. In response to this comes a report from Miss Adelaide S. Hall of the Art institute, who writes: "We are urging our class members to bring their [war] knitting to class meetings this fall. You can help them to help the soldiers by encouraging the busy fingers that may work mechanically while the brain absorbs knowledge of the principles of beauty."

The national surgical dressing committee, 845 First National Bank building, through the woman's committee, C. N. D., is calling for donations of old bed linen, scrim and net curtains, etc. They must be clean and unstarched.

The Jeanne d'Arc society is now located in its new home, in room 303 Tower building, where instructions in knitting, sewing, and surgical bandages are given daily. Volunteers are welcome.

Social-Musical Program to Open Equality League

THE first meeting of the Chicago Political Equality league will be in the form of a President's day reception to Mrs. Stella Skiff Jannotta, in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel at 1 o'clock on Saturday. The social and musical program will be followed by talks by Prof. Walter A. Dodd of the legislative reference bureau, Springfield, on "A New Constitution for Illinois," and Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout on "Organization and Efficiency."

The patriotic spirit is abroad in the land and the league has opened its first month's program to speakers who will endeavor to augment the woman power of the nation by enlisting the membership for war work. Mrs. Frederick A. Dow will be spokesman for the woman's committee of the council of national defense; Mrs. Helen M. Hefferan's topic is "Fields of Work Open to Women in Wartime"; Miss Alice Henry speaks on "Women in Wartime Industries," and Mrs. George Bass, the league's chairman of war work, will speak on "The Liberty Loan."

The Chicago Political Equality league is a department club and the program meetings of the year are arranged so that the first meeting of each month is the only one not devoted to the work of one of the three departments, civics, education, and legislation.

Miss Margaret B. Dobyne, chairman of the civics department, has under her direction a group of forty-five sub-chairmen who attend the meeting of every standing committee of the city council, the board of Cook county commissioners, the board of the sanitary district, and the municipal courts. Other active committees under the civics department are: Municipal music, Mrs. Louis E. Yager; municipal amusement centers, Mrs. C. D. Jeffers; municipal markets, Mrs. A. L. Messier; public dancing, Mrs. George S. Haskell; motion pictures, Mrs. Guy Blanchard.

Mrs. Martin Kent Northam, chairman of the education department, has as her vice chairman Mrs. William S. Hefferan. Mrs. M. M. Mangasarian is chairman of the vocational education committee, and Mrs. Charles Sergel of the board of education committee.

Mrs. Melida Pappe, chairman of the legislative department, has the following department committees: Legislative research, Mrs. Albert H. Schweizer; educational legislation, Mrs. Hugo Epstein; industrial legislation, Miss M. L. Carpenter; social legislation, Miss Kate J. Adams; housing, Miss Georgia Leuthstrom.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

The board of directors of the Woman's City club will meet tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at the club rooms. On Wednesday at 2:30 p. m., there will be a meeting of the foods and markets committee, Mrs. Edward Gudeman, chairman, at the club rooms.

On Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week the Daughters of Isabella will meet in the first biennial national convention at the Auditorium hotel. The convention opens at 11 a. m. on Wednesday and there will be a banquet in the evening, with Archbishop Mundelein as guest of honor. An informal dancing party will follow. There will be an election of officers on Friday and Saturday will be devoted to sight seeing tours and a luncheon at the Green Mill gardens. Mrs. Mary E. Booth of New Haven, Conn., is the national regent.

Miss Rose Marks, founder and general chairman of the Home circle, an affiliated body of club women identified with the Home exposition, which is to hold its fourth annual show at the Coliseum, Oct. 18 to 31, will receive all club presidents or representatives tomorrow morning from 10 until 1 o'clock at the headquarters, room 406, Hotel Sherman. Plans will be perfected for giving a war benefit in connection with the exposition, a portion of the funds to be reserved for home charities, each club to participate in the interest of its individual philanthropy. A tea garden is to be a feature of this year's event. Club women will preside in the garden daily, where luncheon and tea will be served by members of the various organizations. St. Elizabeth's Business Woman's club will have charge on Thursday, Oct. 25; the Improvement Association for Blind People has reserved Friday, Oct. 26, and the Eli Bates Settlement Day nursery will have Saturday, Oct. 27. Other clubs will be given their special days at the meeting tomorrow morning.

The Chicago Culture club will welcome members and guests tomorrow at the opening reception of the season followed by a concert to be held at the Hotel La Salle.

The I Will club has its opening meeting at the Hotel La Salle on Thursday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

A patriotic pageant, written by Thomas Wood Stevens, will be the program at the opening meeting of the Dames of the Loyal Legion at the Congress hotel tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The first meeting and luncheon of the year of the University of Illinois Alumnæ association of Chicago will be held Wednesday at 12:30 in the college club rooms.

There will be a musical program and a reception to the new officers of the Daughters of Indiana on Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Congress hotel. The war emergency committee will have its summer's work on exhibition.

On Wednesday the seventh annual program and luncheon of the Dorothy Meadows drama circle will be given at the Hotel La Salle.

The Catholic Woman's league will hold its opening reception in the assembly rooms of the Fine Arts building on Saturday at half past 2 o'clock. The reception marks the beginning of the twenty-fifth year of the league. During its years of service the league has established and maintained St. Elizabeth's Day nursery at 906 North Franklin street; St. Mary's settlement and day nursery at 656 West Forty-fourth street; St. Anne's Day nursery at 710 South Loomis street; St. Juliana's Day nursery at 858 Cambridge street; the protectorate for the safeguarding of women and young girls at 7 West Madison street, and St. Elizabeth's Business Woman's club at 1103 North Dearborn street. Addresses will be given by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis C. Keeley on "The Heroine of France," and the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edward A. Keely on "National Catholic War Council." The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Daniel J. Riordan will be guest of honor.

Chapter A, Illinois P. E. O., will hold its first meeting of the year tomorrow in the Auditorium hotel at 2 p. m. Talks on "Reminiscences of the Civil War" will be given by Mrs. John McCleland, "Woman's Response to the Demands of the Present War" by Mrs. E. M. Buchner, and "The Effect of War on Childhood" by Mrs. John Mudge.

The opening reception and program of the Chicago Woman's Musical club will be held on Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in the Fine Arts Recital hall. The program will be followed by a social hour.

In spite of the fact that the women of the Coöperative league have been and are still doing Red Cross work, they are not so busy that the league will suffer from neglect. On Friday Mrs. Maxwell Stein opens her home at 5418 Greenwood avenue for the benefit of the league. Cards will be played.

On Tuesday Le Cercle Francais will hold its opening reception at the rooms of the College club, which will be the French club's home during the coming season.

The Ladies of Isabella will meet this afternoon at 165 West Madison street, at 2 o'clock. Among the speakers this afternoon will be the Rev. J. Lonergan of Camp Grant, Rockford, and the Rev. William Murphy of the Great Lakes Training station.

The Illinois Colony club has issued an invitation to a reception in honor of the commander in chief, Mrs. Frank M. Fulton, and the Continental council, to be held in the gold ball room of the Hotel La Salle on Friday at 2 o'clock.

The Daughters of the Renaissance will hold its first meeting of the season on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. in the Eleanor club room, Stevens building. Stuart Walker of the Portmanteau Players will give an address.

Garden clubs near Chicago are much interested in the convention of the Woman's National Farm and Garden association at the Hotel Morrison on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. The North Shore Garden club, the Palos Park, Oak Park, and Highland Park clubs, and the horticultural department of the Ridge woman's club, are assisting in the programs and entertaining out of town guests.

The Medical Woman's club will meet in the College clubrooms on Wednesday evening, Oct. 10, at 6 o'clock.

SOUTH SIDE CLUBS

The Arché club will usher in its new season at Lincoln center on Friday, at 2 p. m., with a musical. The civics and philanthropy class, of which Mrs. Howard H. Gross is chairman, will meet at 10:30 a. m. The speakers will be Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the Women's Trade Union league, whose topic is, "Women in Wartime"; Mrs. Franklin Leavitt of the council of national defense, who will talk of "Home Charities and Registration," and R. E. Blackwood, secretary of the Civil Service Reform association. Members are urged to sew, knit, and make surgical dressings on Tuesdays at Lincoln center, and to join the first aid and home nursing classes to be organized by Miss Gertrude Jackson.

At its opening meeting on Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. W. F. Hayden, 5817 Indiana avenue, the Literary Score will be addressed by the Rev. Edward Scriber Ames.

On Tuesday evening the Hamilton Park Woman's club will present a program of Chansons Vivants. The club during the coming year will meet every Tuesday. A study period from 1 to 2:15 p. m. will precede the general program, which will begin at 2:30. The courses of study will fall under four general classifications—civics, art and literature, music, and education.

The Windsor Park Woman's club will hold its opening reception at the club rooms on Tuesday afternoon. The hostesses include Mrs. A. F. Schroeder, Mrs. John Streeter, Mrs. Leslie Missey, Mrs. Joseph Turton, Mrs. Charles A. Young, Mrs. Arthur Biddle, and Mrs. C. A. Tomlinson.

A patriotic luncheon opens the season of the South Side club on Tuesday.

The Lewis-Champlin Parent-Teachers' association will meet on Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. W. S. Hefferman of the Englewood Woman's club, who is in charge of the educational department of the woman's committee of the Council of National Defense, will speak.

Miss Helen Reinsberg
MOFFETT PHOTO

Miss Helen Reinsberg will take a part in the play to be given on Wednesday evening at Sinai center.

Jens Jenson will talk on "Local Color" before the Every Wednesday club at 10:30 o'clock on Wednesday morning at the residence of Mrs. F. L. Bryant, 4505 Greenwood avenue. Miss Parker will be the hostess.

To secure funds for the purchase of yarn and other supplies for the navy relief work which the Community Club of Englewood is doing, an entertainment will be given on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly hall of the Lewis-Champlin school.

On Wednesday evening "The Burden," a play written by Mrs. Elma T. Levinger, will be given by the Sinai Center players. The Sinai Center department of languages will open tomorrow.

The Chicago Woman's aid will hold its first regular meeting of the year on Tuesday at Sinai center, 4622 Grand boulevard, at 2 o'clock. The program will be a musical. The education department has arranged a number of tours to different schools during the year and the first tour will be on Oct. 9 to the Francis Parker school. The music lecture study classes for Wednesday mornings in October will open on Oct. 10 at 10 o'clock.

At the Hull House Woman's club's opening meeting on Wednesday there will be a meeting of committees at 1 p. m., an afternoon session at 2:30 p. m., and a short musical program followed by discussion.

The first regular sewing meeting of the junior auxiliary of the Mother's Aid of the Chicago Lying-In hospital for the season will take place on Wednesday at 1:30 o'clock at Sinai Social center. There will be a directors' meeting at 12:30 o'clock.

WEST SIDE CLUBS

The daughters' auxiliary of the Lutheran Woman's league will meet at Bethlehem Lutheran church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The opening meeting of the Millard Avenue Woman's club will be held on Friday at 2 o'clock in the Lawndale Masonic temple. There will be an address by the Rev. David A. Schaefer.

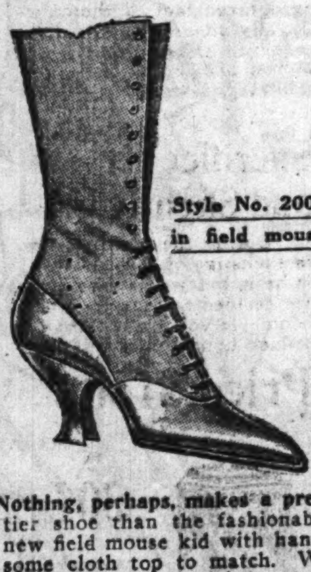
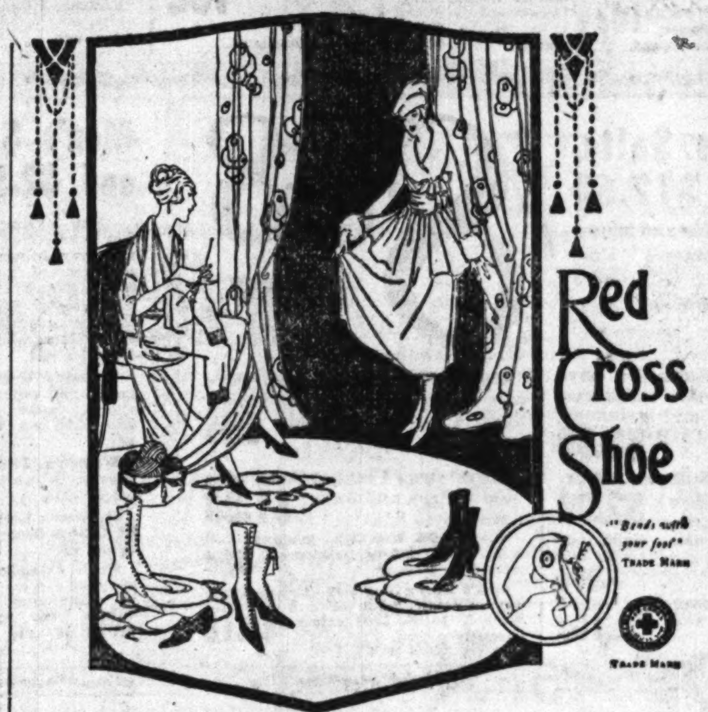
Style No. 492, in mahogany.

Madam will enjoy her afternoon walks in this new Red Cross boot. It is ultra smart in the mahogany shade of Russia calf and because it is a Red Cross shoe it retains, in addition to its fashionable lines, all the comfort and ease that Red Cross shoes have been famous for, for so many years. You will say that they are priced moderately indeed at............ 8.00



Style No. 2006, in field mouse.

Nothing, perhaps, makes a prettier shoe than the fashionable new field mouse kid with handsome cloth top to match. We also show this model in other popular shades, choice at..... 8.00



Aren't They Pretty?

—And They're So Comfortable

You'll be proud of your foot, too, in any one of these handsome Red Cross shoes. The nationally stylish shoes. Probably you saw the shoe illustrated here at the left, featured in the middle of the month issue of Vogue for September.

Red Cross shoes look so smart and fit so snug—not one iota of style is sacrificed—and yet they're wonderfully comfortable. The exclusive "bends with your foot" feature is the secret of that comfort.

There's a surprise awaiting you when you come in and see and try on the new Red Cross models. The excellence of workmanship, the materials—everything about them—will suggest higher prices than we are asking.

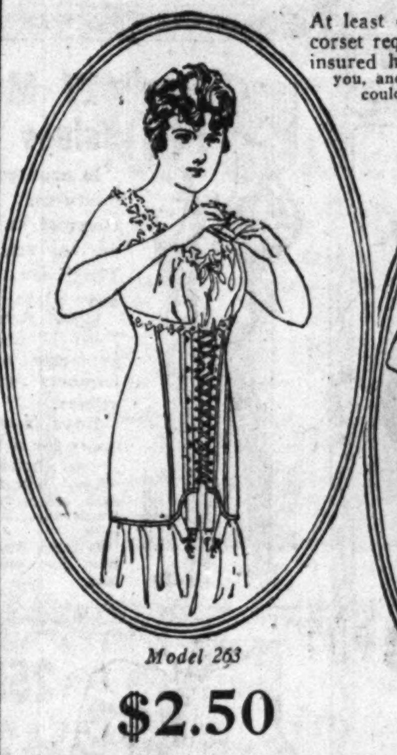
Gossard Corsets

at your favorite store

At least one of these models will meet your every corset requirement, and bring you priceless comfort, insured health, a wearing service that will gratify you, and the knowledge that unlimited expenditure could not have corseted you more correctly.



Model 263

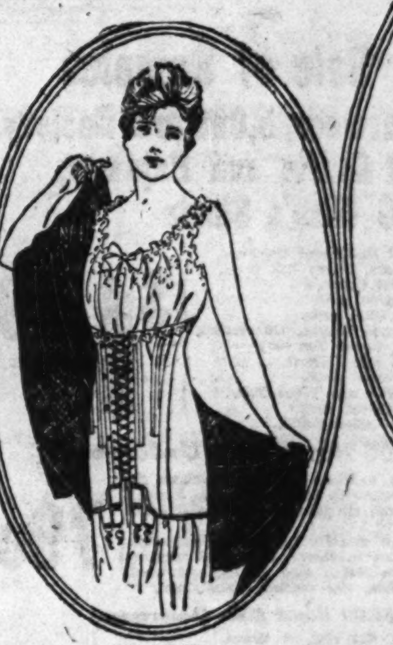
Every time you put on this remarkable $2.50 Gossard, you will delight in its ease of adustment, revel in its constant comfort, and be conscious of the fact that it accents the style of your simplest suit or most elaborate frock.

Of medium bust, smartly indicated waistline and flat back and hip lines, this model 263 is fashioned of a fine pink or white Sterling cloth, the excellent quality of which will be seen at a glance in its lustre and fineness of weave, and will be later realized in its gratifying wearing service.



Model 376

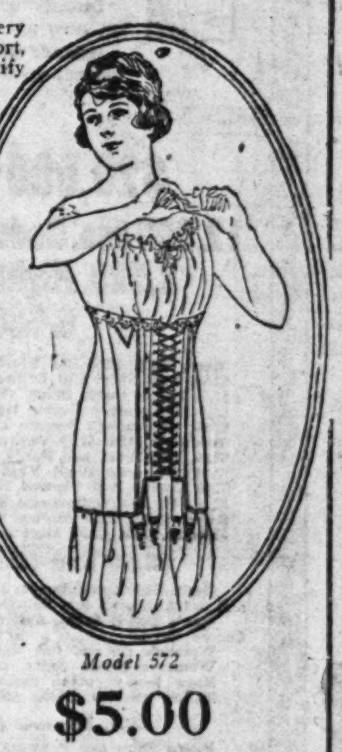
Fashioned of a soft, clinging pink or white Sterling cloth, this wonderful corset will give to a large number of women the new silhouette, with its smaller waistline, delicately indicated bust, and flat back and hip lines.

By the inimitable Gossard designing and scientific boning the correct abdominal support is assured—the corset always stays in position on the body, giving with its slightest movement, and may be worn the entire day with absolute comfort.



Model 572

The unequaled skill in designing that has famed Gossard Corsets the world over has now produced for you this new $5.00 model that will answer your most exacting corset requirements.

Developed in a fine French pink or white batiste, that clings to the body like silk, answering every demand of the mode, with the smaller waistline attained by skillful designing rather than actually expressed, this corset offers a foundation over which may be successfully worn the snugly fitted suits and frocks shown in the smart shops this season.

Acknowledging the radical advance in price of all merchandise, the discriminating buyer cannot but be impressed with the remarkable values offered in these unusual corsets.

FUTURE EVENTS

A great time is promised to those who are gonig to the benefit ball to be given at Fort Sheridan on Friday evening for the fund devoted to the care and relief of widows and orphans of soldiers killed in the war. Mrs. D. L. Tate, wife of Col. Tate, is in charge of the party and will be assisted by other women of the post.

There will be a married couples' dance on Friday evening at the Country club of Evanston, to which residents of Evanston who are not members of the club may be invited.

To popularize the idea of spiritual reconstruction after the war and to point out to women that in that direction much of their effort must be directed is the object of the talks which are being given by Mrs. Melville Lennard, wife of Capt. Lennard of the royal engineers, who is the speaker at the afternoon benefit affairs being given this fall at the home of Mrs. Samuel S. Hutchinson of 6231 Sheridan road, to increase the funds of the war charities. At the next talk and musical, which will be held on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Mrs. W. A. Evans will give a reading and Mrs. J. R. Pennington and Mrs. Don Dykes Napier will give a musical program. Mrs. Lennard will speak on "Personal Efficiency."

Cooler weather is giving an added spur to social matters at the South Shore Country club. This is to be especially manifest this week in the opening of the fall bridge tournament tomorrow. In addition to the regular attraction there will be three special prizes played for during October, November, and December, with the finals to be decided the last Monday in the year. While no guests will be permitted to play in the tournament itself, many large parties are being planned in connection with Friday guest days. The club's regular winter schedule of parties starts this week with dancing on Thursday and Saturday. A south shore auxiliary of the Red Cross is being formed and work will be begun this week under the direction of the Red Cross nurses and a large committee, of which Mrs. Augustus D. Curtis is chairman.

There will be a harvest home party on Saturday at the Glen View club.

The women of Our Lady of Sorrows church will have a card party tomorrow evening in the parish hall for the benefit of the bazaar.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soa

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary Mulsified Cocoanut Oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

Try This NEW Way for Superfluous Hair

If you have ever tried to remove superfluous hairs the old way—by using the usual irritating powders and liquids, you already know how they spot and redden the skin, irritate it, especially if the skin is tender, and never thoroughly remove all the hairs. Why not try the new, the simple, easy and thorough way that never fails.

Sulfo Solution

It is a liquid, all ready to apply. Immediately that you moisten the hairs with it, they begin to shrivel, and just dissolve away completely. It leaves no spot, or redness, never irritates. The thickest or thinnest growth vanishes, leaving the skin soft and smooth, without the least sign to show that you have ever had superfluous hair at all. This is why it is ideal especially for the face, arm-pits and very tender parts of the body. The low-cut and transparent gowns, all the fashion today, make it necessary to have hair-free arms, shoulders, face, ankles, etc. Use Sulfo Solution—quick, sure and safe.

Sold by all drug and department stores, $1.00 a bottle, or sent direct by Cooper Pharmacal Co., Thompson Bldg., Chicago.

The Annual October Sale of Silks—Again Supreme

Novelty taffetas and satins, rich shimmering effects, entirely new and fascinating styles in plaids, stripes, checks, Jacquard brocades, coin dots, etc., beautiful color combinations—autumn shades for street wear and delicate tints for dancing frocks and evening gowns in almost an endless variety; worth up to $3.00, Monday at, yard,

2.29, 1.98, 1.79, 1.59, 1.39 and 1.29

Charmeuse satins are among the best selling silks for fall and winter wear. Here are two exceptional values, 40 inches wide, black, white and all colors for street and evening wear, at, yard, 2.69 and...... 2.39

Crepe de Chines, more popular than ever, a silk splendidly suited for street or evening wear, firmly woven, heavy qualities, black, white and every new and wanted shade, 40 in. wide, at, yard, 1.98 and 1.69

40 inch wash satins, ivory white and flesh, so popular this season for waists and lingerie. Extra fine quality, the kind that launders beautifully. Sold regularly for $2.25, tomorrow, yard, 1.79

2.50 Georgette Crepe 1.59 yd.

Georgette crepe, the most called for silk today, 40 inches wide, extra heavy hard twisted quality, in black, white and colors, street and evening shades. Other stores are asking $2.25 and $2.50 for similar qualities, tomorrow at, yard, 1.59 yd.

$2 Crepe de Chine $1.19 yd.

Tomorrow we offer 7,500 yards of 40-inch fast edge fine, lustrous, heavy quality crepe de chine for dress purposes at less than manufacturer's cost; black, white, and all the latest street and evening shades to choose from, worth $2.00 ordinarily, at, yard,

1.19 yd.

40 inch black crepe meteors are extremely fashionable, appropriate for street and evening wear, heavy quality, rich brilliant luster; the values offered here are exceptional, worth to $4.00, at, yard, 2.98, 2.39 and .............. 1.59

Black satins lead in popularity for fall and winter wear, whether it's a high lustrous finish or the satin so soft, rich and velvety to the touch you desire, you'll find them here; yes, and priced considerably less than elsewhere. Included are Charmeuse, Radiant, Duchesse, Mousseline, Royal, Satin de Luxe, etc. 36 and 40 inches wide. Values to $4.00, tomorrow at, yard,

2.98, 2.69, 2.48, 1.98, 1.69 and 1.39

Black Ottoman silks are very popular for fall suits and coats. These are extra fine heavy cord weave, rich raven black, lustrous finish, 36 inches wide; tomorrow, $2.50 and $3.00 values at, yard, 1.98 and............ 1.69

40 inch black satin de Chine, a rich, lustrous, soft finish silk that wears exceedingly well and splendidly suited for dresses and waists; regularly retailed for $1.89, tomorrow at, yard ...... 1.35

Black satin messaline, not the flimsy light weight, but firm heavy quality for dresses, bright lustrous finish; 35 inches wide; well worth $1.39 customarily, we offer 2,500 yards tomorrow at, yard........................ 1.05

Supreme because we are constantly in much closer touch with conditions in the Silk Markets of the World than is any other retail store—the vastness of our Silk business makes it imperative that we are ever alert and so we can gather the huge and ever growing varieties so necessary for the October Silk Sales in a manner that others find impossible—a "Silk Exposition" it could well be called, for it displays the silks that have been entered by "Fashion" in an array that is most endless, and there is no color that has been proclaimed correct but is found here in all wanted weaves—still, by reason of our unusual market connections, because we have largest retail silk outlet in America, there is not another store that remotely meets the values you will find during this great annual event. Because there is seemingly an affinity between the soft souple Satins and Fashion, you will find Satins occupying the most prominent place in the display—Satins from the looms of every prominent mill, Satins in all their variations of weaves and finish, in all their beauty and richness. Velvets, too, are represented in a glowing array—but really you should, in justice to "keeping posted," inspect the showing yourself. As a criterion of the economies we quote these few items for the first day of the Sale—others of equal importance will be offered day by day.

Costume velveteens, fine imported qualities, rich silky sheen, soft chiffon finish, twill back, fast pile, "Worrall's dye," thus assuring lasting brilliancy. Black and colors, latest street shades; 27, 32, 36 and 44 inches wide. If you wish to be in style this season, you'll surely want a velvet costume; values from $2.00 to $5.00, tomorrow at, yard,

3.98, 2.48, 2.29, 1.98, 1.79 and 1.59

32 inch English corduroy velvet for suits and coats, finest quality, beautiful silky sheen, soft and clinging, "Worral's dye," the popular wide wale effect, black and latest street shades, $3.50 quality, at, yard, 2.48

Novelty French silk chiffon velvet, beautifully printed colored floral patterns on navy, taupe, seal, plum, Copenhagen, turquoise, white, etc. Exquisite for gowns, wraps, etc. 38 inches wide, $9.00 elsewhere, yard, 4.98

44 inch fine imported black costume velveteen, tomorrow at a lower price than any other store would think of offering, fast pile, "Worrall's dye," rich, silky sheen, well worth $4.50, at, yard, 2.98

2.25 Satin Charmeuse 1.59 yd.

Exceptional values are these charmeuse satins, for they're 40 inches wide, soft, rich, mellow finish, heavy quality, especially desirable for Fall wear. You'll find all the new and popular street and evening shades, including white and black. Sold regularly for $2.25; Monday at, yard,

1.59 yd.

$2 Satins & Taffetas 1.19 yd.

A Slim, Graceful Silhouette

Third Floor—Center

That is the goal toward which all fashion tends for Fall and Winter, and upon the skillful cutting and proper fitting of the corset depends the silhouette's success—there is no better combination to assure the success of your silhouette than our fitting service, of which you no doubt know, and Warner corsets—

Whether you ask for the topless and extremely low bust corsets so much in evidence or the very new shaped corset, a trifle drawn in at the waist, slightly rounded at the hips, and higher bust, which Paris seems to be favoring, Warner corsets can meet your demands—

so comprehensive a gathering of models, all new and correct, that we can fit perfectly the young girl, her mother, the matron and grandmother as well, and to each show models in great variety. Please remember, though, that the corsetiere can aid you immeasurably in seeing that you are fitted to exactly the model your figure requires—our corsetieres are the most experienced in all Chicago. Still we make no charge for the fitting service—prudent folks buy corsets before having their new clothes fitted.

If you are a plump figure with full diaphragm and full in the thighs, try the Warner corset model No. J-960, in a handsome pink brocade. Its low bust controls the full diaphragm excellently; sizes to 30, at... 5.00

Are you slender and do you want a slightly shaped corset, slightly nipped at waist, slightly rounded hip, trifle higher bust? Ask for Warner model No. F-902 in a handsome pink figured coutil, sizes to 30, at..... 3.50

Are you short, stout, with full bust and hips? Then you should try Warner corset model 1985, of good coutil. You will be pleased with the results. Sizes to 36, at........ 3.00

Warner Corsets, $1 to $5

Church Efficiency Congress to Talk of War Problems

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

An inter-church efficiency congress in which churches of many denominations and all sections of the United States will be represented will be held in Pittsburgh, Pa., beginning tomorrow evening and closing Thursday evening.

The congress was planned five years ago at the close of the men and religion movement with the purpose of exhibiting and analyzing the results of inter-church federations which were especially advocated in that movement. Fred B. Smith of New York, the chief organizer and promoter of the men and religion movement, is chairman of the Pittsburgh congress.

Since the plans were made for the congress war has been declared by the United States with the result that a discussion of the duty and opportunities of inter-church work in connection with the problems arising out of the war will be one of the principal features of the congress.

A departure from programs of a similar character in the past will be the time allowed to informal discussion. The report of the eight commissions will take one-half hour each and the time given to each discussion is an hour and a half. The reports as finally printed will have the benefit of these discussions on the original report. Among the national leaders who will take leading parts in the congress are: Dr. John R. Mott, Dr. Robert E. Speer, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, the Rev. Frank Mason North, the Rev. Charles Stelzle, Gov. Carl E. Milliken, the Rev. James E. Freeman, Dr. James A. McDonald, Daniel A. Poling. Chicago delegates will include Prof. Herbert L. Willett, president, and the Rev. W. B. Millard, executive secretary of the Chicago Church Federation, and the Rev. M. P. Boynton.

The Rev. J. W. Harsha, for the last four years pastor of the Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian church, will tomorrow begin his duties as the synodical superintendent of Illinois. He has resigned his pastorate in order to give his full time to his new work.

The ministers' meeting of the Chicago Disciples of Christ will be resumed tomorrow morning at the Y. M. C. A. hotel. The ministers will exchange vacation experiences.

The Rev. John Smith Lowe of Providence, R. I., the new general superintendent of the Universalist denomination, will be the guest of honor at a banquet given tomorrow evening at 6:30 in the St. Paul's Universalist church, Prairie avenue and Thirtieth street. The speakers will be Charles L. Hutchinson, the Rev. Harold Marshall, Boston, and Supt. Lowe. The Rev. William J. Taylor of Oak Park will be toastmaster. Mr. Lowe was elected general superintendent last June and will be formally presented to the general convention, where he will preside, which meets in Worcester Mass., Oct. 17-21. The church which he resigned to become general superintendent sold for $180,000, and it was the intention to erect in its place a large institutional church. This will now be left to his successor.

The synod of the province of the midwest of the Protestant Episcopal church, representing Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan, will meet in Fond du Lac, Wis., Oct. 9 to 11. Fifteen bishops, forty-eight priests, and forty-eight laymen will be present.

Among the speakers will be the Rt. Rev. Theodore I. Reese, bishop coadjutor of southern Ohio, who will lead the discussion on the relation of the church to the nation in time of war; the Rev. Dr. William Gardner of New York, head of the general board of religious education; the Rt. Rev. C. P. Anderson, bishop of Chicago, who will speak on "The Church and the Nation"; Prof. O. W. Neale, rural sociologist of the state of Wisconsin, who will speak on "The Problem of the Country Church"; the Rt. Rev. Benjamin Brewster, bishop of Maine, who will talk on "The Church and the Emerging Social Order," and the Rev. Frank M. Crouch, executive secretary of the joint commission on social service of New York City.

The Rev. Milford Lyon, evangelist, Winona Lake, Ind., accompanied by his singer, H. C. Clase, will leave this week for three months work among the soldiers in France. Dr. Lyon goes at the invitation of the war work council of the Y. M. C. A. He is chairman of the committee on war work of the interdenominational association of evangelists.

Maj. Donald Guthrie will speak on his war experiences at 10 o'clock today in the Evanston Christian church, of which the Rev. O. F. Jordan is pastor.

The Roseland Presbyterian church, 112th and South State streets, will celebrate today the sixth anniversary of the dedication of the church by the completion of an out of debt campaign which has been conducted by a band of thirty workers. The pastor is the Rev. Robert O. Thomas. The debt was $4,000.

The Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, North La Salle and Elm streets, organized in 1857, will celebrate its sixtieth anniversary on All Saints day, Nov. 1, the celebration continuing several days. It is expected that the Rev. Edward Larrabee and the Rev. Arthur Richle, former rectors, will attend the anniversary. The Rev. W. B. Stoskopf has been rector of the church since 1909.

The Oak Park community school of religious education, in which several denominations coöperate, will begin Tuesday evening and continue to Dec. 4. The meetings will be held every Tuesday evening in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Lake street and Forest avenue. Two of the teachers will be Prof. George L. Robinson of McCormick Theological seminary and Dr. Levi H. Beeler.

Rev. Francis R. Godolphin

The Rev. Francis R. Godolphin is rector of the Grace Protestant Episcopal church, Lake street near Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, which is nearly ready to dedicate a new parish house costing, with the improvements in the church itself, $65,000. Uncertainty over certain features of the work delays the fixing of the date of dedication, but it is expected it will be in October.

On Nov. 1 the rector completes four years of his pastorate of Grace church. Last week he returned from a two months' sojourn in Colorado, where he did missionary work in behalf of the church while likewise building himself up in the mountain air. Today at 10 o'clock he will preach in the high school yard to members of the First battalion of the Second regiment, Illinois reserve militia.

The new parish house is located at the rear of the church but projects to the west, so that the entrance to it is plainly seen from the front of the church on Lake street. It is built of Bedford stone and stucco. A guild hall on the first floor and a parish hall on the second floor each have a seating capacity of 475. The guild hall is used for dining purposes and is connected with a large modern kitchen. The parish hall is provided with a stage for plays and general public assemblies.

On the first floor, near the entrance to the church, is a chapel seating seventy-five, in which service will be held daily.

Every convenience for parish work, as well as for social life, is provided—a church office, fireproof vault, central telephone with several extensions, rector's study, choir rooms, closets for each of the guilds, a special closet for sewing machines and sewing material, and a room for boys. The lower guild hall is arranged so it can be divided into two rooms by means of folding partitions.

The architect of the building has kept a constant thought on the beauty as well as on the utility of the parish house, and as a result one is reminded of the parish churches of England, covered with vines and surrounded with attractive foliage. Dedication week will give expression to all the forms of church and community life.

The Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, who is well known as an active worker in the national campaigns of the Republican party, will speak this morning at 10:40 in the First Methodist Episcopal church, Clark and Washington streets. His subject will be "The Meaning and Mission of the Flag."

The Rev. Paul H. Roth will be installed as professor of historical theology in the theological seminary of the Evangelical Lutheran church at Chicago next Thursday at 10 a. m. The event will mark the opening of the twenty-seventh year of the seminary and will be held in the seminary commons at Maywood, Ill.

The Chicago Lawn Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev. E. J. Aiken, pastor, will observe today as "Joash" Sunday. Offerings will be placed in a Joash chest placed beside the altar.

The Edison Park Methodist Episcopal church will today complete the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the church. The Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann will preach the morning sermon.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. E. A. Kelly, pastor of St. Anne's Roman Catholic church, Chicago, and E. F. Carry are the clerical and lay delegates to the national war council which began yesterday its session at the Catholic university, Washington, D. C.

The Chicago union of the Christian women's board of missions, comprising twenty-four missionary auxiliaries of local churches, will meet in the Ashland Avenue Christian church next Thursday. Mrs. Effie Cunningham, editor of Missionary Tidings, will speak.

The Rev. B. H. Hemmeter was installed last week pastor of an English Lutheran church of the Missouri synod at North Kedzie and Cullom avenues. Nine ministers had part in the ceremony. Services will be held every Sunday morning at 10:45. It is expected soon to erect a church building.

Rally day services will be held today at 9:45 in the Christ Presbyterian church, Orchard and Center streets. W. S. Chambers, community secretary of the North Avenue-Larrabee Street Y. M. C. A., will make the address, and an orchestra will furnish music.

The centenary of the founding of the Brothers of Mary, a religious order in the Roman Catholic church, will be celebrated next Tuesday in two of the Chicago parishes where the order is teaching. Solemn high mass will be sung at 9 o'clock at St. Aloysius' church, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. A. J. Thiele, pastor, Claremont avenue and Lemoyne street, and at 10 o'clock at St. Michael's church, Eugenie street near Cleveland avenue, the Rev. Nicholas Klein, pastor.

The order was founded in Bordeaux, France, in 1817 and adopted as its motto "To Christ through Mary." One of its chief tenets has been the cultivation of a strong and filial love for the Blessed Virgin. The order is composed of both clerical and lay members. It was introduced into the United States in 1849 and has sixty establishments and two provinces, the eastern and the western.

One of the interesting features of religious work in the army is the pains taken to devise the simplest unbreakable equipment for Roman Catholic chaplains to say mass. The equipment devised is about the size of a suitcase and costs $100. It contains an altar and altar stone, two sets of reversible vestments, altar cards, candles and candle protectors for outdoor mass, cruets, cruet dish, crucifix, chalice and paten, alb, cincture, altar linens, pyx, a large holder for hosts, a flask for altar wine, missal, and missal stand. Twenty-two chaplains have been provided with the equipment and it is hoped all will be. The equipment was devised by the Chaplain's Aid association under the patronage of Cardinal Farley and is called the chaplain's kit.

The Rev. James H. Franklin, accompanied by several missionaries en route to their mission fields by way of the Pacific coast, will speak at the Baptist Ministers' union tomorrow at 10:30 in the Masonic temple. In the evening they will be given a farewell reception at the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Belden avenue and North Halsted street, of which the Rev. Samuel G. Skevington is pastor. All Baptist churches in Chicago and vicinity have been invited to send representatives to the reception.

A week of services which will include rally day, home coming, a patriotic demonstration, a concert, an anniversary service, and a dedication of one of the three churches which form a part of the group, will be observed by the Fourth Congregational church, Powell and Shakespeare avenues, beginning today and closing next Sunday afternoon. The Fourth church was formed by the merger of the Courtland, Maplewood, and Grace Congregational churches. The central building is the former Maplewood building, the Courtland building is new and its ded ication will take place at 2:30 o'c today. H. Russell Smith of Wh and L. P. Putnam will be the sp ers. In the evening the pastor, the Rev. W. A. Briggs, will preach "Coming Home." The anniversary service will be held next Sunday in the central building. Tomorrow evening a meeting to which former members are invited will be held in the of the Courtland, Maplewood, and Grace buildings. On Wednesday evening will meet together. The patriotic on Friday evening will be addressed by Lieut. J. J. Brokenshire, formerly pastor of the Grace church, now serving as army chaplain.

Lift Corns Off With Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Corns and calluses loosen and fall off! Magic!

Few drops of Freezone take all pain and soreness from corns instantly

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

Wonderful discovery by Cincinnati man

This remarkable drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted right off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels or rather loosens them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. Try a little and see for yourself. It is surprising.

Few drops stop corn-pain

Take soreness from any corn or callus instantly

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice. If a corn starts hurting just apply a drop. The pain stops instantly, corn goes!

Tiny bottles of Freezone cost but a few cents at any drug store.

NEW YORK SOCIETY - - - - - - - By Mme. Y.

War Worker May Lead the Newport Set Next Year

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If the fortunes of war can take an unsuspecting sergeant, or even a private, and elevate him to the command of a general, why shouldn't it create a new leader in that society which has taken so active a part in the preparations for war?

It was the observant Milton who declared that peace hath her victories no less than war. And certainly society has its ambitious noncommissioned leaders as surely as the army.

This thought occurred to me the other day when I heard a group of society matrons discussing the possibility of there being a new social dictatorship established in Newport next season. This, you know, is the season for such rumors. The summer campaigns having been completed, and the results tabulated, there are always a few new names to be found higher in the list of leaders than they stood before, and usually a few dominating personalities to reckon with.

This season there is one name in particular and the mention of it is what started the discussion. It is that of Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, and there are not a few who believe that this indefatigable hostess is now in a position to make a bold bid for the position so long held by the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish—that of supreme social arbiter in the summer colony.

If this is true, it must be admitted that Mrs. James has quite cleverly laid her plans. Of all the matrons none has kept herself so well forward during the last season, and she has done so by following the example of the late Mrs. Fish in originating and carrying to success those social "stunts" of unquestioned individuality most likely to attract attention and compel a legitimate publicity.

Entertains Soldiers and Sailors.

It was Mrs. James who opened the Newport season with her horticultural party, and Mrs. James who took the lead in interesting society in providing comfort kits and entertainment for the enlisted soldiers and sailors.

She built a theater for the men at the Newport training quarters and when local talent failed her she imported vaudeville entertainers from New York. It was she who organized a committee of the most prominent society women to meet the incoming contingents who happened to arrive between midnight and sunrise and provide them with hot coffee and sandwiches, and it is noteworthy that in this work she enlisted the services of many of the women who naturally would have been her rivals had they any idea that she was aiming at social supremacy, which at the time she probably had no thought of doing.

She was the first of the prominent cottagers to set aside certain afternoons each week when her villa was thrown open to the men in service, again calling upon the other ladies of the colony to assist her. I told you of the thousand men who marched to her place to thank her personally for all that she has done for them, and since then she has received a silver loving cup from the men of the naval station bearing this inscription: "To Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, In Loving Appreciation, by the Sixth Regiment of Apprentice Seamen of the Naval Training Station, Newport, Rhode Island, September, 1917."

Nothing may actually come of this series of successes, but it is of such incidents that social leadership is created, and there are ever so many who are saying and ever so many who are thinking that the toga of Mrs. Fish may yet drape the shoulders of Mrs. James.

Weddings of Interest to Chicagoans

Military brides have grown so amazingly in numbers this past summer that one never is just sure nowadays how to greet a debutante. She may quietly have married her soldier lover during the week or the fortnight and already returned from the brief honeymoon his leave of absence allowed. Consider the case of Mrs. Francis Townsend Hunter as an instance. Less than ten days ago Mr. Hunter, who is a member of one of New York's oldest families, graduated from Annapolis. Since then he has married Miss Helen D. Berry, daughter of Mrs. Edward Berry of New Rochelle and New York, returned from his wedding trip, and reported for active service on one of the superdreadnaughts. And only yesterday, it seems, Mrs. Hunter was one of the youngest members of the Junior league, that smartest of all New York's younger set societies.

Two of this week's weddings should interest Chicago society. The first, that of Miss Mary Faith McAdoo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ross McAdoo and niece of the secretary of the treasury, William G. McAdoo, and Lawrence Otis Wilson, son of Walter H. Wilson of Chicago. They were married at Litchfield, Conn., in St. Michael's Episcopal church, by the rector, the Rev. William J. Brewster. Miss Anne Brooks McAdoo attended her sister. The couple first met at Westbrook, Conn., several years ago, and their engagement was announced last May, following the wedding of the bride's cousin, Miss Nona McAdoo, to Ferdinand de Mohrenschildt, second secretary of the Russian embassy in Washington, at which Miss McAdoo attended as bridesmaid. They will live in Chicago.

The second is that of Miss Eleanor Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George White Baxter of Knoxville, Tenn., and Easthampton, L. I., and C. Perry Beadleston of New York, which is to occur Saturday of this week in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's. Mrs. Volney Foster of Lake Forest, Ill., a sister of the bride, will be matron of honor, and Miss Katherine Le Burrage of Boston, her small niece, will act as flower girl. A reception for the bridal party and a few friends at Sherry's will follow the ceremony.

Plan Second Allied Bazaar.

Great preparations are being made for the second bazaar for allied war relief, to be held at the Grand Central palace in November. The committee on preliminary arrangements includes Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. William Astor Chanler, James Marwick, Frank Crowinshield, Mr. and Mrs. William Adams Delano, John Moffat, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. Walter E. Maynard, H. J. Whigham, and Mrs. Ralph Sanger. This will be the most prominent war relief charity sponsored by society since the famous allied ball of last winter. Everybody will have something to do with it, and that none may be overlooked care has been taken to have each set and faction represented on one or the other of the committees.

Announcements have just been received of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Julia A. Meyer, daughter of George von L. Meyer, former secretary of the navy, to Giuseppe Brambilla, counselor of the Italian embassy. The wedding is to take place the first week in October at Beverley, Mass., at the country place of the bride's parents. The bride's sister, Mrs. C. Raymond P. Rodgers, will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids Camilla Lippincott and Julia Appleton. Signor Brambilla has asked Count Machi di Collere, the Italian ambassador, to be his best man.

TRACE DISEASE TO CONSTIPATION

One of the points on which different schools of medicine practically agree is that about 95% of all human disease is directly traceable to intestinal putrefaction of stomach waste due to inactivity of the bowels, or constipation. The eliminative process is an essential factor in digestion and on its proper functioning depends the welfare of the entire system.

Constipation is a condition that should never be neglected. As soon as the bowels evidence the slightest disposition to slow up, a mild laxative should be taken. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and sold in drug stores for fifty cents a bottle, is highly recommended as a corrective, acting gently, in an easy, natural way, without griping or other pain or discomfort. A trial bottle of this excellent family remedy can be obtained free of charge by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 456 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois, for whom this advertisement is published.

Autumn Sale Trimmed Hats

Second Floor.

Featuring Street Hats, Semi-dress and Dress Hats,

Copies of Original Parisian Creations

$5, 6.75, 8.75 and $10

Four of the Many Styles Pictured

Again Paris has been weighed and found not wanting. For trimmed autumn hats fully maintain, indeed enhance, all her old-time prestige. But this fall her millinery supremacy assumes a new flavor—a more reserved simplicity than has characterized previous years. Just as cute, just as cunning, just as chic—but more subdued; a "practical simplicity."

All the popular trimmings appear. Feather fantasies, artistic garnitures, ornaments, gold and silver laces, fur trimmings, flowers, etc.

With true American ingenuity, the newest styles have been copied, modified, adapted and developed to suit Miss and Mrs. America's needs. Here are hats for every occasion—in a bewildering assortment of shapes. Autumnal colors are displayed in great profusion—also black. In lovely silk velvets, Lyons velvets, Panne velvets, etc.—the season's favorites.

ASTRONOMY

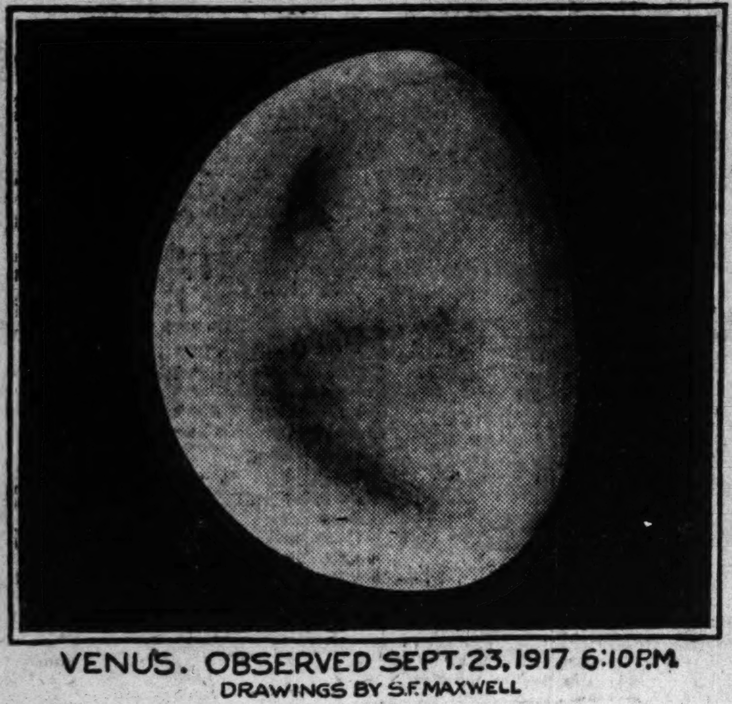
PHASES OF VENUS THE SUNSET HORNS



VENUS. OBSERVED SEPT. 23, 1917 6:10 P.M.
DRAWINGS BY S. F. MAXWELL

VENUS.

THE brilliant white planet in the southwest at sunset this evening is Venus. It is the second planet in order from the sun. At times it comes nearer to the earth than any other celestial body, with the exception of the moon. Venus is now approaching, and early next spring, when nearest, it will be only 24,000,000 miles away, or about one-fourth the distance from the earth to the sun.

This planet is the twin sister of the earth, resembling our globe more closely than any other member of the solar system. The earth is 8,000 miles in diameter, while Venus is 7,700. If one from the earth could by some means be transported to Venus, he would find a planet not much different from his own. The most striking features of this new world would be the oppressive heat and the heavy, steaming atmosphere.

Venus reflects three-fourths of the light and heat which strikes it. This, together with the fact that there the sunshine is twice as bright as it is here, causes its unique brilliancy.

As worlds go, Venus is plentifully supplied with air, much more so, in fact, than the earth. There is more than two and one-third times as much air there as here. On earth we find little atmosphere higher than fifteen miles; on Venus there is a noticeable quantity at forty miles or more.

The presence of atmosphere at this height is detected when the planet passes between us and the sun. Venus exhibits phases similar to those of the moon, and when nearest the earth is a thin hair line crescent. At such times the horns are seen to stretch around the dark side of the ball. Often they are tinged with shades of pink and copper, by the sunset light on Venus shining on the air of that planet; and by means of it we can measure the dimensions of its gaseous envelope.

The surface of Venus which is accessible to telescopes is atmospheric, and is composed of clouds which are shifting much as those on earth. Because it is hard to observe a working outline, the finding of the length of its day is rendered very difficult, and nothing conclusive has ever been accomplished. Colors are conspicuously lacking on Venus. The earth, as seen from space, would be a wonderful maze of green, blue, white, red, pink, and brown, but nothing of this is seen on Venus, except the coppery sunset light. The reason is that the billowy clouds float as high as the air will support them, and the thin amount left above is not sufficient to change the character of its sunlight.

ART by Louise James Bargelt

Varied Periods and Types in McCormick Loan

A CATHOLIC exhibit of the different British schools of painting is the R. Hall McCormick exhibit of pictures at the Art institute, part of which I wrote of in some detail last Sunday. Some are "little masters of art" in comparison with the greatest, and some are masters of the world, but it is only by real familiarity with such men as Hogarth, Crome, Callcott, Lawrence, Turner, Constable, and Reynolds that their beauty is appreciated and any widespread and intelligent appreciation of their work is possible.

Comparisons in art at the best are the most transient and unsatisfactory of pastimes. Rare indeed are those accepted masterpieces of the world that would provoke no opponent to question their Olympian superiority. The realistic school looks askance on the poetic and the pictures with the dramatic subjects are gazed on contemptuously by those who insist that technique spent on certain aspects of nature is the only high art.

This exhibit is particularly interesting and comprehensive in the varied periods and types of British painting which it covers.

There is Hogarth with his definite bias towards a realistic imitation of nature; Hogarth with whom English painting really started into fresh and independent life. This statement of course excludes the foreign artists who settled in England previous to his time, British enough all of them, to be considered in every resumé of thoroughly English painting.

These earlier men of foreign birth are also in this McCormick collection. Sir Peter Lely's "Duchess of Portsmouth," one of the most mischievous, witching, adorable creatures ever put on canvas, is here, and so is Sir Godfrey Kneller's "Portrait of a Lady," a blonde and haughty beauty whose golden hair crowns an oval face of unusual distinction. And into this same category would be included the "Portrait of a Woman" by Sir Anthony More.

And then there is work by Constable—for what collection of British masters would be complete without one picture at least by the originator of the movement which today controls much that is vigorous and vital in art? There is a painting, too, by Turner, the man so typical of the great conservative forces back of Britain, experimenting much, daring much, and yet keeping well in touch with all that went before. Antipodal to Constable, whose democratic and adventuresome temperament took him back to nature without a thought for what had been or for what might come, you can see these two masters hanging one near the other.

"Miss Baldwin," by Reynolds, in a costume worn by her at a fancy dress ball given by George III., looks down at us after 200 years of silent life on the canvas. It is not hard to realize the reason for the eminence Reynolds has attained in British portraiture after studying a few of his portraits, though here in this same exhibit we see a portrait by Gainsborough which is not so far removed in excellence from the work of Reynolds. A Romney is hanging near a portrait of "Lady Beauchamp." As is usual in the most of Romney's faces, he seems to see them through a haze permeated with the spirit of his adored Lady Hamilton.

Lawrence has a romantic portrait of "Miss Barron," picturesque in every line and with a charming background of English clouds and shrubbery, and John Opie, a strong faced old man with shrewd, sad eyes.

In looking at a gallery filled with typically British paintings one cannot help being impressed with the difference between an island gallery and a continental gallery. The foreign galleries are filled to overflowing with huge allegorical decorations such as Rubens loved, or with great battle pieces of men dead and dying, or living, fighting, and loving, or again with vast historical records of coronations and the like.

In the British galleries such paintings are few. Once in a while some island born artist attempts such feats of the brush, but they lack the spirit and the abandon of the more emotional nations of the continents to the south. British art, restrained even in its most impassioned moments, conservative even when it would go to radical lengths, is at its best in portraits, in pastoral landscapes, and in genre pictures.

And for a representative collection of excellent English art this exhibit has few equals for its size and fineness.

The sixteenth annual exhibit of Applied Arts opens on the evening of Oct. 9 at the Art institute. At the same time the annual exhibit of the Chicago Ceramic Art association will open. The exhibiting membership of this club is limited to thirty in order to preserve the high standard. It has in the course of its existence established the use of conventional ornament on porcelain surfaces and in the words of an authority of note, "The Atlan club has certainly established a new form of china decoration for the United States. Its work is far ahead of anything I have seen done here and compares favorably with the best in Europe." The public will look forward with interest to this exhibition.

On this same date a gallery will be filled with paintings of the far west. There will be pictures of the Grand Canyon, the Taos country, the Yellowstone park, and other mountainous regions which these artists have been painting for some time.

Beginning the first of October there will be lectures given by Mrs. Herman J. Hall in the northeast room on the main floor of the Art institute. In the same place will be Miss Parker's children's classes.

The Art Institute Alumni association will hold its Saturday afternoon sketch class at the Art institute during October. This is the fourth season for the class' existence and both amateurs and semi-professionals find this class of exceptional value.

Beginning tomorrow there will be an exhibit of the work of summer art schools from many parts of the country in the galleries of the Art Alliance of America, New York City. New York will be represented by the Art Students' league and there will be an extensive showing of jewelry and other crafts work from the Berkshire Summer School of Art, which is maintaind by two Pratt institute instructors. The out of town schools will include work from the students of a good many states, Chicago's students having contributed a generous number.

Between the optimistically and the pessimistically inclined authorities on what's to be in art this coming season, one hardly knows what to think. Some predict a time of famine in things artistic from the fact that people will be so heavily taxed and under such increased expenditure in every way that they will have no money for the esthetic enjoyments of life. On the other hand the optimists find increased cause for their belief in a good and prosperous season from the fact that the senate, in striking out of the tax bill the proposed flat tariff of 10 per cent on all articles in the free list has removed all present danger of a tariff on art.

London and Paris for the last two summers have been flooded with newly rich men and women whose fortunes have sprung up in a night from the profits of materials necessary to the continuance of the war. The art mart is surely as delightful and cultured a medium as any for this money to pass through and there is no reason, our optimists say, for not expecting the same thing to happen in this country.

Our same optimists, by way of added substantiation of their claims, point to the recent sale of Raeburn's portrait of McNab. Sir Thomas De War paid the munificent sum of £25,410 for this painting. A reproduction of it appears on the cover of the September number of Arts and Decoration. Raeburn's work is excellent. He was a genius and his portraits rank hardly second to Gainsborough and Lawrence in England. But $100,000 is a rather inflated price to pay even for a Raeburn.

If you remember the two pictures by Claude Monet, both of them exquisitely beautiful in the finest sense, which were in the Luxembourg collection of paintings at the institute last year; if you recall his "Cathedral," which belongs to his series of cathedrals and which was imbued with the rare atmosphere of spirituality and all pervading sympathy, then you will enthuse genuinely over the report that the French minister of fine arts has commissioned Claude Oscar Monet to paint the ruins of Reims cathedral.

Big, Beautiful 1918 Cars of Character

DAVIS advanced 1918 full line of models are ready, remarkable—worth seeing at once.

Every design is new—but based on sane, solid, substantial principles which for eight years have created confidence with thousands of DAVIS owners.

The 1918 perfect power plant is a new, specially designed DAVIS-Continental MOTOR—

—with perfectly balanced crankshaft

—entirely eliminating perceptible vibration

—giving greatly increased power and speed.

Most luxurious, first quality leather upholstery, hand-stuffed with finest hair. Specially highly finished hand-painted, in exclusive color designs, most appreciated on sight. No cheap painting processes used. Long luster service insured.

Most important also, for big values, is that ALL DAVIS models are entirely NEW 1918 cars, not simply given minor touches to work off old 1917 materials, or 1917 cars "left-over." The DAVIS sells entire output early every year. No disappointments. Enthusiastic ownership. Perfect performance.

What was HUDFORD is now TRUXTUN.

The shaft drive unit that has become nationally famous was known as the HUDFORD—manufacturing exigencies compelled a change in name—in name only—to TRUXTUN.

The Commercial Car Unit Company of Philadelphia owns the HUDFORD name, the basic patents surrounding it and all merchandising rights attached to it. In the process of development it was decided to change the name from Hudford to TRUXTUN.

The HUDFORD name suggested a converting attachment exclusively for Fords—whereas the TRUXTUN not only in name but in fact means a shaft drive attachment that converts not only Fords but other makes of pleasure cars into economical, profit-making 1¼ and 2 ton trucks.

And our day and night FACTORY SERVICE is always available to every user of TRUXTUN (formerly Hudford) Units.

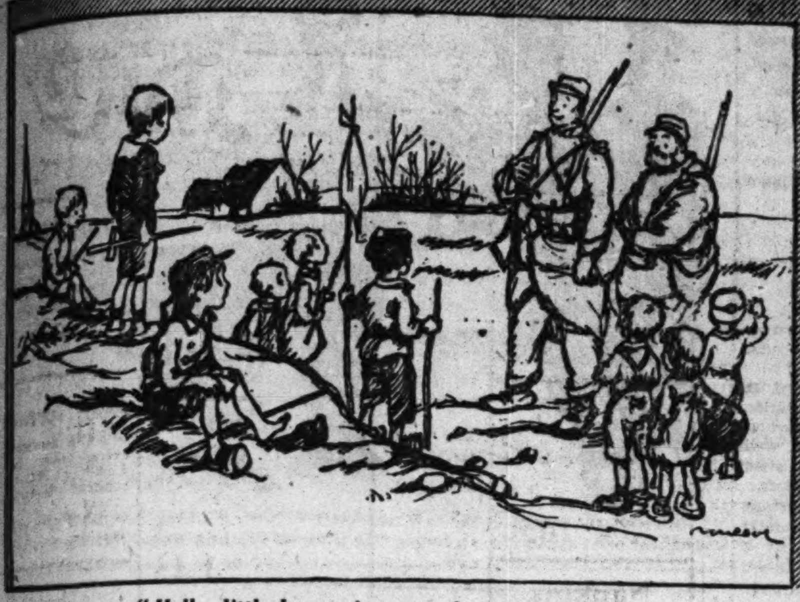
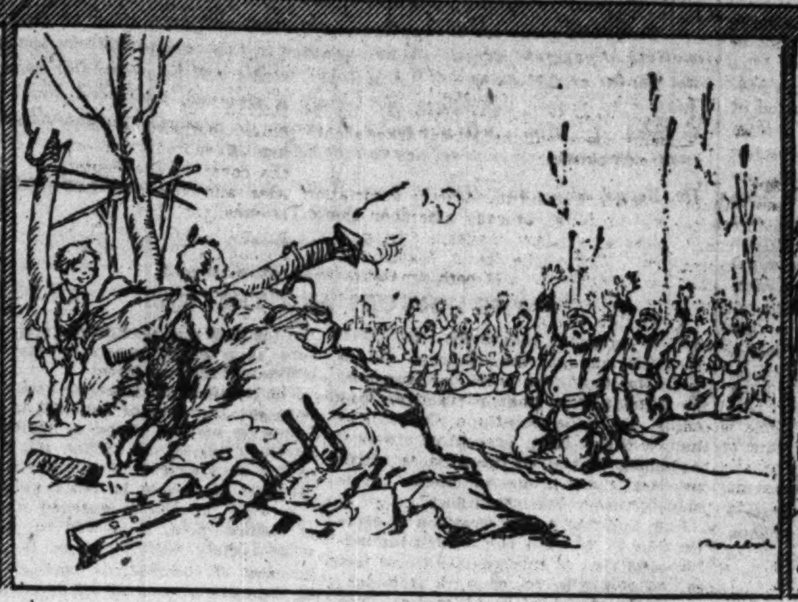
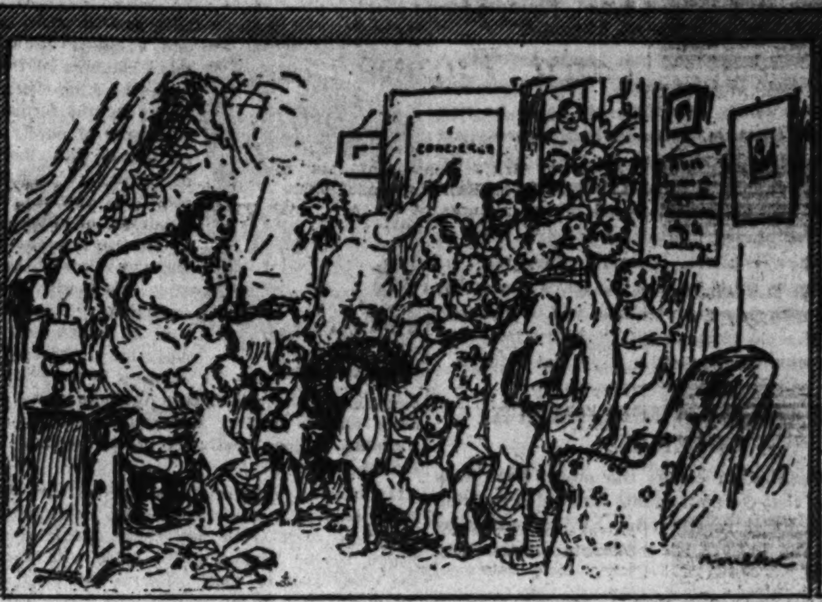
FRENCH KIDS IN WAR TIME—By Poulbot, the Famous Parisian Cartoonist



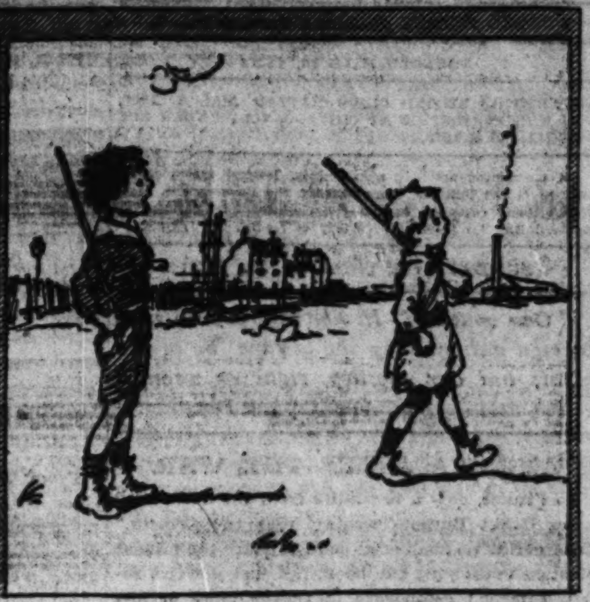
"Hello, little boys. Are you playing at war?"
"We can't. Nobody wants to be the Boche."



"They think it's artillery."



"Zeppelins, eh? I thought you had come to pay the rent."



"Halt! Company! Attention! March!"

Depression.

THE shag bark hickory is already bare to the wind and its yellow leaves are on the ground, dry, soiled, and depressing tokens of impending desolation. The flame of the maple is a delusion, a deceiving phantasy in color, sad against the slate sky of a wet gray day when every memory of summer walks slowly down the darkening road and fades with the shortened day.

Illusion occasionally will lift its benevolent haze as the wind turns over the fallen leaves and scurries them into heaps in the house corners and as that kindly veil rises and betrays the barren prospect the mood of man must struggle to rally and in struggling sometimes feel that surrender is the only anodyne.

The wood thrush which gave song to sundown has gone with the memories of his song. The tanager which flashed through the oaks is gone with the poppies which gave their petals to the beauty of one day. Nothing endures, neither the ecstasy nor the pain which has been hand in hand with happiness and which remains a while for remembrance.

Sirius will come into the evening sky and shine upon the deserted fields of snow. The petals have dropped. The east wind is a painful cry in the pines and there is only a fading glow in the ashes of the log which burned for a hearth that was bright.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Conflicting rumors concerning what the Maxwell organization proposes to do with the Chalmers plant, which it has taken over, were met last week with the announcement that immediate production of about 20,000 cars of the present Chalmers models is planned. "There have been reports that we are going to drop the Chalmers cars and build trucks in the Chalmers plant," said President Walter E. Flanders. "We may build some trucks, but long before we get trucks under way we will be producing Chalmers passenger cars at the rate of nearly 100 per day, and we shall continue this production to meet the dealers' requirements."

Hugh Chalmers and all his former executives have retired completely from any active connection with the affairs of the Chalmers factory.

The wife of a Los Angeles physician, having an inventive turn of mind, has provided a suggestion for her motoring acquaintances by fitting up her husband's Studebaker with an "automobile clothes press." The contraption consists of a khaki bag with a wide mouth, into which is sewn three cross bars or curtain poles, the whole being inclosed by a wide flap. From the three curtain poles hang anywhere from three to six regulation coat, trouser, and skirt hangers. When the bag is filled it is suspended by two metal hooks from the rear top bow in the tonneau. The inventor says it works beautifully.

The Sinclair Refining company, known to Chicago motorists for its series of diminutive gasoline filling stations recently erected here and there about the city, has ordered 100 Pierce-Arrow trucks for the distribution of its products throughout the country. Some, on a two ton chassis, are to carry 750 gallon tanks, and others, of the five ton type, tanks of 1,500 gallons capacity. The first of the tankers appeared in Chicago last week.

Announcement is made of an entirely new group of 1918 models of the Davis, a Richmond, Ind., product. These include a seven passenger touring car and five passenger club roadster, each mounted on chassis of two sizes, and a Springfield body sedan. All are now to be seen in Chicago. Bodies and power plants in each case are new, but similar in character to those of past years.

Flanders Fighters Give Vivid Word Pictures of War

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—I feel that I am going to be full of quotations this week, for I have received one or two thrilling letters and messages from the front and it seems to me it would be a rare misfortune if they should be lost in the ordinary "cubbyhole" of a private desk. Now that every woman in America and every nonfighting man feels that he and she, too, are in close personal touch with the tremendous issues at stake on this side of the world, messages and letters such as are occasionally received here are of more complete individual interest than ever they were before.

This week I happen to have received from the front "somewhere in Flanders" a letter that brought me more vividly in touch with the war than any war correspondent's descriptive hysterics, or the bald details which we receive daily from the headquarters of the British expeditionary force. It is from a subaltern in a machine gun company, and he writes as follows:

As the poet gently gurgles, somewhere "out of the gates of hell" comes this letter. Let your imagination picture, therefore, a dirty Geoffrey crawling, with his knees scraping pebbles on the ground, into a shell scraped chateau with "what was left of them." O, my dear, we did go through it, but the men were wonderful! It makes me cry when I think of what they did. One mass of "heavies" mowing our line for eight hours; accurately searching and blasting our line; and not a man left his gun until it was blown from his hands. And that's what a voluntary army can do!

I was very lucky; beyond being blown up and buried, and the sole torn from my boot with ground shrapnel, I was absolutely untouched, and was fortunate enough to be able to keep with my men until we got relief.

Here we are in rest for a few days, thank God! And the men are singing away cheerily, as if nothing had happened. It makes me feel pretty small at times to see how happy they keep. I suppose the responsibility of those men's lives makes you worried at times.

No Shelter from Shells.

The reference that now follows to a card that was unsigned has to do with a field card that came through the post during one of the most violent of the recent artilley actions near the coast in Flanders:

I am sorry the card was unsigned, but the circumstances were rather difficult, as it was written at the bottom of a crater in the land called No Man's. We have no shelters round these parts, and there are no trenches. All weathers, out in the open, and seven days is just the limit of human endurance. I have rather a lot of letters to write tonight, so hope you will excuse this short and rather miserable screed. I often think of dear old London. You never know when you are well off—and there was a time when I wanted to go out to the front! Well, I'm going to stick it out until I get killed or wounded; let's hope the latter, as life is awful precious just now.

Another letter from the same part of the fighting line has also reached me this week. After a small amount of "home talk" the writer, also a young officer in a machine gun company, goes on to say:

I will now revert to my present environment—a dugout, with foodstuffs reeking in your nostrils and the Boche shelling us like hell. We had literally to run for our lives last night, as we had to make a five hundred yard dash across the open with Fritz pounding us all the time with heavies—and not a casualty! I was born under a lucky star, I think; a sniper nearly got me this morning, curse him! One of us dies directly it gets dark, and it won't be me, cheeky beast! I hope I get him in the part which hurts most.

I think we are winning the war all right and am keeping cheery. My quandom sense of humor has become so highly developed that I roar with laughter when I tumble over a dead mule into a shell crater. Seriously speaking, however, the awful devastation out here makes you think. The muck, carnage, and all things "gaga" must be most repulsive to those more highly strung than myself. It is really one descent lower than the most primitive state.

It always seems to me that it is in human documents like these that one arrives at the real taste and flavor of the war; and neither of these lads who writes is more than 25.

Muriel Wilson a Bride.

I think everybody will be deeply interested in the marriage a few days ago of Miss Muriel Wilson to Lieut. R. W. Warde, M. C., of the Scots Guards. Muriel Wilson's name from the days that she was one of the most beautiful and brilliant debutantes at one of the last drawing rooms held by Queen Victoria has been famous.

To Americans the Wilsons' name is extremely familiar, for every one who has reached years of discretion must remember the famous card scandal at Tranby Croft in which the present Countess of Warwick, then Lady Brooke, and the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, were concerned as witnesses. Miss Muriel Wilson, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson of Tranby Croft and a girl in her teens at that time, was simply an adjunct to the whole amazing society story. But for years her name, naturally, was more or less associated with it.

Mrs. Warde, to give the beautiful Muriel her present name, is not exactly what we call nowadays "a flapper," but she is a splendid looking woman, in type suggesting the dark and classical loveliness of Miss Maxine Elliott more than any one else who happens to come before my mind. She has always been a famous amateur actress, and the annual theatrical performances during Christmas time at Chatsworth, when the late Duke and Duchess of Devonshire were alive, made her specially notable. In fact, so successful were her efforts both as a tragedienne and comedienne that at one time Sir Herbert Tree was extremely anxious to engage her as his leading woman at His Majesty's theater.

Rare Lace in Wedding Gown.

I am told that the bride looked wonderfully youthful in her wedding gown of palest cream colored crêpe de chine and lovely old rose point lace. This was, I fancy, the almost priceless specimen of this rare lace which was presented to her by the late Duchess of Devonshire many years ago. The duchess gave it to the girl with express instructions that it should be used for her wedding veil. As a matter of fact, however, it formed a part of her long square train, which fell from her shoulders, while her veil was of chiffon draped in square points at the side from a Russian coronet of pearls.

It would have been uncharacteristic if the bride had not evolved some touch of originality in her wedding costume. This she secured by carrying a huge sheaf of deep orange and black tiger lilies.

From One Who Has Given a Son In War

David K. Billings, the son of the author of this article, was killed on Sept. 15 in a practice flight in Birmingham, England, where he was serving as a member of the royal flying corps.

By the Rev. Percy Billings.

THE world is thinking war. To fight, to prepare to fight, to provide for those who are fighting, and to stimulate the spirit of fight in those not yet fighting, is keeping the thinking power of the larger part of the world busy these days.

The war started as a struggle between nations with seemingly national issues predominant. It was not long, however, before the thinking world saw that the conflict was largely a renewal of the old, old strife between the love of dominating and the love of being free. "That's what it is!" the world's millions are declaring—except those fighting with the kaiser.

The world is making up its mind that it will not tolerate civilization dominated by brute force, however outwardly efficient it may be. It has been shown by 10,000 vile inhuman acts what the quality of the beast-spirit is that would reduce the world to subjection to its will. "There's enough of the beast-spirit in all of us," it says, "without our being driven and controlled by it from the outside, whether we will or not."

The world is also making up its mind resolutely that it must down and crush the beast-spirit. No use compromising! No use saying, "Now be good, Beastie, and quit raising hell!" For it knows that it's the nature of the beast to do this. And he cannot be trusted not to do it if he's left uncontrolled. So the world is saying, "Down him! Put him in bonds! Keep him in bounds! No peace terms that shall give opportunity to fight again!"

The world is counting costs, big and bitter though they be; counting deliberately. Millions in men, billions in treasure! All worse than wasted if Liberty shall fail! Not wasted if Liberty shall win! Truly, a crisis for the world! A judgment time! And Liberty stands saying, "What am I worth? Can you be happy with your life and wealth without me? Am I worth fighting and suffering for; if needs be, dying for? What will the world be if I'm forced away?"

Can Liberty be kept if she shall win? Can the world be made safe for self-control and for self-government? Will the world have gained enough by the great struggle that it shall be able to bear the burdens of the costs? These are world questionings. For these Liberty has answers. She, dwelling in the inner mind chambers of the intelligent of the world, is saying: "I can be kept. But only by knowledge and observance of eternal law—free and intelligent observance of eternal law."

Mankind must be responsive to law and life, and must be free, or sink into degeneration and extinction. It must be intelligent. It must have convictions of the necessary ways of life. It must live these out; must rule its life by them, and must demand the freedom so to live. If needs be it must struggle for this freedom and this life. Then it can have and keep its self-control. Then it can have and keep self-government. But it must learn to think—lawfully, systematically, justly. Democracy, or systematized self-control, can never live without intelligence, without observance of eternal law, without good will towards all.

"EDDIE" WESTLAKE.

The quip is stilled, the merry jest
Is hushed in solemn doubt,
For into the glow of the dreamless west
A good old pal's gone out.

The old accustomed places seem
So empty now, and chill . . .
We hear his laugh as in a dream—
That laugh forever still.

We hear him jesting as of old
And singing soft and gay,
And once again we must be told
That he has gone away.

That nevermore with him we'll stand
And chat in friendly cheer,
Nor grip his fine, big hearty hand
In fellowship down here. . . .

And voices break and eyes grow dim
And sorrow walks about.
God grant eternal rest to him—
A good old pal's gone out.

Illinois Erected the First Skyscraper Building

THE pace was set for building in your state, when the French, at a cost of $1,000,000, erected Fort Chartres. The fort never fired a hostile shot, but it was the greatest structure of its kind on the western hemisphere.

Illinois lived up to the pace when in 1885, it erected at Chicago, the office building that has served as the pattern for office buildings in metropolitan cities.

AMERICA AFTER THE WAR.

In France, only a few miles from the devastated area, Gelett Burgess wrote "War the Creator." In America we shall soon enough share the intense emotion underlying the book, but just now we retain sufficient composure to survey more or less dispassionately some of the benefits this war appears destined to bestow. If we turn the dark cloud inside out and think of war as a constructive, creative force, it will be from no half-desperate determination to keep our own courage up.

The war will make us a nation. For years we have not been that. In the magazines (illustrations by Benda) the melting pot bubbled gloriously; outside the magazines it bubbled to small purpose. A horde, bred heaven knows where and perdition knows better, brandished flags with the motto, "No God, no country." The war is putting a stop to such scandals. After the war every American's motto will be "America first and America only." This war means the end of pro-kaiserism. It means the end of the I. W. W. Anti-patriots will be howled down by an army of veterans who have defended the colors abroad and will defend them at home ever after. Incidentally, this war means the end of maudlin pacifism. Sissyhood has departed, not to return. Manhood will take its place—a finer manhood than ante-bellum America could boast of.

Finer physically, for one thing. Already the draft has taught millions of Americans the value of medical examination. The stupid American habit of muddling along in ill health and not seeing a doctor will vanish. In all probability every American lad will hereafter be required to undergo military training (in itself beneficial), and the army chiefs will take care that no one remains unfit for service by reason of remedial ailments. At least one of the leading causes of disease will be checked, if not abolished, during the war. Our troops have temperance thrust upon them—temperance of a sort to be thrust upon civilians. Whisky and other distilled liquors may never regain their place among our national beverages.

In point of character post-bellum manhood will have gained enormously. Multitudes of young Americans will return from France the better for discipline, the better for having braved hardship and peril. Thousands will have been braced up morally by the responsibility of commanding men. Everywhere in business and the professions the presence of former army officers will stiffen morale. Never again in our day will there be a general prevalence of slackness and inefficiency such as Elbert Hubbard bewailed in his "Message to Garcia." The "what, me?" type of employé will be scarcer than at present. So will the "let George do it" type. Their scarcity will contribute in no small measure to America's post-bellum prosperity.

A lot is being said—truly enough—about the exceedingly hopeful outlook for business after the war. Allies of ours, the Spanish-American republics, will have banished prepossessions that hamper commercial dealings. It will be a long time before a defeated Germany can again compete with us. The war has revived shipbuilding in America; we shall not let shipbuilding decline. Aviation (for what it is worth) will be as extensive in America as abroad. Considerable numbers of women, unemployed hitherto, will have become trained producers. Meanwhile the war will have enforced a degree of system and organization that will give business a new efficiency. But, as we look at it, none of these things can in any way compare with the gains due to the disciplining of character. Many a civilian will have learned thrift before the war is ended. Many a civilian will have learned fortitude and the meaning of sacrifice. Americans will be made of sterner stuff; especially will Americans who have faced the enemy abroad and returned.

In speaking thus optimistically we do not intend to leave room for a suspicion that we at all underestimate the horror of this war. It is monstrous, unutterable. It was not of America's seeking. It was forced upon us by a situation that left no other course open. Nor do we intend to incur the accusation that we look with too unappreciative eyes upon the America of ante-bellum days. We should not be so hopeful about the grand housecleaning now in progress had we not a great and habitual esteem for the house.

Even its worst defect, that of an inordinate passion for money-making, has rescued civilization from bankruptcy and consequent defeat. The very Europeans who jeered our greed of gold have seen that gold interposed between them and irreparable disaster. And if American idealism has had a narrow escape from destruction at the hands of materialistic ambition, it has at least escaped. That, and not anger or self-seeking, is the mainspring of our energy in this war. Just as of old, we are fighting for principles. The war has given us back our America. If in the end it increases our wealth, it will at the same time have increased our ability to hold fast to principles. Unless we fail to grasp the profound significance of the crisis and read its moral, it will have taught us that finest of fine arts, which is this: Instead of being degraded by possessions, to stand on top of them and be exalted by them.

PATRICK.

These are glorious days for Thomas, son of Atkins, and for Sandy Mac-This or Mac-That, and for Sammy from over the sea, but where is the broth iv a b'y named Pat? Is Patrick less redoubtable in France? Faith, no! He is magnificent. You can't lose him. Despite the correspondents' too studied neglect, he will out—for example, in Lieut. Z.'s contribution to the New Scribner. Says he:

"Prisoners, their faces green with lyddite fumes, unshaved and dirty, hangdog and furtive and still afraid, shamble by in charge of some delighted Irishman, who has brought them through the crumps and the hell-fire, and is as proud of them as a cat with her kittens, and woe betide any one who bothers his kittens; they are his kittens and to be treated with respect. 'Has any one got any fags for these poor divils of min?' Thus he announces that they are verily his kittens."

Lieut. Z. saw two such Irish gentlemen with a wounded German between them. "They were half carrying him along. Through his pains he was much amused by them. 'We got him in the second line of trenches,' one Irishman said, and he hinted broadly, with such a world of a smile, that possibly he himself had been the source of his wounds. But they had nursed him along through it all as if he was a ewe kitten. Proud? They were as proud of him as could be, and will leave him at the corps cage with deep regret, which will be mutual."

Not all the old time gallant chivalry has vanished from this war, nor will it while Pat is there.

THE GERMAN DIPLOMATIC ARSENAL.

From Washington comes the story, kept dark since April, that German agents attempted to drum up recruits for a rebellion in the Philippines by promising the natives all the white women they might want.

It is not by arms alone that the imperial German government intends to win this war. Its arsenal contains other weapons. Alongside the military war Germany wages a political war and a psychological war. The enemy must be weakened by mischief making. "Cherchez la femme" was once the maxim wherever trouble developed; today it is "Cherchez les Boches."

Periodic peace offers (not intended to bring peace) are a form of mischief making. Just as frightfulness aims to undermine morale by making a continuance of the war seem unspeakably horrible, so peace offers aim to make a continuance of the war seem unnecessary. They are psychological weapons, wonderfully useful. Then, by way of further undermining the enemy's morale, there is a continual output of "sob stuff" from Germany. The Germans are starving. The Germans are rioting. The Germans are on the verge of revolution. A form of camouflage, this masks the real strength of Germany and tempts the allies to underestimate the danger that besets them.

Meanwhile the German arsenal affords weapons of a political order designed to break down the enemy's solidarity at home and the enemy's prestige and security abroad. In England's case German intrigue fomented insurrections in India, Egypt, South Africa, and Ireland. In America's case there were attempts to foment insurrections among the Filipinos and among the southern Negroes. We had labor difficulties in the United States, to say nothing of German-American difficulties. In South America—notably in Peru—a mind poisoning campaign was pushed, and is probably still being pushed, to our great disadvantage. Now the Venezuelans are up in arms against German agents, while in Costa Rica German agents run the country. And if Germany had had her way war would have been made upon us by Mexico and Japan. Anti-American feeling runs high in Mexico today.

No one can survey the German arsenal and classify its weapons without admiring the thoroughness of the job or without at the same time feeling a sense of personal degradation. Fair weapons we respect, but we cringe when we reflect that between us and the inventors of psychological and political mischief making there exists no barrier of species. And the more we consider the ingenuity that went to the forging of such weapons the less credit it seems to reflect upon German good sense.

Despite its arsenal of deadly and surprising weapons, the imperial German government was not prepared for war. War involves two alternatives, victory and defeat. The German program has reckoned with but one—and the wrong one at that. It has counted on victory. At the start it counted on speedy victory. It never contemplated a long war or a disastrous war or the consequences of a war at once long and disastrous.

The old way was the best. Men forgive honest blows. What they do not and cannot forgive is the underhanded doing of mischief that will outlast the war.

THE FOURTH OF JULY TEN YEARS HENCE.

A speaker of British birth recently predicted that within ten years the Fourth of July would be an anachronism as a national holiday in the United States. His idea was that the reawakened friendship between the United States and Great Britain would wipe out the past and obliterate a celebration having its roots in ancient causes of rancor.

We think this indicates a superficial reading of history. So far from being an anachronism ten years hence, the Fourth of July might well become an occasion which the British could celebrate as well as ourselves. Great Britain has, as a matter of fact, to thank America and the American revolution for one of the greatest lessons in colonial government she ever received. It is conceivable that the British empire would never have attained its present world-wide dominion if it had not been for that lesson.

George III. may be regarded as the Wilhelm II. of his day. Haughty and arrogant, he believed in ruling possessions with an iron hand. His government had a Prussian conception of dominating subject territory. But the American revolution opened England's eyes to the danger and injustice of this policy. The majority of British colonies today exercise self-government and have benefited by a liberal colonial policy. Without being closely bound to the motherland, they have nevertheless given her the greatest assistance in this war.

It would of course be easy to exaggerate the influence of the American revolution in bringing about this result, but it was a powerful influence in that direction, and enlightened Englishmen are the first to admit it.

Editorial of the Day

THE DIFFERENCE.

[From the Minneapolis Tribune.]

Seymour Stedman, general counsel of the Socialist party, insists that the Socialist party has nothing in common with the I. W. W.

Both organizations are opposed to conscription.

Both organizations are printing documents and making speeches designed to interfere with America's successful prosecution of the war.

Both organizations are urging their members to resist the draft.

Both organizations are placing obstacles in the way of the president and of constituted authority everywhere in this nation.

Both organizations are "lending aid and comfort to the enemy."

Both organizations are deliberately and determinedly practicing national sabotage.

Aside from that, they may have, as Stedman insists, "nothing in common."

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1917: By the Brentwood company.]

SOME two or three months ago I called attention in these columns to the edict issued by King George providing for the formation of a number of purely Judaic regiments with the object of turning to military account the services of those hundreds of Russian and Polish Jews in the British isles who prefer to serve under the British flag rather than to submit to expulsion as aliens and to deportation to Russia for enrollment in the army there. I also added that the officers would be recruited from Jews already holding commissions as lieutenants, captains, majors, and lieutenant colonels in the British army.

It had been anticipated that British born Jews already serving in the British army or newly drafted would be anxious to join these Judaic regiments, where special arrangements exist with regard to the observance of their religious practices and for the preparation of the special food prescribed by the doctrines of their faith.

In this the authorities have been disappointed. British born Jews of every rank, officers and men, have manifested the utmost reluctance to join these Judaic regiments on the ground that they have nothing in common with these alien Jews from Russia and Poland and that, moreover, the fact of their belonging to the Hebraic religion does not in any way affect their British citizenship nor their British patriotism.

Whereas on this side of the Atlantic the members of the Jewish race who have attained high office or great fortunes always show an immense amount of sympathy and fellow feeling for their alien co-religionists from Russia and Poland, there is little or nothing of the kind to be found among the English Jews, and the one cabinet minister in England who was more vigorous in his demands that the alien Jews should either join the British army or be ruthlessly expelled to Russia was the secretary of state for India, the Rt. Hon. Edwin Samuel Montagu, younger brother of Lord Swaythling and an orthodox Jew.

These newly formed Judaic regiments of the British army, as quickly as their elementary training has been completed, are being dispatched to join the British forces now operating in the neighborhood of Jerusalem under the command of Gen. Sir Edmund Allenby, and it is hoped that they may be induced to settle in Palestine on the conclusion of the war. The present Lord Rothschild is heartily in favor of the scheme, and differs from his father in giving his support to the cause of Zionism, which he strongly advocates, insisting that the salvation of the Jewish race is to be found in their being grouped into an autonomous state in the holy land under the suzerainty of one or more of the allied powers.

His father, the late Lord Rothschild, in spite of his being very orthodox, was always in favor of assimilating the Jews born in the British isles with the English people instead of their remaining a race apart and distinct from the ordinary English citizen.

King Christian, fearing the violation of the neutrality of Denmark, put his army on a war footing in August, 1914, when German invaded Belgium, and has kept his troops with the colors ever since. Now, however, he has issued a decree reducing the number of men in actual service by one-half and allowing those thus liberated to return to their homes and civilian occupations.

While it is alleged that his government has been compelled to have recourse to this somewhat remarkable step by financial stress and by the discipline and quality of the troops having become weakened through unduly protracted service, there are some who insist that, no matter how great the embarrassment of the treasury at Copenhagen, King Christian would not have ventured to diminish the number of troops under arms by one-half if he had not some assurance that the war is rapidly drawing to a close. In fact, his ministers have intimated something of the kind in their explanations to the national legislature of the measure when they declared that "the danger of the violation of our neutrality has been essentially diminished."

It must not be forgotten that while the Danes themselves abhor the Prussians with the most savage hatred, the relations between King Christian and certain members of the reigning house of Hohenzollern are much more friendly than were those of his father and his grandfather with the court of Berlin, for his consort, Queen Alexandrine, is the only sister of the crown princess of Germany and they are devoted to one another, while the queen's only brother is the reigning Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

It is possible, therefore, that King Christian and his queen may have learned from Berlin that Germany's resistance is drawing to an end—that she is about to abandon the fight by reason of economic rather than of military causes and in consequence of the fear of the otherwise inevitable revolution, and that therefore peace is within sight. Certainly it is not without some assurance of this nature that King Christian and his government would have sent back half of their army to their homes.

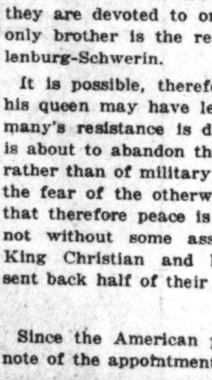
Since the American papers have seen fit to take note of the appointment of Edmond Toulmin Nicolle, a member of the English bar, to the office of "Viscount of the Island of Jersey," it may be as well to explain that this viscounty is not a peerage of the realm and does not carry with it any of the prerogatives usually enjoyed by those members of the house of lords who possess the dignity of viscount.



The fact of the matter is that since the times of the old Dukes of Normandy, near a thousand years ago, the high sheriff of the island of Jersey has always borne the title of viscount, owing his appointment to the sovereign. For some reason or other the high sheriff of the neighborhood island of Guernsey has to content himself with the title of prevot. The Vicomte of Jersey is, like the high sheriff of the English counties, the principal representative of the sovereign and as such takes precedence of every one, even of the lieutenant governor, although the power of vetoing any measure in the island legislature is vested in the lieutenant governor.

Jersey, and indeed the other channel islands too, retain many of the medieval laws and customs, and the four seigneurs of the island of Jersey, holders of the four ancient fiefs or baronies of the island, still occupy seats on the bench of the Supreme court, as "Hauts Justiciers of the Duchy of Normandy." They hold their office from King George, not in the latter's capacity [illegible] of England, but Duke of Normandy.

THE DOCTORS AND THE WAR.

IT is estimated that there are 150,000 physicians in the country. There is no way of knowing how many of these are in active practice, how many are practicing to a limited extent, and how many are out of practice. Assuming that all of these are in active practice, there is one practicing physician for every 666 inhabitants.

I am informed by Dr. Franklin H. Martin that 16,000 have volunteered for service and that of this number 10,500 had been accepted at the time the statement was made. Thus, we see that more than 10 per cent of the entire profession has volunteered. No other group of citizens has done anywhere near so well, in my opinion. In addition to this number a large number, but how many nobody knows, have seen and are seeing service in other ways.

Since 1914 a stream of physicians has flown constantly to Europe from the United States. American physicians have been with every army in the field, not even excepting the armies of the Balkan states. I know of one who went over to do work in the English hospitals. He paid his own way over and served without pay, bearing his own expenses until his savings were exhausted. He was the only support of an old mother, whom he had left in charge of a nurse. He came back to his practice and saved up until he has gotten another savings account.

He is ready to go back and again serve without pay, and on his own expense, so long as his savings last. The 16,000 does not count men who are in the service of the Red Cross and others who are on missions of many kinds, both in this country and abroad.

It is figured that an army needs seven physicians for each 1,000 men. There are four physicians with each regimental command of, say, 1,600 men. The physicians at base hospitals, evacuation hospitals, or ambulance train, and ambulances, at headquarters, and assigned to various special services brings the total equipment up to seven per 1,000.

Figured on this basis, the number of physicians who have now volunteered is large enough to care for a national army of two and a quarter millions. The army, navy, and the old national guard have approximately their full quota of physicians. These are not included in the 16,000 volunteer physicians already alluded to.

We see that the volunteer system in vogue in the medical profession has produced enough physicians to care for more than twice the force now called for by the draft. As Dr. Martin puts it, the medical corps is now more than a million ahead of the game. The first conclusion at which we arrive is that the medical profession is fully meeting the call of patriotism.

Of the men who do civil practice probably one-eighth are now or soon will be away from their practices. A short time back alarming stories of the fearful death rate among physicians at the front were going the rounds. These stories have been denied. The truth appears to be that men in the medical corps, stretcher bearers, ambulance men, and first aid men have a slightly higher casualty rate than men in the battle lines.

Medical officers have a slightly higher casualty rate than other officers. This is due to the fact that long range arms reach what formerly were zones of relative safety, there are no truces for gathering in the wounded, and the work of the medical corps necessitates frequent exposure. But in neither case is the disproportion material: privates in the medical corps are subject to about the same degree of hazard as other privates and officers of this corps to about the same degree of hazard as other officers.

The alarmists' statements probably grew out of the fact that every country in Europe is short of physicians and has been for years. The war only served to make manifest a condition that had existed for years. If an army requires one doctor for each 142 men and there is only one doctor for every 666 men in civil life, and if one-eighth of this insufficient supply have already gone or shortly will be gone to the war, what is to become of the civilian population?

If the war does not go beyond 1918 and the draft army does not exceed 2,500,000 the civil population can get along fairly well. The needed adjustments can be made without great disarrangement. The most serious of all the disarrangement has just been bridged over. Most of the service in hospitals is rendered by internes. Most of the internes are peculiarly subject to draft, being young, of sound physiques, and having no families to support. To draft suddenly the full complement of eligibles from the hospitals would seriously cripple their work.

President Wilson stepped into the breach, and, exercising authority granted him, ruled that drafted internes could be held on reserve and allowed to complete their services. It is not likely that so serious a disarrangement of society will threaten in any other field. To maintain the number of physicians at 1,500,000 it is necessary that the number of medical students should remain about 10,000.

The casualty rates among physicians in military service will make it necessary to have more than 10,000 medical students if the number of physicians is not to be diminished. Of the 10,000 students more than 8,000 are subject to draft. They are of draft age, of good physiques, and without family dependents.

Here, too, President Wilson stepped into the breach and decreed that second, third, and fourth year medical students would not be taken by the draft. So far as we can see it would have been safe to have limited the exemptions to those due to graduate in 1918 and 1919.

If the war should prove severe for us and if it should last beyond the fall of 1918 we will begin to feel something of the shortage of physicians that is proving so disastrous in some of the European countries. Not even the action of the president will prove sufficient to ward off that disaster.

At this point let me interpolate that dentistry is a specialty in medicine. There is always a shortage of dentists. One objection urged to the educational propaganda for dental inspection of school children is that there are not enough dentists to put in order all of the teeth of school children, and, therefore, it is better not to create a discontent about bad teeth.

The number of dentists required to care for an army of 2,000,000 is large. There is certain to be a shortage of dentists. President Wilson might well extend his ruling so as to make it cover students at present in dental colleges.

In view of the threatened shortage of medical men, it is well to consider what society will do about it. At a meeting of the general medical board of the advisory council of defense, held in Washington in the early spring, Maj. Owen reported that the practice of medicine in France had been nationalized. Every physician in France was in the employ of the state. Some were caring for the military forces and the remainder were caring for the civil population.

France had been slower than any nation in northwestern Europe in adopting the medical care of its people after the general plan adopted in Germany about 1880, but, under the stress of war, that nation has gone much further than any nation had ever gone in times of peace.

France was so completely drawn into the conflict that it was apparent that the only way of meeting the medical emergency was such an organization of medical efforts and resources as would attain the highest possible efficiency.

Does the experience of France throw any light upon our situation? Our army needs one physician for every 143 soldiers. Long observation and careful consideration of the results in maintaining not only the health but also the efficiency of fighting men has proven that 1 to 143 is the proper ratia. Why is it, then, that in civil life there is only one physician to every 666 persons?

In the civil population there are babies, old people, and women—three groups—who require more than the average amount of medical attention. Reasoning from the standards required in the army, we would expect that the civilian population would require not less than one physician to every 100 people. That would mean 1,000,000 physicians instead of the 150,000 now practicing.

There is no question but that the people must have more medical service than they are now having. Every health survey made in any part of the country has shown that less than half of the correctable disabilities and disorders are being corrected. There are not physicians enough to render all the medical service which efficiency demands should be rendered, but there are enough to do much more than is being done.

The lack of organization of medical service, the individualistic basis on which most medical service is, and the cost of worth while medical service is so great that no great improvement will be made without some such fundamental change as has taken place in France.

My third point is that when society reorganizes after this war there will be a material change in medical service. The number of men trained in preventive medicine is very small. There are very few schools for training such men and those that are in existence are poorly attended. When this war is over there will be a large body of men trained in preventive medicine. It will include the medical officers of the present regular army and navy and public health service, the medical officers of what we think of as the state militia, these 16,000 medical recruits who are about entering the service, the thousands who are now serving in various capacities in Russia, England, France, Belgium, Italy, Serbia, and Roumania, besides the present state and municipal health officers.

There will be a different public sentiment as to preventive medicine. The several million returned soldiers and their families will leaven the mass. It is incomprehensible that when an army in the field has been without typhoid fever and smallpox that these diseases should be allowed to persist in civil communities.

My fourth point is that public health work will become much better done after the war. Health departments will be as well supported as police and fire departments now are.

HOW TO PRONOUNCE "R."

In July G. H. wrote asking how to overcome his German influenced pronunciation of "r." E. P., teacher of phonetics, contributes the following:

"G. H. finds difficulties with the pronunciation of American r. This is an extremely difficult sound for purely imitative production, but one of the easiest to form if the peculiar American articulation is known. The tip of the tongue must be raised and inverted towards the hard palate, a small distance behind the upper gums. [British articulation of "r" is quite different.] For one who can pronounce voiced th [as in there], this is the most convenient way to learn American r. Pronounce th; slowly move the tip of the tongue upwards and backwards [inverting it slightly] until it touches the hard palate. In that moment your th will have changed to r. It might be added that the great majority of American speakers round their lips when pronouncing r.

"It seems rather probable that your correspondent, in his German, pronounces uvular r [produced by vibrating the uvula], since those Germans who pronounce tongue tip r generally are able without much help to find the correct American pronunciation.

It goes without saying that American r is never "rolled."

FOOD VALUE OF OKRA.

L. A. T. writes: "Please give me the food value of okra?"

REPLY.

Okra has about the same food value as other watery vegetables. The percentage of starch varies between 3 and 7. It can, therefore, be used in diabetes. It contains 1.6 per cent protein, 2 per cent fat, and 172 calories per pound. It is an excellent food of low food value and should be much more widely used.

FRUITS AS LAXATIVES.

C. O. G. writes: "State some of the common fruits which act somewhat as laxatives."

REPLY.

Prunes, apples, oranges, lemons, grapes. All ordinary ripe fruits have some laxative action.

MOFFATT STREET PAVEMENT.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Will Moffatt street, from Western avenue to Rockwell street, be paved this year? C. S.

An estimate for paving with asphalt Moffatt street from Western avenue to Rockwell street has been ordered and all subsequent proceedings will be pushed as rapidly as possible so that the street may be paved in the spring of 1918. M. J. FAHERTY,
President Board of Local Improvements.

CEMENT SIDEWALK.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Can the property owners on North Ridgeway avenue, between Roscoe and Cornelia streets be compelled to lay cement sidewalks? A. M.

Ordinance for laying sidewalk has been passed and we will advertise for bids on this work. As soon as it is awarded the contractor can do the work.

M. J. FAHERTY,
President Board of Local Improvements.

SOUTH SIDE CAR LINES.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Is there any prospect of a car line being built on Halsted street from Eighty-eighth street south to Ninety-fifth street; also on any street between Eighty-eighth and Ninety-eighth streets, between Halsted and State streets? H. B. B.

The construction of a car line on Halsted street, from Eighty-eighth street to Ninety-fifth street, is not at present contemplated.

An ordinance has been passed providing for the construction of a car line in Eighty-seventh street, from Cottage Grove avenue to Ashland avenue, but the construction of a car line on some east and west street between Eighty-eighth street and Ninety-eighth street is not at present contemplated.

JOHN P. GARNER,
Commissioner of Public Service.

INFREQUENT GARBAGE COLLECTION.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Our garbage is collected only once a week. Is not the city expected to render better service than that? MRS. A. M. V.

Service is given in this district regularly twice a week. The trouble seems to be in the size of the can, which is a small one. A can of the regulation size should be provided to take care of the output for three days.

F. S. MITCHELL,
Superintendent of Streets.

PROTECTING SOLDIERS' RIGHTS.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I have a piece of property worth about $65,000, on which there was a second mortgage for $13,000. The mortgage was foreclosed on Aug. 2, 1917. I am a noncommissioned officer in training at Chicago university. Now there is nothing left for me to do but redeem the property within fifteen months. What chance have I to save my property while I am in the service of the United States army? J. S. B.

A soldiers' and sailors' civil rights bill is now pending in the senate. Its purpose is to make soldiers and sailors exempt from civil processes and to protect their property from mortgages, garnishees, etc. It would also continue their insurance policies without payment, but give them no protection while they were not paying. The bill has not passed the house and probably will not be acted on at this session. It will be among the first things to be considered next session.

DIVISION OF KANSAS ESTATE.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man dies in state of Kansas, leaving a wife and son (of age) only heirs. No debts and no will. Is there any legal time within which estate must be divided, after which time property would revert to widow? How is property divided legally in state of Kansas? A READER.

Kansas law allows two years for filing claims. If the estate were formally probated, the administrator could delay distribution until the expiration of this period. We cannot say whether formal probate is advisable or necessary without knowing more of the facts.

The mother and son will take equal shares of the estate.

WIFE'S RELATIVES' SHARE.

Dixon, Ill., Sept. 26.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Where a childless wife dies leaving no property in her name and no will could her relatives legally claim her share in her husband's property? J. R. F.

We take it the husband survives the wife. In that case the wife gets nothing and the relatives nothing. If husband died first wife's relatives take deceased wife's share of her husband's estate.

LOYALTY OF SWEDISH-AMERICANS.

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Americans of north European descent seem to be under a cloud of suspicion. Our loyalty is questioned in certain quarters. To these questionings and doubts our answer is: "Actions speak louder than words." Let me say just a few words for the Augustana College and Theological seminary over which I have the honor of presiding, a thoroughly representative Swedish-American institution, as I believe. During the civil war our then young and struggling school was almost forced to close its doors through the desertion of its halls by those who left it to fight the battles of freedom.

Now that our country has again called its young manhood to take up arms in defense of a cause which we regard as a just and righteous one, Augustana college has responded as we believe few other institutions of higher learning have done. Our student body is but small numerically, and yet, last April, when the call for volunteers came three score of our young men closed their books and reported for duty to Uncle Sam—our Uncle Sam.

Since then a number of others—I cannot at this moment state exactly how many—have done so. I have had occasion lately to visit those of them who enlisted in the Sixth Illinois regiment at Camp Lowden and at the camp in East St. Louis and I can assure you, Mr. Editor, that these boys mean to give a good account of themselves when the time comes to "go over the top."

Our students represent many different states in the union and I have during extensive travels in the course of the last year been in constant touch with our people in all parts of the country. Hence, I have from personal observation reason to believe and I do believe that our college boys are but typical of the young Swedish-American.

Permit me to add just one word: Our older pioneers brought with them to these shores an inherited fear and detestation of Russia and of all it has stood for in its dark and bloody history; hence at the beginning of this war they could not at once see that this Russia, merely because of her alliance with liberty loving France and England, was really a champion of liberty and progress.

The whole situation has changed since then and I feel confident that the great majority of our people now appreciate the real issues at stake in this war, having acquired a vision of its inner meaning as a war against war, a war for permanent peace on earth and good will to men, by the decisive and definitive overthrow of militarism as a controlling world force.

OUR SLACKERS IN CANADA.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In voicing a word of approval of the sentiments expressed by your correspondents regarding the injustice of aliens resident here not being subject to draft, I would like to point out that this country is not the only one which is experiencing the injustice referred to.

Canada has many thousands of these aliens who enjoy the privileges of residence in Canada without sharing the responsibilities of citizenship, and who, now that conscription is an accomplished fact there, as aliens, will not be subject to military service. The only difference in Canada's case is that three-fourths of those aliens are young American citizens of military age, many of whom sneaked across the boundary line at the first signs of compulsory service here.

There are many Canadian and British mothers whose feelings are not unlike those of your correspondent, Mrs. Heindinger, and others mothers here.

NO FOREIGN LANGUAGE FOR HIM.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The policy of using the public schools of our country, and especially in the city of Chicago, for the training of foreigners to perpetuate a foreign language as a symbol and bond of foreign nationality is detrimental to the best interests of the people and suicidal to American citizenship.

It is the duty of all loyal American parents, naturalized as well as native citizens, to train up their children as Americans and in perfect allegiance to American institutions. In order to attain these desirable ends it is self-evident that the language of America shall be the only language of our public schools.

Local self-government demands close relationship between man and man and to some extent community of ideas. In order to insure the safety of the American nation it becomes imperative that we assimilate our strange populations and this process will be impossible, or at least extremely difficult, if we continue to permit the rising generation to be taught a language in the public schools which is detrimental to the best interests of the majority of our people.

It is high time we made a move to Americanize our schools, and the first move is to cut out German and teach patriotism in its place. If the German language or any other foreign language must be taught as accomplishments, as some of your readers probably will proclaim, let it be done in our colleges and private schools, but in our public schools the language taught must be the language of the American nation—the language of our patriotic forefathers, "which, please God, shall never die."

ERNEST L. PHILLIPS,

PROSPECTS OF PEACE

by Roland G. Usher

Herewith is presented an authorized interview given by Dr. Usher, who is an authority on international politics, a professor of history in Washington university, St. Louis, and the author of "Pan-Germanism."

THE outstanding factor in Germany's defeat will be her inability to continue producing. It will be an economic downfall more than a military one. The demand upon her war production capacity is enormous; she cannot continue indefinitely in competition with her more resourceful opponents, for she is compelled to produce not alone for herself but largely for her allies as well. She will fail. The war will not end soon. The allies certainly are not ready to talk terms of peace and they would be foolish to do so until they see how badly they will be able to defeat Germany. Especially is this true now that the United States is in the war.

Germany will continue to make peace offers and the allies will continue to refuse to listen to them, for the very simple but good reason that Germany will make no offer before she is beaten that will approach the terms she will have to make if she is beaten.

When the German leaders become convinced that the game is up they will lay down the cards and call it over. I do not believe that will be this year—or next. I believe it may come in 1919. Germans have woefully misread the other nations, but they understand themselves well.

I do not look for a revolution in Germany during the war. I do look for immediate changes in the government of Germany, however, as soon as the war ends or just as soon as the end—and defeat—becomes clear to the German people. If Austria breaks, if economic conditions in Austria, much less well organized than in Germany, become intolerable, Austria will have to stop fighting. Or she might become so enfeebled as to be useless. Austria is handicapped by a less obedient people than Germany. Germany would then have to accept terms dictated by the allies even though she might, of herself, be able to hold out somewhat longer. But the great scheme would then have failed definitely; it would be folly for Germany to continue.

The German leaders may be brutal, but they do not lack perception. They may sacrifice German lives without scruple so long as it appears there is something to be gained; they will certainly not throw lives away on a forlorn hope because they know well that they will need them in the future.

ALSACE-LORRAINE will certainly go back to France. There will be territorial changes in Europe proper and they will be about as the allies want. I believe that the allies honestly want to satisfy Germany, so far as it can be done consistent with their own safety. If the situation in Europe is put about as the allies want as a basis of safety there is no reason why a settlement cannot be made that will be fair and satisfactory to both sides; a settlement that will not be dangerous to Germany's future nor yet more than she can reasonably grant.

There is no reason why the allies cannot give Germany more commercial opportunity in certain districts. I am confident that they will be generous to Germany and anxious enough to insure the peace of the world to give her somewhat more opportunity out of Europe, probably in Asia Minor and in Africa.

Germany will agree to an elaborate restitution of Belgium, of that I am confident. She well knows the feelings of the world on that feature of the situation, and, indeed, there are a great many in Germany who favor this action not from the standpoint of good policy but from its strictly moral side.

The key to the situation in the matter of democratizing Germany is the fact that the people of Germany do not use the word democracy in the same sense that we do. The German includes things we do not; he leaves out the particular thing that we are talking about at present—that is, the responsibility of the executive to the people.

The difficulty in establishing in Germany what we in America and England mean by democracy is not so much a failure to understand what we mean but because of a very definite belief that the sort of constitutional democracy we mean is not practical in Germany. Its adoption would immediately destroy what a great many Germans regard as institutions indispensable to Germany's future. I mean the smaller German states.

The empire was created not so much to exalt Prussia as to create a compromise between Prussia and the other sovereign states of Germany so that this coöperation would be assured in the future. To introduce the American presidential system or the English or French responsible ministry elected by a majority of the majority house would destroy, in practice, the very real authority now exercised by the small German states, because it would make Prussia's control of the German empire absolute where it is now only partial.

Prussia would then be able to act without consulting the other German states at all in whatever she chose because her members would always be in an overwhelming majority in the reichstag. At present, in one way and another, Prussia usually gets her way on things of real importance, but she has to amend and compromise with other states in the bundesrat in order to accomplish it.

THE German kaiser is certainly the most powerful executive in the world today. But comparatively little of his power comes from his position as kaiser. It is as king of Prussia that he really counts. The other German states are very hostile to the idea of increasing his power as kaiser, or the power of Prussia, in the empire. Here is the real opposition to the notion that reform in Germany is likely at present. Reform in Prussia would work great changes, but they would be more than compensated if it were accompanied by democratic reforms in the empire.

There is, for instance, no imperial administration, no imperial system of courts for the execution of ordinary laws. There are imperial ministers, officials, and courts, but they do not do the work that most people outside of Germany assume that they perform. The real work of administering German laws is performed by the German states, not by the empire. The empire may make a law, but it cannot enforce it; the states do that.

Now a responsible ministry or a president on the American plan would necessarily carry with it the introduction of a real imperial administration which would execute federal law as does the United States. That would at once put many if not all the functions now performed by the small German states in the hands of the imperial machinery and rob those states of the real power to govern at all.

Prussia certainly would not object, because Prussia is already two-thirds of Germany. She would certainly control the new government, and would, of course, create the imperial system by extending her own institutions to the rest of Germany. The smaller states would oppose this tooth and nail; they would support Prussia perhaps as against the rest of the world, but they have no desire to see the Prussian literally governing the whole of Germany.

Anyone who will read President Wilson's statements carefully will see clearly that he has all these things in mind. He does not propose to destroy the German constitution or to increase the power of Prussia by putting all the small German states much more under her control than they are at present. The president proposes merely to change the control of the foreign policy and the army and navy policy by the sovereign states of Germany in secret session in the bundesrat and dominated very clearly by the kaiser's representatives.

A CHANGE in the control of Germany's foreign affairs is the essential thing; everything else may well remain as it is. This is a much less sweeping change than most Europeans have thought necessary; less sweeping than most Americans supposed to be involved. If German statesmen and the people of the smaller states of Germany could be made to understand that President Wilson's proposals do not comprehend a reduction of the power of the smaller states but an increase in their power over Prussia instead they would raise fewer objections to the change and see the light more quickly.

The difficulty, however, in getting the German people in their present state of mind to believe that proposals about democracy are not meant to destroy German independence in Europe is much greater than most people think. Adaptability is not a German characteristic; stubbornness is.

That the allies will win the war is a matter of very powerful logic, but just what the conditions of victory will be no one can see with certainty at this time. The longer the war goes on the more radical will be the changes in all the countries.

And this is particularly true of the United States. The war has upon us the effect of a forcing process. We shall reach conditions of development which George Washington saw to be desirable and probable and of which Abraham Lincoln dreamed.

We will become economically independent of Europe. We will experience a more thorough welding together of our people. A stronger patriotism will develop. Coöperation in politics and industry will be established. Our position as a world power will be assured.

It will be as if we had grown twenty years in a night; a century in a week. These are results which will only be intensified the longer the war goes on. They are great results, worth even more to us than this war is going to cost us, and in that sense we cannot fail to win.

But we are going to beat Germany just the same and the result will be a spread of democracy in Germany, and, though it probably will leave the small German states in existence, it may not be as thorough a conversion of the people of Germany as we would like.

THE MACHINE GUNNER

by Patrick MacGill

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—He said that his name was Brown and nobody believed him. But his mates never said to his face that he was not telling the truth. In fact, the men of the machine gun team were afraid of him. He was a queer customer. In appearance he was an old man, bald and wrinkled, one of those who could go up to a recruiting office and say, "My age is not 41. Having no certificate of my birth, you must take my word for it. I may look old, but one's years can never be judged by wrinkles. Some people never grow old and I am one of them." But as Brown was a very modest man he, of course, never spoke like that.

He was born in London; the only time he ever left there was when he came to France. So he said, but again none believed this. He knew quite a smattering of languages; he spoke German and French, also Spanish. The latter he spoke as it is spoken in South America. So Brown's officer said; and this officer had traveled about in most places of the world. On one occasion the battalion to which the man was attached relieved a Canadian regiment and some of the English soldiers entered into conversation with the men who were going out. Brown was heard speaking to one of them and asking questions about a lumber camp situated somewhere near the foot of the Rockies.

"You know that place then?" an officer said to Brown afterward. "Yes, sir," Brown replied. "I read about it in the papers."

HE rolled cigarets with a cunning hand and he chewed tobacco as if to the manner born. He was a splendid soldier, highly intelligent, and in a stiff corner one of the best mates a man could have. In fact, he was greatly respected, although he made few comrades. He feared neither God nor man and was never so happy as when under fire. In the midst of the most violent cannonade he was calm and unperturbed.

Nothing was too arduous for him; there was nothing that he would not attempt. The unknown and hazardous always fascinated him, and when fighting his face always gave his mates the impression that he had become a soldier merely for the fixed purpose of killing. He was in the machine gun team and loved his weapon, probably because the machine gun is one of the most effective death dealing instruments of war.

A few days ago, in the ebb and flow of the fighting around Guemappe, his party found themselves in an isolated post and all but surrounded by the enemy. One man fell and then another, and finally nobody was left save Brown and his officer.

"We've got to stick it," said the officer. "It's damned stiff, but all the same . . ."

Brown shrugged his shoulders and let the machine gun rip. He had no cover and seemed to be quite indifferent to danger. He was in his proper element and found the situation quite to his liking. Suddenly the officer gave a strangled cry and dropped to earth.

"Clear out of it, Brown," he gasped. "It's no good!"

Brown fixed a fresh cartridge belt to his weapon and turned his gun half right on the Germans who were attempting an encircing movement. One of Brown's mates was lying on the ground, wounded and conscious.

"The officer told you to retire," he said, looking up at the old man. "Did you not hear that?"

"I didn't hear it," Brown replied, his voice rising above the clatter of the gun.

When the Scotch charged across the machine gun emplacement ten minutes later they found Brown still at his work, a wound in his right shoulder and his left foot badly shattered. When the stretcher bearers came up they carried him back to the dressing station. There he spoke to his officer, who had also been carried in.

"You were still at your post when the Scotch came along, I hear," said the officer with a smile. "But what about the order I gave you to retire?"

"I didn't hear it, sir," said Brown. "There are times when I get very deaf. It's a failing of mine."

"What's the reason for this failing?" asked the officer.

"Buenos Aires, South America," said Brown. His voice came in short gasps and he was in great pain. "At the docks. . . . The German sailors go about in gangs. . . . If you fall foul with them it's . . . Knife you in the dark. Once they . . . me."

When the M. O. came round he found Brown unconscious. On the man's back there were a number of old scars which looked as if they had been made by a sharp instrument.

"By a knife probably," said the M. O.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

by Fanny Butcher

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

WAR.

"Over the Top" (Putnam's), by Arthur Guy Empey.

FICTION.

"Marching Men" (John Lane), by Sherwood Anderson.
"Limehouse Nights" (McBride), by Thomas Burke.
"Beyond" (Scribner's), by John Galsworthy.
"Changing Winds" (Macmillan), by St. John Ervine.
"The Prussian Officer" (Huebsch), by D. H. Lawrence.
"Pelle the Conqueror" (Holt), by Martin Alexander Nexö.

---

"ON the Right of the British Line" (Scribner's) is an unusual war book in two respects. It is written by a captain and it gives one the psychology of the line officer—most of the war books that have come to us have been written by privates—and it contains a complete account of a prisoner's life in Germany, likewise from the point of view of the officer.

Capt. Gilbert Nobbs crept into the cavernous jaws of war and death, and just as they were about to snap shut he was pulled out by a German. But he never saw his rescuer. And he will never see the record of that perilous journey. Through an actual hailstorm of bullets he led his company at the Somme, and lost them all but one. Shot blind, he lay in a shell hole where he had fallen for forty-eight hours. He tells exactly how he felt when, after spasms of unconsciousness, after vain attempts to crawl out of the hole, he finally made up his mind that he was dying. As a good-by to life he lifted up his arms and shouted. Then he thought he was dead. In a few moments a German stretcher bearer found him, and then began a three months' experience as a prisoner of war in Germany. In the meantime in England he was mourned as dead.

Experience of this intensity has been lived through by no other writer of personal experiences about the war, I think. They would be a veritable literary treasure trove to an experienced writer or to an amateur who had foresight enough to tell simply and without embellishment the facts of his tragic experiences. Capt. Nobbs has, unfortunately, "written a book." As literature the book will never be a classic, but as a war book it is one of the chronicles you don't want to miss.

With a magic passport, a letter to Von Hindenburg himself, J. M. De Beaufort reached Von Hindenburg's headquarters. He tells of that visit to the German war god, of his talks with some of the minor war prophets, and of his visit to the German naval bases at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven in "Behind the German Veil" (Dodd-Mead).

You may have a complete Whitman in two volumes as soon as the Doubleday-Page company gets it off the presses. There have been countless editions of "Leaves of Grass," all but one of them spurious. There has been but one "Complete Prose," I believe (though I hereby disclaim any authority for saying so). Now you can be sure that you're getting everything and just as Whitman intended you to get it. "With Walt Whitman in Camden" is a record of the Whitman conversations boswelled by Horace Traubel. They will fill three volumes. Ergo—in five volumes you can have a complete Whitmania.

"The Journal of Leo Tolstoi" (Knopf) from 1895-1899 has been translated by Rose Strunsky and now is ready for anybody's bookshelf. Besides an introduction by the translator there are many explanatory notes by V. G. Chertkov, editor of the original Russian edition. Rose Strunsky visited Tolstoi in Yasnaya Polyana "one May afternoon in 1906," she says. "He told us that he was a religious thinker and not a political one, but that to his mind the revolution in Russia would take fifty years to develop." And that was only eleven years out of the fifty ago.

A new girls' book by Elia W. Peattie is a cause for celebration among the countless girls who are already her faithful and devoted readers. There is always something delicately honest and charming about Mrs. Peattie's books—whether they are for grownups or young girls—something uplifting without being palpably "glad." They make you say to yourself, "I wish I were a character in this book." "The Newcomers" (Houghton-Mifflin) is that sort of book. There is a jolly, clever girl in it who succeds in writing verses for those who want to be poetic but can't, a brother who builds a dam and is a hero when it is washed away, and a mother who knows that there is sweetness and light in the world no matter how sour folks are or how dark it seems. Newcomers in a small town, the little volume is the tale of their coming, their seeing, and their conquering.

A new way of getting poetic inspiration is to read inspiring books. John Curtis Underwood read some about the war and wrote a volume of war poems called "War Flames" (Macmillan) which bears this acknowledgement. "The author wished to acknowledge his indebtedness to various books, magazines, and newspaper articles, notably, 'A Journal of Impressions in Belgium' by May Sinclair, 'My Year of the Great War' by Frederick Palmer, 'The Dark Forest' by Hugh Walpole, 'The Red Horizon' and 'The Great Push' by Patrick MacGill, 'My Home in the Field of Honor' by Francis Wilson Huard, 'Ten Million Refugees' by Richard Washburn Child, and 'Four Weeks in the Trenches' by Fritz Kreisler, from which material for many of his poems has been adapted directly in part."

Yes, Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany" may be had in book form. George H. Doran will publish it on Oct. 1 under the same title as the serial.

◆

The public library is working with all of its force to make the campaign for "a million dollars for a million books for a million men" a success. The libraries which will be established at the cantonments will be supplied with the more serious books from the million dollar fund and the soldiers' and sailors' gift libraries will supplement the literary feast so that each cantonment shall have intellectual food from canape to cheese. You needn't falter in your enthusiasm for the soldiers' and sailors' library when you contribute to the million dollar fund—as, of course, you will—because the two plans are inter-helpful. When they both get into working order it will be almost impossible for a soldier or a sailor to avoid being well read. It will be as easy for them to get books to read as it is for Chicagoans.

Arthur Schnitzler will never be translated—and paraphrased—by so skilled a hand as Granville Barker's. To one who does not read German no plays of Schnitzler's can ever compare with the "Anatol" group, and that because Mr. Barker is himself a dramatist at heart. A new volume of translations of Schnitzler's "Comedies of Words," which were published in Vienna two years ago, and "Literature," written in 1901, and "His Helpmate," written in 1898, is made by Pierre Loving. It isn't a bad translation; in fact, one must admit that it is pleasantly free from literalisms. And it's the best we can do about Schnitzler now. There isn't a copy for sale of an original Schnitzler volume in Chicago, and in New York they say that the only copy of "Komödie der Worte" available is in the reference department of the New York Public library.

Allan Undegraff, whose "Second Youth" [Harper's] is so delightful that the memory of it lingers for a long time, is by youth a middle westerner. He was born in Iowa, went to Missouri when he was 6 years old, and began his journalistic career in our very own town. He soon left us for the east, though. While he was at Yale he was editor in chief of the Yale Monthly. He left Yale because his money ran out, and after a try at New York he incoged as a railroad laborer in Montana. He is now a downright Woodstock, N. Y.-er. He is one of the editors of "The Plowshare," the little magazine of the artists' colony at Woodstock.

OUR VANISHING PENSION

by Maj.-Gen. William H. Carter

OUT of war often comes progress along lines of development for which men have struggled in vain during peace. An instance of this is about to occur in connection with the great war of 1917. Out of the great civil war came the abolition of slavery, but, unhappily, along with it came a system of pensions so vast in its ramifications that for fifty years the questions arising under it were among the most potent in their influence on men in public life and those seeking office. Innumerable members of congress have owed their election to their support of the pension system. No man in America for a moment opposed generous treatment of the families of the dead and to the maimed and disabled veterans of the great war, but it gradually became apparent that the system itself had become a part of American politics, against which the public as a whole seemed powerless.

No party in power during half a century has dared to acquiesce in the general demand for publication of the list of pensioners in each district. To this day there are large numbers of gallant men who served in the civil war who never drew a pension. On the other hand, there are a vast number who have shamelessly drawn pensions without any real battle service to justify it.

In the year 1866, immediately following the close of the civil war, the appropriation by congress for the payment of pensions amounted to a little in excess of $15,000,000. This amount gradually rose until it exceeded $160,000,000, where it has continued fifty years after the close of the war. During the half century following 1865 the pension claims for account of service in the civil war aggregated more than $4,000,000,000. The result of the operation of the pension agents, who had become veritable sharks, was to educate and debauch the minds of young Americans to the idea that to volunteer meant the right to a pension.

This education exhibited itself immediately on the outbreak of the war with Spain. Thousands of well meaning young men who had patriotically enlisted, after rigid physical examination, made their arrangements for pension applications before taking the field or performing any duty whatever. To illustrate the result, there were, in the brief campaign in Cuba, with about thirty days' service, five volunteer regiments which were selected for the Santiago campaign by reason of presumed superiority over other volunteer regiments. Immediately following their return home in a few weeks, a stream of applications for pensions began, and in a brief time the commissioner of pensions tabulated them and made the following exhibit of ten regiments taking part in the Santiago campaign:

| Volunteers— | Killed. | Wounded. | Missing. | Claims filed for pensions. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| First District of Columbia | 0 | 0 | 0 | 472 |
| Ninth Massachusetts | 0 | 0 | 0 | 685 |
| Thirty-third Michigan | 0 | 0 | 0 | 573 |
| Thirty-fourth Michigan | 0 | 0 | 0 | 615 |
| Eighth Ohio | 0 | 0 | 0 | 652 |
| Totals | 0 | 0 | 0 | 2,997 |
| Regulars— | | | | |
| Sixth U. S. infantry | 17 | 106 | 17 | 162 |
| Seventh U. S. infantry | 33 | 93 | 0 | 249 |
| Thirteenth U. S. infantry | 18 | 90 | 0 | 87 |
| Sixteenth U. S. infantry | 13 | 107 | 17 | 143 |
| Twenty-fourth U. S. infantry | 12 | 75 | 6 | 125 |
| Totals | 93 | 471 | 40 | 766 |

It will be observed that out of the five volunteer regiments, comprised of average, decent young Americans, there were no men killed, wounded, or missing; yet nearly 3,000 claims were made for pensions — more than three-fifths of the entire command. The five regiments of regulars, with 93 killed, 471 wounded, and 40 missing, submitted only 766 applications for pensions. These young men had been absent from their homes and were scattered in organizations in such a manner that the local claim agents were unable to get at them and influence their minds as to the great benefit of putting in an early application, whether they had suffered injury or not.

OUT of the great war of 1917 the nation is to see this pension system, which has proven so degrading to both the individual and the men in political life, swept away, and a substitute for it of government insurance; a system which has for its object to grant to the fighting forces, as a matter of justice and not of charity, compensation for the losses that may be incurred by them, and indemnity against the risks imposed upon them by war service. To meet this the pay of the soldiers has been largely increased, and they will be compelled to contribute to the support of their families, to which contribution the government will add a substantial grant of from $15 to $50 a month.

The insurance measure proposes to give compensation instead of a pension to those rendering military service to the government, for death or disability resulting from the service; the family, not the man, is the unit upon which the grant is based. The compensation for a totally disabled private is from $40 to $75 a month, and in case of his death from $30 to $60 a month, dependent upon the size of his family.

In connection with this insurance is the education and rehabilitation of the maimed or crippled man. To develop every latent power within him to save him from the danger of resting with a bare government pension, and thereby losing his energy and desire to support himself. Every man who is fit for work must undergo a course of training under penalty of suspension of his compensation. On the other hand, to spur him to his utmost, he will not be deprived of his compensation if he raises himself to a high productive level.

Men in the army in war time cannot protect themselves by insurance against old age, disability, or death, except at a prohibitive price. The government now plans to issue such insurance at a net cost based upon mortality in peace times. The extra cost due to the heavier death rate during the war is a burden that should be borne not by the fighting men, but by the people as a whole for whom they are fighting. Under this plan the average premium for the young man will be about $8 a year per thousand. Practically every private can contribute $15 monthly out of his pay to the support of his family, $7 monthly as a premium on $10,000, the maximum proposed, and have spending money sufficient to meet the needs of the man at the front who is fed and clothed by the government. Through this insurance the men are enabled to protect themselves and there will be no need of the continuance of the service pension system.

Under this system the soldiers' homes, which in many instances have been filled with a most pathetic lot of old men who have quit the struggle for life and voluntarily interned themselves without hope and simply waiting for the final taps, will be abolished. The measure proposing to change all this is now before congress, and it behooves every thoughtful American to study it and give it his support to every possible extent.

The number of men to be called out for this war is not yet determined, but it is entirely probable that it will double and treble the total numbers of the civil war. The mass of corruption which would come from the continuance of the pension system when applied to five or six million men, imbued with the same idea of the right to pensions as those young men had who went to Santiago in 1898, would tend to bankrupt the nation and disorganize its political world for another half century.

LETTER TO FRANCE

by Princess Lvoff

Herewith is presented a translation by Mary L. Stephenson of a letter addressed to France through the columns of L'Illustration, Paris. Princess Lvoff is the wife of the former premier of Russia under the provisional government established after the revolution. He was succeeded by Kerensky. Prince Lvoff, although one of the most popular men in Russia, has practically withdrawn from active affairs.

MOSCOW.—I address myself to France, the France I know and love almost as my own country; I speak to the men of France with their persevering courage and their great moral force and to the noble hearts of the French women. Since the beginning of this cruel war, while suffering ceaselessly for my fatherand, my heart, like the heart of so many Russians, has beat in unison with the hearts of these men and women of France; it has trembled with joy to witness the marvelous response of all France; it has followed anxiously, step by step, her unparalleled struggle; it has bent itself in homage before her marvelous abnegation; it has mourned her glorious dead and admired her triumphant bravery. And it is because of this that my heart bleeds to learn that France now looks upon us as traitors.

Surely you do not believe, you cannot—no, you shall not think that Russia is a country of traitors. Impossible. It is not.

Can the people in France who have lived in Russia, those who up to very recently have recognized her brave but modest soldiers; those who know her people, sweet and good, a people who have always met privations, grief, even death, without complaint, can these believe that in one short moment the Russian soul has changed and that consciously she would stoop to commit the worst of crimes, treason?

Do not say that all those young lives, all those heroes—often only sons—fallen on the field of honor belong to a people capable of treason! Do not say that, for it would be torture to those mothers, those women and children who are stifling their tears with the thought that their beloved dead have given their lives for their country! You would trample on the very hearts of these.

You must not think this thing and you ought to know—you must know—that in spite of anything that is said or done Russia has always had and always will have a strong, steady, and sincere sympathy for France.

YOU are asking, Then why that indecision in commencing the offensive, that inertia, that sudden indifference in the common cause? O, I understand! I know that you, pushing on without a moment's faltering even though exhausted; you who struggle ceaselessly; you, a glorious nation whose courage has redoubled, sustained by the hope of a final and common triumph; you are disappointed, indignant at what has seemed a criminal indifference. I can understand. You have my admiration and respect, I suffer with you, but yet I still say:

It is a momentary madness, the madness of a day, an immense joy, a sudden intoxication of a people to whom in the very midst of carnage, blood, and death the cry has come, Liberty! . . .

Liberty? . . . Liberty means hearth, family, peace in woods and fields, far from the noise of cannon, far from death; it is joy, happiness, light, it is Life! . . . And in the intense rays of this light which has obscured their clarity of vision, before this happiness so long waited for, everything has become confused; even the idea that to keep this liberty they must keep on struggling and must conquer. Everything has been forgotten for the time being, even what we owe to our faithful allies; what France has accomplished under the guidance of her strong sense of duty.

You did not see this people running before the hope of a free and new life, you did not assist, as did we, at the pouring out of all of Moscow—the heart of Russia—when liberty was announced.

You did not see the faces of these men, women, and children raised to heaven and hurrying toward the light; simple faces transfigured by the light of happiness. Not a trace of hatred or thirst of vengeance on a solitary face. You did not see these people prostrate themselves in the churches; you did not hear them chanting their prayers in a voice which broke with emotion until they could not speak.

They were incapable of reasoning or thinking and they didn't know, or didn't want to know, anything except that they were free.

People of France, do not be quick to blame them, a people confident and naïve, so long kept ignorant, who have been pushed into evil and have committed wrongs through ignorance. Understand them, do not impute criminal motives to this moment of unconscious weakness.

Have patience, for they will wake from their radiant dream. Their folly, their intoxication, will pass. They will open their eyes, will see their duty. Have confidence in the Russian soul, in the true soul of Russia which will remain faithful and will be victorious together with her allies.

Dixie Highway Added to 1918 Road Projects

COMPLETE, unbroken pavement over the entire length of the Dixie highway in Illinois by November, 1918, is now declared to be a virtual certainty. This has been brought about within the last few days by action of the authorities in counties south of Chicago, all of which have now appropriated the funds necessary to meet the federal and state aid allotments assigned recently to be spent on this route.

With the paving of the Lincoln highway across the state also assured, as indicated recently in these columns, this means that Illinois is to have 243 miles of the trunk line highways most needed by motorists as soon as the physical work of completing the two undertakings can be accomplished. Which, it may be submitted, is considerable progress for a commonwealth generally reputed to be sadly behind the times in the matter of road improvement.

Careful estimates, made by the state highway department, have fixed the cost of surfacing the trails, and every dollar of the needed money is now in hand. About the only problem to be faced is the prevailing shortage of labor.

In the case of the Dixie highway, which extends 114 miles due south from Chicago through Momence and Watseka to Danville, the highway department believes that the work can be completed next year. The pavement in Cook and Vermilion counties—the northern and southern extremities of the route—is practically complete. Will, Kankakee, and Iroquois counties have appropriated the necessary funds and are ready to start work early in the spring.

Lincoln highway enthuiasts also are predicting that their trail will be paved within a year, but this is regarded as more doubtful of accomplishment. The route, which covers 129 miles through De Kalb, Dixon, and Sterling to the Iowa state line, has only twenty-nine miles of pavement now laid, leaving an even 100 miles to be built, whereas the Dixie highway needs only sixty-five miles of new construction.

Probably the bulk of the work on the Lincoln highway will be done next year, with the final links to be added in 1919.

The program of through route improvement laid out by the state highway department in dividing up the available federal and state funds is indicated in the following table:

| | Total mileage. | To be improved. | Estimated cost. | Allotment. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Lincoln Highway .. | 129 | 100 | $1,460,450 | $1,020,000 |
| Dixie Highway ..... | 114 | 65 | 802,200 | 614,000 |
| Chi-Spgfld.. | 224 | 200 | 3,438,100 | 2,215,000 |
| Spgfld-St.L. | 112 | 91 | 1,415,300 | 958,000 |
| National old trails. | 145 | 131 | 2,156,700 | 1,413,000 |
| Chi-Wisc. . | 45 | 35 | 759,000 | 400,000 |

In each case, of course, the amount to be provided by the counties is the difference between the state and federal allotment and the estimated cost. As indicated, these sums already are in hand for the Dixie and Lincoln highways.

On the Chicago-Springfield route six counties have made the necessary appropriations, three have provided for a vote on bond issues, and two have yet to take action.

On the trail from Springfield to St. Louis all the counties require bond issues and all have authorized a vote on them at the coming elections. The same is true of the counties along the National Old Trails road, which cuts across southern Illinois through Marshall, Vandalia, and East St. Louis.

For the route from Chicago to the Wisconsin line—the so-called military road—Cook and Lake counties have agreed on a division of the federal and state allotment and have tentative arrangements under way for providing their own share of the cost.

The Cook county authorities are pondering the advisability of an immediate $1,000,000 bond issue for this and other road improvements. In Lake county the voters will pass on a $500,000 bond issue at the coming election.

Of the six through route highway projects, therefore, four are hanging fire, but with every prospect of complete fulfillment. With each of them it's a case of "whole hog or none," for no construction work is to be begun until all the needed funds are in hand.

Should all the counties involved take favorable action, Illinois will have, within the next year or two, nearly 800 miles of continuously paved trunk line highways—which is something for the motorists of the state to think about.

THE VALLEY TRAIL

Where New Cement Highway, Officially Opened Yesterday, Provides Link in Novel Circle Tour.

From data in the 1917 Automobile Blue Book.

Mileage.

0.0 Michigan and Jackson boulevards. North on Michigan and across river. Right in Ohio street one block and left in North Michigan avenue, which becomes Lake Shore drive. Continue through Lincoln Park, leaving same at northern edge and running into Sheridan road. Follow this thoroughfare for nearly twenty-one miles, passing through

13.2 EVANSTON and eastern limits of

17.2 KENILWORTH. Continue past Lake Shore Country club and Ravinia park to

26.2 HIGHLAND PARK. At St. John's and Central avenue turn left, or west, across railroad, turning right in First street, just beyond. Irregular crossroads, jog right and left and keep straight ahead. Avoid right hand road [27.2]. At road just beyond, with sign on left, turn left and cross railroad. Through crossroads to

61.3 DUNDEE. Cross bridge and follow winding, but direct road, along east side of river to

65.8 ELGIN. Right on Highland avenue, going uphill under railroad. At fork, left with trolley on Larkin avenue. Where trolley branches off keep ahead of crossroads (edge or old road race course). Turn left. End of road right along Fox river. Go under railroad and continue into

76.0 ST. CHARLES. Main and Second streets. Straight south, following road that, with the exception of the first two miles, is cement, through

80.0 BATAVIA to

87.8 AURORA. Broadway and Fox streets. Left in Broadway two blocks and right in New York street. Cross railroad and go up steep grade. Curve left past park. Leave trolley and follow heavy poles. Straight ahead on winding, but direct road to end, then left across bridge into

96.6 NAPERVILLE. Right in Chicago avenue. Follow heavy poles on winding, but direct road through

103.8 DOWNER'S GROVE. Cross railroad and continue with main travel through

108.1 HINSDALE. Straight ahead to end and turn left. At road one-half mile beyond, turn right. Follow macadam road through

Light Cars in Germany.

Motor car design as now prevalent in Germany shows a considerable change during the last thirty months. Of course, in speaking of motor cars in Germany, one might as well say motor cars of the German army; there are few others left. The cars are made as light as possible without sacrificing too much strength; the wheel base is elongated and the tread of cars built for months past standardized at railroad gauge. Engines are preferably block cast, with a lesser ratio than before the war to save metal.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

Preceded by a cordon of motorcycle cops and a band, the ancient Buick known as the "Hyatt roller" celebrated a triumphal entry into Chicago Friday afternoon. Nearly 100 Buicks, filled with dealers and owners, met the old car on the north side, near the city limits, and escorted it by a roundabout route to the Buick headquarters in Calumet avenue, where it will be on exhibition until tonight. Friday evening and last night it was a center of attraction at the closing sessions of the Ford show at the Coliseum.

The car, a 1908 model, owned by a Kansas man, has completed an officially certified total of 272,445 miles on its original set of Hyatt bearings. It is now completing a circle tour of the United States, designed to contribute a spectacular addition to its previous total and to determine, if possible, how long the bearings will actually stand up. Chicago is on the last leg of the journey back to Detroit, where the run started June 4.

For the parade which escorted the veteran into Chicago, D. A. Burke, manager of the local branch, dug up several Buicks of even more ancient vintage than the "Hyatt roller." One of these, which is still in daily service hereabouts, dates back to 1906, but its owner has no accurate record of its total mileage.

"The price of the Allen has been held at the old figure thus far," says James M. Cram, the Chicago distributor, "but I can't tell how much longer it is going to last. Only shrewd buying in the material market and careful manufacturing methods have enabled us to keep the present price as long as we have. And, in my opinion, prices next year will see no drop."

The more interesting announcements of the week include those of a Case six and a Chevrolet eight. Both concerns have confined themselves hitherto to the production of four cylinder cars.

Dealers in the National have reported to the factory a surprising and entirely unexpected demand for the touring sedan in farming communities. "We never figured on any particular market among farmers for a closed model," said an official of the company. "It simply seems that the farmer wants to use a car in winter as much as we city folks do."

Fox River Trail, Now Open, Offers Interesting Trip

By John De Long.

TO the motorist who, in his summer's driving about this section of the country, has tried nearly all of the old standby tours, the circle trip outlined herewith is recommended. The itinerary is not laid out with the idea of necessarily giving the shortest routes from place to place, but is designed to take the tourist through attractive and interesting country and over roads that on the average are very good at this time of year.

The tour totals 128.7 miles—just about enough for a short autumn day. Starting from Michigan and Jackson boulevards the route runs north through the lake shore suburbs as far as Highland Park. Then it swings west through Half Day to Lake Zurich, one of Chicago's nearby summer resorts that is comparatively little visited by motorists.

From Lake Zurich one continues over uniformly good roads through Barrington to Algonquin, which is slightly out of the way, but well worth including in the itinerary on account of the fine views afforded in the neighborhood of the quaint and historic little village on the banks of the Fox river. Then for several miles the route runs south through the picturesque Fox river valley as far as Aurora. The drive along the river and through Dundee to Elgin is a delightful one over good, winding roads.

Motorists who accept this tour suggestion will be given an opportunity to try out the new Fox River Valley trail, which was dedicated yesterday. The trail, which runs along the west side of the river between Elgin and Aurora, a distance of about twenty-two miles, consists of concrete with the exception of those portions that run through the limits of Elgin, Batavia and St. Charles. An emblem for the trail has been adopted and markers are soon to be placed along the new highway.

The Fox River Valley trail is one of the results of the activity among good roads enthusiasts of Cook and Kane counties toward obtaining state aid for permanent highways. It is to be hoped their lead will be followed by other communities.

According to the Kane county authorities, who were largely responsible for the improvement of the Elgin-Aurora road, there will be no letup in the movement until every farmer is served by a paved highway to his market. This will involve heavy expense, but the Kane county people are aware that roads such as the concrete stretches in Cook county and on the Fox River Valley trail are an asset to the taxpayers and not a liability.

Continuing from Aurora the tourist turns eastward toward Chicago and passes through Naperville, Downers Grove, Hinsdale, and Fullersburg, from which hamlet the route runs north to the new Twelfth street cement road and thence over the city pavements to Chicago.

The LITTLE THINGS THAT HELP

Here's a Super-Jack.

An English inventor has perfected an ingenious and elaborate jack designed to do away at one fell swoop with all the difficulties motorists now have in raising their cars from the ground for one purpose or another. The contraption is attached to the car, and, when not in use, folds under it, practically out of sight. It is connected with the engine and operated from the driver's seat by the simple movement of a lever. With it the entire car, passengers and all, can be lifted from one to eight inches, as desired, in ten seconds, or even more quickly if the engine is accelerated. If you're driving into a garage for repair work, no one needs to get out of the car while the work is being done. When it's over you lower the car and drive away. If you're fussy about your tires—as you should be—you can take the entire weight of the car off them whenever a stop of any length is made. All of which is printed because it represents a diverting idea. The jack, as a matter of fact, is of no particular use to American motorists for the simple reason that it is not obtainable in this country.

For Clear Vision.

Devices are legion for clearing the windshield of rain, mist, or snow. The one illustrated has the advantages of clearing an unusually large section of the glass at one sweep of the hand, and of being quickly and easily removed from its place on the windshield when not needed. The cleaner is of steel, 7½ inches high, with an inserted strip of rubber to provide the squeegee surface. It costs $2.

Just Slip It On.

A novel power driven tire pump is now offered by a Detroit concern. Instead of requiring elaborate installation under the hood it is attached to the end of the crankshaft from the outside, through the opening ordinarily used for the starting crank, and is operated chiefly by power from the shaft. It slips on and off quickly without the use of tools, and is kept in place only when actually in use. Ten dollars buys it, in designs adapted to the Overland, Hudson, Chandler, Studebaker, Briscoe, Dodge, Reo, Stearns, and Saxon.

A Red Ray Spotlight.

For use in various emergencies an Ohio manufacturer has devised a spotlight whose white ray may, at the touch of a button, be changed to one of brilliant red. It is suggested that the red beam be flashed for safety when one is stopping at the roadside for repairs, that it be thrown to the right or left to indicate turns or to the rear as preparation for a stop, that it be used as a call for help or a warning in leaving a garage, and so on. The device has the features of the ordinary spotlight, including a mirror which may be adjusted to give rear vision regardless of the position of the searchlight and sells for $7.

The "Vertical Split."

A peculiarity in design of an eight cylinder engine, known as the "vertical split," has been found to be patentable.

Instead of dividing the cylinder blocks horizontally engineers discovered that a vertical division could be made in such a way that a V-shaped eight cylinder engine could be assembled more quickly, more simply, and with fewer parts than a pair of fours. The two blocks, containing four cylinders each, and the crankcases are made in two castings.

The right hand block includes four cylinders, half the crankcase, and solidly supports the crankshaft and camshaft. The left hand block is "blank"; that is, it includes four cylinders and half the crankcase, but it bears none of the strains of crankshaft or camshaft.

Each half is assembled as a separate unit, the blocks are clamped together by anchor bolts, detachable cylinder heads are bolted to each block, and the engine is practicall built, except for minor assemblies, such as wiring. The application of this principle is found in the Oldsmobile, whose engineers devised it.

The End of Your Corns

Pain Stops at Once—Corn Lifts Off Clean

There is nothing in the world like "Gets-It" for corns. Just apply it according to directions, the pain stops at once and then the corn lifts off as clean as a whistle. No fuss, no bother, no danger. "Gets-It," you know, is safe. Millions have used it, more than all other corn remedies combined, and it never fails.

Don't Waste Time "Hollering." "Gets-It" Never Fails.

There is no need for you to go through another day of corn agony. But be sure you get "Gets-It." Accept nothing else, for remember, there is positively nothing else as good. "Gets-It" never irritates the live flesh, never makes the toe sore. You can go about as usual with work or play, while "Gets-It," the magic, does all the work. Then the corn peels right off like a banana skin, and leaves the toe as smooth and corn-free as your palm. Never happened before, did it? Guess not.

Get a bottle of "Gets-It" today from any drug store, you need pay no more than 25c, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co, Chicago, Ill.

Immediate Delivery

This closed car production was planned by the factory months ago so that you would not be inconvenienced by the usual delay in delivery.

And these beautiful combination open and closed cars were part of an enormous production order for Model Eighty-Fives—fours and sixes—from material purchased when prices were much lower.

It will probably be a long time before such luxurious cars can again be produced to sell at such low prices.

They are beauties—side windows and uprights fold away entirely out of sight when you want a touring car or roadster—close up tight as a limousine when you want a closed car. The change is easily made and takes but a moment.

Come in and let us show you the height of all-season luxury.

And remember—we can promise you immediate delivery.

AUTOMOBILES Conducted by SHEPPARD BUTLER MOTORCYCLES

Rare Luxury of Good Steering Is Easily Obtained

By High Speed.

THE average motor car owner will probably be surprised to be told that he doesn't know what really good steering means. The reason is that so many factors contribute to helping or hindering the easy guidance of the modern car that many of them are entirely overlooked by most owners and the result is that they consider satisfactory steering what is in reality very far from perfect.

All modern automobiles use essentially the same steering system, comprising the wheel, fastened to a post and connected by linkage to a movable knuckle, attached to the side of the front axle, the two knuckles being connected by a further linkage. When the steering wheel is turned the post moves the linkage to one front wheel and because of the connection to the other this also moves in unison.

The steering gear, properly speaking, is the mechanism at the lower end of the steering post and the different types take their name from the forms of gears used in them. There are the worm and wheel type, the worm and sector, screw and nut, bevel gear, and rack and pinion. All these gearings are merely different ways of accomplishing the same end. They are nothing more than a reduction gearing for reducing the motion of the steering wheel. The worm and wheel and the screw and nut types are those commonly in use today.

To begin with, it is important that the front wheels shall be properly aligned if the car is to steer with maximum ease. All wheels are cambered and toed-in to a certain extent. The amount of this varies with different cars, but the owner should take pains at least twice a season to see that his wheels are properly aligned.

There are certain methods of making this test, which is simple enough if the operator knows how, but if he is not familiar with the proper procedure, he should take the car to his service station and have the test made, the cost being nominal. Incidentally, if the owner makes the test himself, he should ascertain from the service station what is the proper amount of camber and toe-in for the wheels of his vehicle.

Any time that the car is involved in a collision of any kind, even if it is with the curb, the wheel alignment should be checked up. Improper alignment results not only in hindering the steering of the car but in excessive tire wear.

If the alignment of the wheels is found to be incorrect, it may be altered by manipulating the tie rod. This latter is the rod which runs from one steering knuckle to the other and which has a movable portion at either end. Hard steering is often caused by misalignment of the front wheels through an error in the toe-in or gather and a correction of this fault will bring a marked improvement in the guidance of the vehicle.

In addition to the toe-in and tilt given to the wheels, many manufacturers of motor vehicles tilt the front axle or the ends of the axle, known as the knuckles. This not only makes for easier steering, but also puts the greatest part of the load on the strongest part of the axle.

It is frequently possible in a car the steering system of which is deficient in that respect to improve the steering to a marked degree by tilting the knuckles backward. This may be accomplished in a rough and ready fashion by setting the front springs on specially made wooden or metal tapered seats instead of the seats that are made integrally with the front axle. This tilting backward of the knuckles not only makes for easier steering, but it will be noticeable that after a turn has been made the wheels will return to the straight position almost of its own accord.

Though the ordinary owner does not realize it, practically every part of the steering system is in motion whenever the car is running. Even roads that appear to be as smooth as a billiard table, in reality are full of more or less accentuated inequalities, which impart a jounce to the car. Every such jolt causes movement and consequent wear in the flexible parts of the steering system. For this reason all steering systems are provided with some method of taking up slack that inevitably develops through use. Of course, this wear means abrasion, which is aggravated unless the various joints are kept properly lubricated.

In most steering systems the slack which develops may be taken up in two or three different places. The car owner should find out to begin with where the wear is greatest, whether in the gears at the bottom of the post, in the ball joints, or in other parts.

A good beginning may be made by gripping the tie rod and moving it back and forth, thereby detecting play in this part if it exists. Perform the same operation with the drag link or rod connecting the steering arm with the front axle. The ball joints may be adjusted by means of a nut, which is located in back of the spring. To do this remove the cotter pin, turn down the nut, insert the pin again, and the job is done.

If the play is in the gears there is usually provided an adjustment, placed just above the case in which the gears are housed. As a general thing it takes the form of a serrated nut, which is held in place by a slotted pin. The pin must be removed with a screwdriver, the nut being turned slightly, after which the pin is replaced. Each time the nut is turned it is well to try the steering to see that the adjustment is having the desired effect.

From all this it will be seen that the care needed by the steering system is not onerous. If it is regularly carried on it becomes a matter of minor detail and the returns for the care are an ease and flexibility in the steering function of the car that cannot be exaggerated. Moreover, easy steering is something that the car owner has reason to value, for its benefits are felt by him every minute of the time that the car is in motion.

Huge Garage for Gotham.

New York is to have a garage with a floor space equal to Madison Square garden. It will be located on One Hundred and Thirty-second street, just off Broadway. The size as given is 400x425x199.10 feet. The Fifth Avenue Coach company, of which Richard W. Meade is the president, will be the erectors.

SUPER-JITNEY

A Railroad Track, a Motor Bus Body, Some Flanged Wheels, and a Ford—Why Bother About Pullmans?

Down in Louisiana this Ford is operating as a full fledged railway train—locomotive, express car, passenger coach, and all. It constitutes most of the rolling stock of the Christie and Eastern railway, between Christie and Peason, two towns in the Sabine parish; runs on a regular timetable schedule, and does a thriving business in both passenger and express traffic. The contraption is made out of a Smith Form-a-Truck attachment, a special body, and the familiar Model T of the common or garden variety.

Motor Notes.

The Packard Motor Car company has been taking a census of its branches, dealers, and subdealers. It finds that they have a gross investment of more than $20,000,000 in plants and stocks, and do a gross business of $70,000,000 a year. They have 6,455 employés on their pay rolls.

Charles F. Monroe of Buffalo, N. Y., has just achieved the distinction of having driven a brand new Marmon from Indianapolis to Buffalo exclusively on high gear, averaging twenty-five miles an hour for the trip and making fourteen miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Utilitarian motives have prompted more than 50 per cent of Reo sales in rural communities, according to the researches of R. C. Rueschaw, sales manager of the Reo Motor Car company. "Farmers," he says, "are drawing hay from the fields with their so-called pleasure cars. I have even seen them harrowing with automobiles and bringing coal from town for the thrashing engine." It isn't fair, Mr. Rueschaw thinks, to intimate that we might be harvesting larger food crops if the farmer didn't devote so much time to the family car.

An illuminated daily bulletin setting forth various construction phases of the Bethlehem truck has been installed as a novel publicity stunt at the Michigan avenue establishment of the Chicago Bethlehem Sales company. A different message is shown each day.

How Many?

Wisconsin entered a claim last week to sixth place in the per capita ownership of automobiles in the United States. A total of 160,000 motor driven vehicles was reported. Taking the census bureau's population estimate for Jan. 1, 1917, as a basis, this would place the ratio for the state at one automobile to every 15.7 persons.

Michigan probably would dispute the Washington claim, for its total registration on July 1, 1917, indicated a motor car to every 16.3 persons, whereas Wisconsin at that time had only one to every 17.7.

Illinois, with 320,000 cars, now has one to every 19.4 persons. The state was credited with tenth place on the per capita list for the first six months of the year, but the extraordinarily large number of registrations since July 1 probably would give it a higher rank now.

Iowa still tops the list for the United States with one car to every nine inhabitants. Nebraska runs second, California third, Kansas fourth, and Minnesota fifth.

Little Hope for Cheaper Cars Despite Steel Cut, Say Makers

Much emphasis has been placed on the soaring cost of pig iron and steel by automobile manufacturers, who within recent months have announced sharp increases in the price of motor cars. Consequently when the price of steel was cut in half last week by agreement between the president and the steel men the question naturally suggested itself, Will the automobile buyer reap the benefit?

The automobile editor of "The Tribune" put the question to several of the better known manufacturers. Here are the replies received up to the moment this section went to press:

Lower Prices Possible Six Months from Now

BY ALVAN MACAULEY.

[President Packard Motor Car Company.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 28.—The government agreement respecting the price of pig iron probably would favorably affect the price of motor cars ultimately, unless, as expected, increases in the cost of labor and the general expense of operating the manufacturing plants should offset the lower cost of materials.

Any lowering of the price of automobiles, however, could not be effective for at least six months, since virtually all manufacturers buy materials and stock up that far ahead.

* *

Cost to Manufacturer Not Reduced One Cent

BY C. W. NASH.

[President Nash Motors Company.]

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 27.—Most decidedly, the fixing of prices on steel by the government and the steel companies will have no bearing whatever upon the price of automobiles. This is due to the fact that all automobile concerns and those supplying the accessory parts of automobiles have contracted for their steel and, in many cases, have a large quantity of steel going through work and process. Any price arrangement between the government and the steel companies will not reduce the cost to the manufacturer of automobiles one cent.

I am prepared to believe that all contracts now in existence, which are usually made for several months ahead with the steel companies, will stand exactly as they were made.

* *

Everything Going Up, Why Talk of Steel?

BY F. E. MOSKOVICS.

[Vice President Nordyke & Marmon Company.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 27.—We, here, cannot see where the price reduction of steel will make any vast difference in the price of motor cars.

By analyzing the problem and considering the total tonnage of steel involved, with the pro rata reduction, you will readily see that the price of steel has not regulated the advance in motor car prices so much as the price of every single thing in the car, from glass to tires, and labor, which is an infinitely greater item than raw steel—which show no variation in price. All operative costs, power and machine tools are in exactly the same position.

Eventually the matter of steel prices may have some influence, but not in the immediate future.

* *

Real Difficulty Will Be Shortage of Cars

BY EDWARD S. JORDAN.

[President Jordan Motor Car Company.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 28.—The reduced price of steel will not affect the inventories carried by motor car manufacturers for several months. Furthermore, it will not offset the increased cost of production, due to reduced output.

The big cost items contributing to increased prices are transportation and labor. There will be a shortage of motor cars this winter, not because of increased demand, but due to decreased production and the difficulties of transportation.

* *

Mills Too Crowded to Produce at New Rates

BY WALTER E. FLANDERS.

[President Maxwell Motor Company.]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—It is my opinion that the announced reduction in the price of pig iron, steel, and some other raw materials by the United States government will not, for some time to come, affect the retail selling price of automobiles.

Automobile manufacturers have contracted for material at present prices a good many months in advance, in order to protect themselves against delays in deliveries, and the steel mills and blast-furnaces are so crowded with government work and other work that they will have no opportunity to produce materials at the new prices for many months to come.

This should not be taken as a forecast, but simply as the opinion of one producer of automobiles.

Questions and Answers

By High

Because of the large volume of requests for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Questions of general interest, such as those pertaining to driving and the care of the car, will be answered as far as possible in this column.

Please let us know how long the Twelfth street cement road between Desplaines avenue and the county line is to be closed for repairs. How much of it is closed and is it possible to detour and get back on the road again in coming into the city from the west?

C. T. T., Aurora, Ill.

The Twelfth street cement road is blocked about one mile west of Broadview, where a railroad viaduct is being constructed. It is likely that the work will be finished in a short time. Tourists are not prevented from using the road, as it is an easy matter to drive around the blocked section.

What would be the best way to proceed in driving from Fort Sheridan to Rockford without first going to Chicago, which would be considerably out of one's way? Are the roads good for the entire distance.

LIEUT. Z., Fort Sheridan.

Drive through Highwood, Half Day, Lake Zurich, Barrington, Algonquin, Crystal Lake, Marengo, Garden Prairie, and Belvidere to Rockford. The roads consist largely of dirt and will be found pretty bad, especially after leaving Crystal Lake.

I am considering a motor trip to Los Angeles and San Diego and would like to have you outline the best route to take. I am planning to leave about Nov. 1.

C. STEWART, Chicago.

Follow the Chicago, Kansas City, and Gulf highway through Geneva, De Kalb, Dixon, Sterling, Davenport, Wilton Junction, Iowa City, Washington, Ottumwa, Centerville, Chillicothe, and Excelsior Springs to Kansas City. From Kansas City follow the Santa Fé trail across Kansas and through Trinidad and Albuquerque to Los Angeles.

Of late the magneto on my car has not been working well. I went to a repair shop and was told that I should have the magneto overhauled and put in shape. I cannot afford to do this at present and would like to ask you what may be done to fix it up cheaply.

H., Wilmington, Ill.

It may be possible that the magneto magnets are in need of recharging, which should not be an expensive job. One way, and a good one, of determining if the magnets are weak is to watch the performance of the magneto. If it gives a weak spark and everything else is in good condition, its the magnets that are causing the trouble. However, do not blame the magneto without first ascertaining what the trouble is.

What is your opinion regarding the removal of carbon through the oxygen process? Does the burning out of the carbon in this way have a tendency to injure the cylinders and pistons?

D. S., What Cheer, Ia.

The use of the oxygen decarbonizing process will obviate the necessity of taking the motor down and scraping the cylinders, and will greatly defer recourse to this rather expensive operation. If the work is done by an expert there is but little danger of damage to the motor.

Please publish the best automobile route to Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. Also let me know if I can visit the camp after reaching Rockford.

E. G., Cicero, Ill.

The route was published in full in "The Tribune" of Sunday, Sept. 16. It runs through Maywood, Lombard, North Glen Ellyn, St. Charles, Wasco, Lily Lake, Richardson, Sycamore, Genoa, and Belvidere. The roads are not good at the best and I would advise you against making the trip unless you are sure of being admitted to the camp after you get there. Visitors are admitted only on special days. Communicate with the soldier you wish to visit and find out from him when the next visitors day is to be set. Even if you could not go inside the camp it is likely the soldier could get a leave of absence and meet you outside the camp or in Rockford.

Will you kindly publish the best route from Racine, Wis., to Delafield, Wis?

A. M. E., Racine, Wis.

Drive north to Milwaukee; then go west on Grand avenue to Hawley road, which is at the end of the boulevard. Then turn left and later right at cemetery. Continue through Brookfield and Waukesha to Delafield.

Can you furnish me with the addresses of the organizations back of the Dixie and Jackson highways?

A. McD., Chicago.

Dixie Highway association, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Jackson Highway association, Louisville, Ky.

Please publish in your column the highest speed ever attained in an automobile. By whom was the record made and where? What was the name of the car?

J. W. O., Prairie Du Chien, Wis.

The highest speed ever attained in an automobile was 142 miles per hour, made several years ago on the beach course at Ormond, Fla., by the late Bob Burman. It was made in the Blitzen Benz.

SALESMEN.
A progressive organization composed of young men desires the services of a number of salesmen of ability to assist in putting over a first class proposition, sold on its record, not on prospects. We prefer men of experience in the sale of stocks, bonds, or real estate, but will accept men who have sold other lines, if a clean record is shown. Not real estate. No advances are given, but we pay splendid commissions. Our men must furnish gilt-edged references both as to selling ability and character. This proposition is big enough for the best men in Chicago and simple enough for the plugger who is willing to work seven hours a day for a splendid return. We are not looking for get-rich-quick artists, but for the men who make good we have positions as salesmanagers waiting. We will see you any time, but if you prefer you may phone for definite appointment. STEVENSON, 430 Monadnock Block. Har. 3362.

SALESMEN.
We can use 4 men between the ages of 35 and 50 years who are at present employed; experience in our line not necessary, but you must possess appearance, brains, and an ability to work. Men who have sold Real Estate, Advertising, Automobiles, Pianos, and kindred lines are particularly desirable. We offer you an opportunity to connect yourself with one of the greatest Selling Organizations in America, where you can secure a Managerial position inside of 90 days by consistent work. Please don't ask for information over the telephone, but phone Harrison 3451 for an appointment. We are willing to give you our time for an interview, if you will take the trouble to call.

SALESMEN—AN INVESTMENT HOUSE OF long standing, handling only high-grade, seasoned securities, requires the service of three more salesmen. The kind of men we want must be workers. Must have a good, clean record, and a strong convincing personality. We want men who are a success now, but who are looking for an opportunity to enlarge their field of operation. It is not necessary that you have experience in selling securities, providing you have the confidence that you are a salesman above the average and not an order taker. The positions are permanent and the future depends solely upon the ability of the man. If full particulars are given in your letter regarding your experience, an interview will be granted. This is not an ordinary stock jobbing proposition. Address F K 122, Tribune.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE—
There are two kinds of men in the world, those who sail and those who drift, those who choose the ports to which they go and skillfully and boldly shape their course across the seas, while others let winds and tides carry them where they will.
WHICH ARE YOU?
Most men do not understand their compass. Joseph Blumenthal, one of the world's expert Character Analysts, is directing young men daily into their correct vocation. Splendid results have been gained. Employers appreciate getting a man naturally qualified and are coming to us for such men. Consultation free. Scientific Vocational Counseling Bureau, Room 564-5, 608 S. Dearborn.

GROUND FLOOR

The New Orleans Great Northern railroad announces that after great cost in time and money, safe and trustworthy conditions have been worked out for successful live stock raising, poultry, dairying, trucking and general farming on the immense acreage of cheap cut-over lands along its lines in the rich states of La. and Miss.

We have selected a number of cattle, sheep and hog ranches, ranging from a quarter section to a thousand acres, embodying ideal conditions as to ranch headquarters, water, breeding, grazing, shipping, feeding, etc.

With equal care we have also selected a considerable near-in acreage for poultry, trucking, dairying and general farming. These small tracts will be sold, if desired, on monthly payments.

These ranch and farm selections are offered by our Industrial Department and I am in dead earnest when I say they are ground floor opportunities in prices, terms and merit. For particulars, Walter S. Ayres, Ind. Comr., 864 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—SOUTHERN LOUISIANA—LAND famous for its fertility. In a section already populated largely by northern settlers. Splendid markets. Good roads. Water transportation. Good schools. ## REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

BIG LAND OPENING

HERE'S THE CHANCE to get the pick of 40,000 acres of the best new lands in the United States. We are opening up a tract of cutover lands situated in Antrim, Kalkaska, and Charlevoix counties, Michigan, which have produced wonderful forests of maple, beech, elm, basswood, oak, and ash. Adjoining these lands you will find developed farms producing excellent crops of clover, alfalfa, vetch, wheat, oats, corn, rye, beans, peas, potatoes, buckwheat, and all vegetables. Dairying and live stock farming are carried on extensively. These are also among the best apple and cherry lands in the country. The quality and quantity of all these products bear evidence of the high grade of the soil.

THIS IS MORE THAN A LAND SALE. We are colonizers. We do not sell a man land and then go away and leave him. We operate a demonstration farm near our new headquarters at Westwood, where we conduct a farm advising department for the purpose of aiding our customers in their farming operations. You have the advantage of our knowledge and experience gained in developing Michigan lands during the past 20 years.

THIS DISTRICT IS NOT UNSETTLED. There are fine gravel roads leading to nearby good market towns. You do not have far to go to see your neighbors. Telephone lines, rural mail routes, and daily newspapers keep you in close touch with large markets.

NOW IS THE TIME for you to get the choicest selection at the lowest price. To act at once means money in your pocket. At the start the lands will be sold at the very low figures—$18 to $30 per acre. We do not sell large tracts to land speculators to hold for higher prices, as we are selling for the purpose of actual settlement. Therefore, the land is sold in tracts of 20, 40, 80, 120, or 160 acres. You can buy for cash or on our minimum easy terms—$2.50 per acre cash down and 25c per acre per month, on tracts of 40 acres or more. On 20 acre tracts $50 down and $10 per month. Payments can be arranged on a yearly basis. If you cannot go on the excursion of Oct. 16 you had better send in your first payment at once and have a piece reserved for you. We will make the best selections possible in the order the deposits are received and hold the land 30 days for your inspection. If you are not satisfied when you make your inspection, we will exchange for any other piece you may prefer at the same price. Titles guaranteed and abstracts furnished with deeds.

COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF the great future that is in store for the people who take up these lands. Don't wait. Be among the first this time and get one of the choicest selections. While excursions will be run every two weeks until the lands are sold it is a case of first come first served. Be sure to be at the head of the line. Take a few days' vacation and join our BIG SPECIAL PULLMAN CAR EXCURSION TUESDAY, OCT. 16. First class accommodations for both men and women at our fine new hotel. Round trip rate, including railroad fare, Pullman car, hotel, and two days' automobile trip over the lands, $14.70. Leave Chicago at 11 a. m. Tuesday, back early Friday morning.

WRITE TODAY for our new handsome illustrated free booklet giving full information about these lands and their advantages. Also ask for a reservation on our big land excursion of Oct. 16.

Swigart Land Company,

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

IMPROVED FARMS

We have some excellent farm bargains in Southern Michigan, and any man in the market for an up to date improved farm for the raising of grain and stock should not fail to investigate these places before buying. Below are a few reasons why a farmer should invest in a Swigart Southern Michigan farm.

1st—You can buy these farms from $60 to $125 per acre, with excellent buildings that will earn for you as much as farms in Illinois, Iowa, or Indiana costing from $150 to $250 per acre.

2d—These farms are rapidly advancing in price, making them a good investment.

3d—Splendid location, about seventy-five miles south of Grand Rapids, 125 miles from Chicago, and about the same distance from Detroit. Excellent market towns all through the district.

4th—Stone roads. Good transportation. Two trunk line railways.

5th—Healthful, bracing climate. Mild winters, purest drinking water, plentiful rainfall.

6th—Beautiful lakes and summer resorts, with fine boating and fishing nearby.

7th—We guarantee clear titles and full protection of the purchaser.

We have a variety of more than fifty of these fine specially selected farms, ranging from 10 to 300 acres, which may be purchased on a basis of about one-half cash and balance on long time. Below is a sample of a forty acre farm, and with this one stock and tools are included. All you have to do is to move in your furniture and go to work.

FARM 56-L—GOOD CHOCOlate clay loam soil, with clay subsoil; 34 acres under cultivation, 6 acres pasture land; 2 wells; 1½ miles from town of 6,000; on a hard road; 5 room house, stone foundation; good barn, with 50 ton silo. Cow barn, hog shed, garage, chicken house. Included with it are 2 horses, 5 cows, 4 hogs, 40 chickens, 2 wagons, buggy, plows, drags, mower, corn planter, 4 sets harness. Price $5,000; $3,800 cash, balance 5 years.

Write today for improved farm booklet containing photographs of many places and map of the district.

Texas.

FOR SALE — NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, hogs, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad like the Santa Fe would only recommend what it considers a good thing and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER and PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1105 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

TIRES!

Due to the enormously inflated prices of tires we have founded a company to render service direct to the consumer which will save you the jobber's and dealer's profit. OUR STANDARD TIRE IS GUARANTEED UNCONDITIONALLY 3,500 MI.

It is made of the best grade of Para rubber and high test friction fabric, black tread, red side walls.

The large volume of business we have obtained by concentrating our tire making facilities on these sizes exclusively enable us to put out a uniform product of the highest grade at low prices. Lookco—30x3½ and 30x3 nonskid and plain tires to be sold at 10 per cent discount this week.

QUALITY USED CARS

We do not buy used cars to resell: all cars received by us come from private owners, people who take pride in their cars and keep them in the best possible condition. We want you to call and examine our assortment and accept demonstration and if you have any mechanical friends bring them along. We are convinced the more you know about our used cars the more you will be interested in securing one of them.

Marmon "34" The Aluminum car. 7 pass. touring weighs 1,100 pounds less than comparable cars. 14 to 16 miles on a gallon of gas. 9,000 to 12,000 miles on tires. HOTEL BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY—

I will sell the Hotel Delmonte at Blaine, Whatcom County, Washington, a two story and basement brick and concrete building. 100 feet frontage. The first story and basement rented with assured revenue of $152 monthly; the hotel receipts average not less than $300 per month. This hotel is strictly modern in every respect. There are 26 rooms furnished first class, 9 rooms unfurnished. The first floor is occupied by postoffice, U. S. customs, refreshment room, and cigar store and forum. Basement by Blaine Press and Blaine Creamery, sample rooms, and heating plant. There are 8 rooms with private baths. All equipment is first class and modern. P. O. equipment, boxes, and safe belong to owner and are included. There is fuel on premises for 18 months. It is situated on corner close to Great Northern R. R. passenger depot, on water front, with asphalt paved streets, is the home of all tourists between British Columbia and U. S., and patronized by them all [is on Pacific Highway and all autos to and from British Columbia must stop at U. S. Customs] for the reason that it is equal to anything in western Washington. The price is $45,000; the terms are $20,000 cash, $25,000 ten years at 6%. The building is insured for $20,000 and the reason for selling is that other and larger interests require disposal of it.

The above are the lowest and best terms, so that any one not able to meet them need not answer this advertisement.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

A TRACTOR OPPORTUNITY—THIS IS THE tractor age for farmers and will be a prosperous age for you, if you will recognize that fact. If you have ability and money with which to start, we want you to handle the exclusive distribution of The Feeny Tractor Addition to Ford cars in territory as large as your ability and finances will allow. Our Feeny Tractor Addition for Ford cars is guaranteed to do work of four big horses or more, at same time leaving Ford cars to be used as pleasure car when desired. Understand thoroughly—you handle your own money and conduct your own business, and that all we require is a sufficient amount of sales in your territory.

The one thing which has handicapped success of all efforts with Ford tractor attachments has been inability to keep Ford motor from overheating while going slow enough to do farm work. Aside from having a bit the best tractor attachment for Fords, we have absolutely solved this heating problem, and our Cooling System is the only thing that makes certain success for Ford tractor attachments, and assures you certainty of big success if you have ability and sufficient capital to handle territory. These claims avail us nothing unless we can prove them, but let us emphatically assure you we are proving them every day to others.

Write, wire or come to our factory, and we will prove them to your profit. Address Dept. A. The Feeny Mfg. Co., Muncie, Ind.

HERE IS AN OPPORTUNITY FOR THE right man. A large manufacturing company, opening a nationwide selling plan, wants A1 man in every state, a salesman of ability and integrity; a man who has a record of success back of him; one capable of earning from $10,000 to $15,000 a year. Will give exclusive sales rights of an entire state to right man who is able to finance himself up to $2,500. BIG COMMISSION on first orders and on all repeat orders, thus insuring constantly increasing income. Every talking machine dealer a possible permanent customer, for the reason our device is a big money maker for him, and because every talking machine owner is a possible customer for him. The Victrola is either a genuine Victrola or else it is simply an imitation.
Genuine Victrolas may be obtained from us for as low a price as $15. If you get a genuine Victrola you will never regret your purchase.
A genuine Victrola alone has the Victrola tone and is made only by the Victor Talking Machine Co.
Suitable monthly terms may be arranged.
LYON & HEALY,
Wabash-av. and Jackson-blvd.

Despite an exceedingly unpromising beginning, the week's real estate market made a really good showing, in the way of reported transactions, thanks to a rally at the close of the week, similar to the one at the close of the preceding week. The transfer showing of the recorder's office was bad, however, the number of deeds showing a large falling off as compared with the corresponding week a year ago, while the total considerations, for the first time in several years, were under the million dollar mark.

This is robbed of much of its significance, however, by reason of the fact that so many nominal considerations are named in deeds that the total considerations no longer count for what they did when what purported to be actual considerations were given. It is the actual movement of property, as represented by the number of recorded deeds, that count, and while last week's figures in this respect show a sharp falling off as compared with a year ago they are larger than for several weeks of the present year.

However, there was an important deal in State street in the block between Monroe and Madison streets, a most notable event in these dull days, while several important store leases were also reported in the downtown district. In addition there was a series of unusually interesting transactions in residence property in which city and north shore property figured, while outside business property was represented by several noteworthy deals.

Medium Prices Active.

There was in the aggregate a fairly free movement of apartment property, but it was confined to the medium and cheaper priced properties, there being an absence of anything approaching the large transactions which characterized the market of the previous week.

The downtown transaction, which was closed late in the week, was the purchase by John Kranz, the confectioner, from Mary L. Macdonald of Berkeley, Cal., for $250,000 cash, of the fee of the property at 35 South State street, on the east side of the street between Madison and Monroe streets, adjoining on the north the Mentor building, at the northeast corner of Monroe street, and adjoining on the south a twenty foot holding belonging to Mr. Kranz. The property has a frontage of twenty feet with a depth of eighty-three feet, and was under a lease for ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $10,000, which lease was held by Mr. Kranz. The purchase was on a 4 per cent basis.

The purchase makes Mr. Kranz the owner in fee simple of the forty feet north of the Mentor building, the remainder of the frontage in the block to Madison street, except twenty-five feet, being occupied by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. Mr. Kranz is a large owner of property in the downtown district, and his present purchase evidences his faith in this class of property as an investment.

Building of Little Value.

The improvements comprise a four story building of no great value. In connection with the purchase Mr. Kranz gave a trust deed to Lessing Rosenthal to secure $80,000 of the purchase money five years at 5 per cent. Mrs. Macdonald inherited the property from her father, F. T. Fischer, a member of the old firm of Reid, Murdock and Fischer. Rosenthal, Hamill and Wormser attended to the legal details, while Albert L. Strauss and E. J. Bowes, Jr., were the brokers. B. W. Eisendrath was associated with Mr. Strauss in the deal.

This transaction, together with the fact that another large deal is said to have been practically closed in the downtown district, have a special interest at this time, owing to the general belief among brokers and operators that the forthcoming big government bond issue is serving to particularly depress the investment market in central business properties. There is encouragement in the evident fact that this class of property is not without friends among big investors, and this should serve to help the general market.

99 Year Lease of Madison Street Property Recorded

Record was made of the ninety-nine year lease of the 50x150 feet at 7401 West Madison street, opposite Hannah street, Forest Park, by Albert Roos to the Forest Park State bank at an annual rental of $700, with a revaluation every five years, but rent is not to be less than $700. There also is an option to purchase within five years at $10,000. The first floor of the building, a two story structure, has been occupied as a private bank by A. Roos & Sons since 1897, but is to be changed into a state bank.

NEWEST ADDITION TO THE WOODLAWN RIALTO

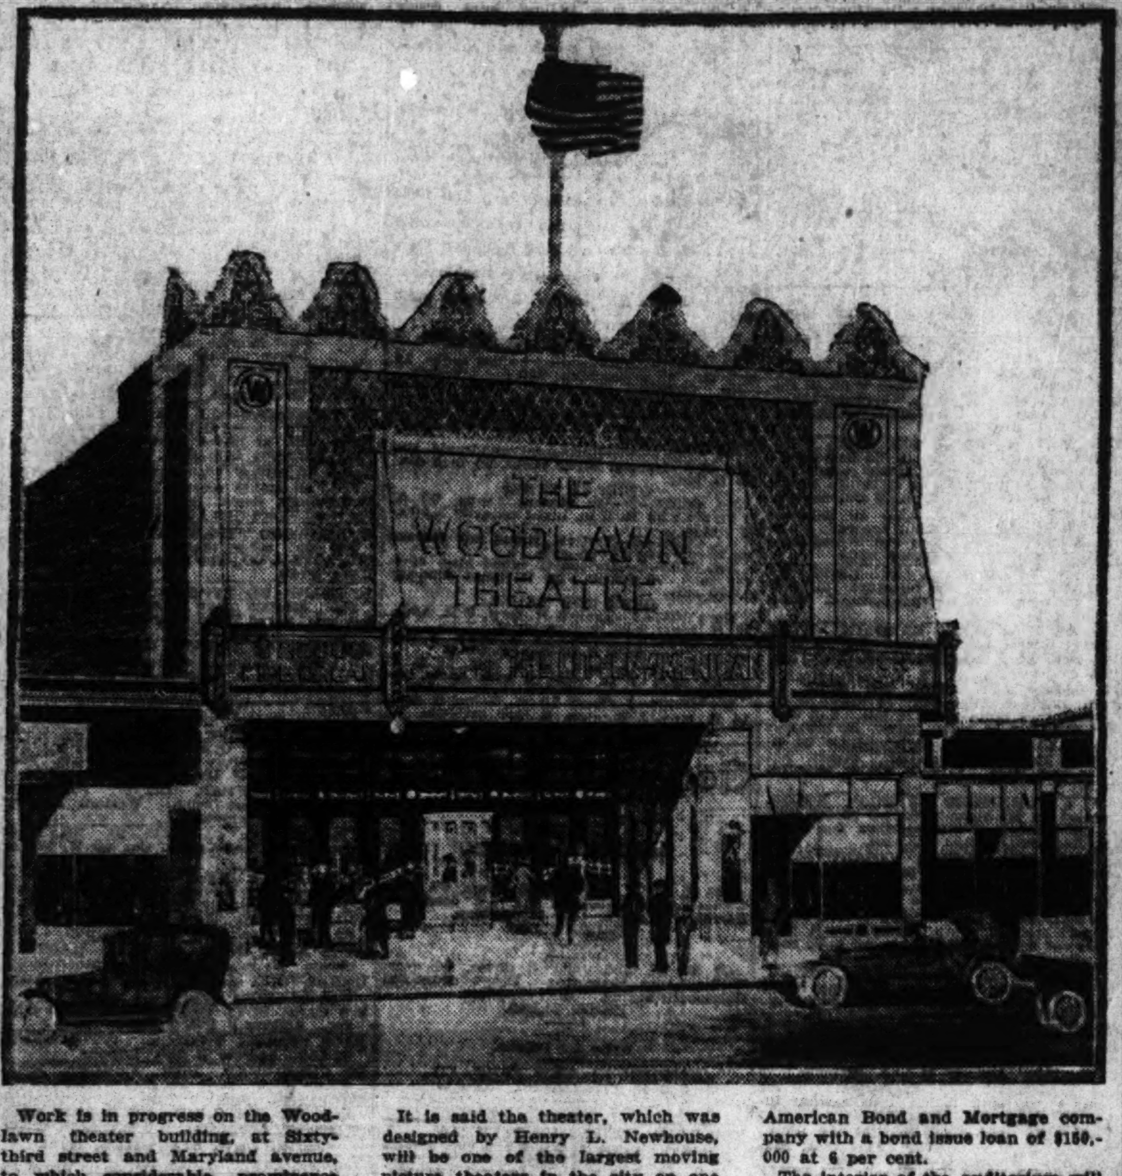
Apparently Theater Managers Believe Sixty-third Street Can't Have Too Many Playhouses, So They Are Erecting a New One Which Promises to Be One of the Largest of the Neighborhood Group.



Work is in progress on the Woodlawn theater building, at Sixty-third street and Maryland avenue, to which considerable prominence was given some time ago by reason of the fact that in order to secure the site, running through to Sixty-third place, the alley between the two thoroughfares was vacated. As a part of the site was acquired from Mayor Thompson, the vacation of the alley was the subject of some comment.

It is said the theater, which was designed by Henry L. Newhouse, will be one of the largest moving picture theaters in the city on one floor, with a seating capacity of 1,750. The building will extend 265 feet from Sixty-third street to Sixty-third place, with a frontage on the latter of 138 feet, while the lobby on Sixty-third street will have a frontage of fifty feet. Its cost is placed at about $250,000, and its construction is being financed by the American Bond and Mortgage company with a bond issue loan of $150,000 at 6 per cent.

The interior of the auditorium will be decorated with a series of mural paintings showing the development of the Woodlawn district. The pipe organ, which will be built in four stations, will, it is said, be larger than anything attempted heretofore in this class of buildings. The theater will be under the management of Mr. Karsas of the Woodlawn Theater company.

APARTMENTS OF MEDIUM VALUE SHOW ACTIVITY

Larger Transactions Are Conspicuous by Absence.

There was a fairly good aggregate movement of apartment property last week, but there was a conspicuous absence of the large transactions which featured the market of the previous week in this field.

Adolph Lindstrom sold to John Stut the twelve apartment building at the northeast corner of Lawndale and Leland avenues, consideration withheld but said to have been about $45,000; also the vacant business property at the southeast corner of Seventy-first street and Paxton avenue, 100x125 feet, for a reported consideration of $25,000 clear. In this connection Mr. Stut conveyed to Mr. Lindstrom the 320 acre farm at Palatine, Ill., at a reported valuation of $80,000, subject to an incumbrance of $24,000. In addition to buildings, the farm is fully stocked. James A. Savage and George W. Walker represented all the parties to the transaction.

Six Flats Bring $32,000.

David R. Hopkins has sold to James L. Kraft the high grade six apartment building at 7635-37 Bosworth avenue, lot 50x140 feet, for a reported consideration of $32,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment the seven room brick and stucco residence, lot 37½x170 feet, at 1336 Lunt avenue, at a valuation of $12,000. Webster H. Rapp and E. Sumner Walker were the brokers.

Murray Wolbach has sold to Mrs. Antoinette Kralovec the high grade six apartment building at 6145-47 Chappel avenue, lot 56x125 feet, west front, for a reported consideration of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $16,000. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the ten room residence at 1630 South Lawndale avenue, which later was resold to Jean Weinberg. Louis J. Krejci represented all the parties to the transaction.

Edward Paulson with George G. Newbury & Co. has sold for John C. McCormick and wife to Joseph Lotko the twelve apartment building at the northeast corner of Sixty-eighth street and Clyde avenue, consideration nominal, but said to have been about $40,000, subject to an incumbrance of $28,500.

Morse Avenue Deal.

The high grade six apartment building with 50x173 feet of ground, south front, on Morse avenue, 100 feet east of Glenwood avenue, has been conveyed by Anna C. O'Bryan to B. H. Hellen, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $37,000.

An interesting three cornered deal was negotiated between Thomas E. Sullivan, William W. Lill, and Chester R. Harris covering the three flat building at 1461 Foster avenue, lot 37x125 feet; the twelve flat building, lot 100x150 feet, at 3508-16 Broadway, and the residence at the southwest corner of Sunnyside avenue and Rockwell street, lot 75x125 feet. Mr. Sullivan conveyed the three flat on Foster avenue to Mr. Lill for a reported consideration of $17,500, subject to $10,000, together with cash, for the Baxter apartments on Broadway at reported $30,000, subject to $15,000. Mr. Harris acquired the Baxter apartments and in part exchange conveyed his residence at Sunnyside and Rockwell for reported consideration of $15,000 to Mr. Sullivan. J. C. Ingersoll of C. C. Mitchell & Co. represented Harris and Sullivan, and Ingersoll and Weeks represented Mr. Lill.

South Side Sale.

H. G. Howard & Co. have sold for Helen S. Speich of Riverside, Cal., and Gertrude J. Wachsmuth of Chicago to Benjamin L. Coolidge the six flat building at 5842-44 Harper avenue, consideration nominal, subject to $10,000 incumbrance, but property is said to have been held at $22,500.

Record was made of the transfer by Chaine Oleff to Joseph Kupperschmitt and Morris Coopersmith of the property at the northeast corner of Augusta street and Campbell avenue, lot 50x124 feet, with flat improvements, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $24,000.

The twelve apartment building of four rooms on 50x165 feet of ground at the northwest corner of Berteau and Kildare avenues has been sold by H. Sjoblom to James Doyle and William Merry for a reported consideration of $36,000, subject to an incumbrance of $21,200, the purchasers conveying in part payment a six room residence in Irving Park and west side vacant valued at $5,900. R. H. Beesley of Beesley & Kirmaier was the broker.

The statement also was made that there is a general disposition on the part of leading architects and contractors to defer to the government's needs in the way of steel requirements before prosecuting their own enterprises.

Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers filed for record yesterday totaled 146, of which 120 were in the city and 26 outside, including 14 under the Torrens system. Transfers were as follows:

Public Library Buys Site of Legler Library

Record was made of the acquirement by the Chicago public library from the Lambert Tree estate of the property at the southeast corner of Monroe street and Crawford avenue, 97x122 feet, which is to be the site of the first regional library in the United States. For the land the library paid $17,800, while the proposed building, which will be named the "Henry Edward Legler Regional library," in honor of the late librarian of the Chicago public library, and one of the creators of the regional plan, is expected to cost in excess of $75,000.

W. P. Haughton Acquires Lake View Apartments

William P. Haughton has taken title by master's deed from John W. Roos et al. to the Lake View apartment building at the southwest corner of Thirty-first street and Ellis, formerly Groveland avenue, lot 100x110 feet, with eight story building, consideration nominal, subject to $85,000 incumbrance.

Americus Clubhouse Assn. Records Conveyance

There was filed for record the conveyance by the Americus Clubhouse association to George Cella of the property at the northeast corner of Jackson boulevard and St. Louis avenue, 84x125 feet, the consideration being nominal, subject to $10,250 incumbrance.

SEVERAL FAIRLY GOOD LOANS MADE DURING THE WEEK

There were several fairly good sized loans reported or filed for record during the week.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $110,000, ten years, at 5¼ per cent, to Maurice Taussig, on the property in Woodlawn avenue, 150 feet south of Fifty-fourth street, 150x164 feet, and University avenue, 150 feet south of Fifty-fourth street, 150x164 feet, improved with two flat buildings.

Record was made of a trust deed by Theodore F. Brett to J. L. Harris of $26,000, payable monthly at 6 per cent, on the property in West Madison street, 75 feet west of Western avenue, 125x127 feet, which is being improved with a store, office and theater building. It is subject to a prior incumbrancy of $115,000.

John H. Moon, trustee, has given trust deeds to the Peoples Trust and Savings bank to secure five loans aggregating $93,850, payable on demand with interest at 6 per cent on properties belonging to the Sinclair Refining company in various parts of the city, the largest being for $41,000 on the property at the northeast corner of South Park avenue and Thirty-fifth street.

William S. Herrick is trustee in a loan of $85,000, seven years, at 6 per cent, to James M. Arnold on the Carolyn apartments at the southeast corner of Menard avenue and South boulevard.

Baird and Warner report new loans aggregating $220,000. One was for $38,000 at 5 per cent on the business property at 6426-44 South Halsted street; one was for $46,000 at 5½ per cent on premises 5534-38 Winthrop avenue; another was for $15,000 at 5½ per cent on flat property on Glengyle place.

Another Big Theater Building for West Side

A loan involving the erection of a store, office and movie theater building to cost $120,000, on West Madison street, figured in the week's real estate market news. It will occupy the premises 2408-18, 125x127 feet, south front, seventy-five feet west of Western avenue. It will be three stories high, and in addition to the theater, which will have a seating capacity of 1,280, there will be five stores on the ground floor with eight offices on the second floor and offices also on the third floor.

It will be erected by Theodore F. Brett, and in connection with its construction he has secured a bond issue loan of $114,000, eight years, at 6 per cent, from Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company. The preliminary work of construction has begun. The theater part has been leased to Lubliner & Trinz for ten years from April 1, 1918, at an annual rental of $13,000.

BUSINESS SITES OUTSIDE LOOP SHOW ACTIVITY

$90,000 Sale at Maryland and 55th Leading Feature.

Outside business property made a better showing in the week's market than it did for the previous week, the aggregate of business being of a fairly good volume and including several noteworthy transactions.

One of the most important of these was the sale by M. C. Tesenholtz to Israel Cohen of the property at the northwest corner of Fifty-fifth street and Maryland avenue for a reported consideration of $90,000, subject to an incumbrance of $65,000. The lot is 110x110 feet and is improved with a three story building, erected about three years ago, containing six stores on the ground floor and twenty apartments on the upper floors.

In this connection Mr. Cohen conveyed to Paulson Bros. the premises 1918-22 West Madison street, opposite Lewis institute. The lot is 62½x125 feet and is improved with a two story frame building containing three stores with flats above. While the consideration is withheld, it is said to have been about $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000. Edward Paulson with George G. Newbury & Co. represented Mr. Tesenholtz and Paulson Bros., and Gage, Kirk & Eaton Mr. Cohen.

Landmark Changes Hands.

The old Forrestville building at the northwest corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-fifth street, a building landmark for that vicinity, has been transferred by Pierre M. Combes to Frank M. McKay, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $31,500. The lot fronts 97½ feet with a depth of 170 feet, and is improved with a four story building containing five stores on Cottage Grove and two on Forty-fifth street, while the upper floors contain about thirty apartments. A nominal consideration is given, but the property is thought to be valued at about $80,000.

There was filed for record the transfer by master's deed of the Douglas park auditorium property at the northwest corner of Ogden and Kedzie avenues, for a stated consideration of $63,000. The property was conveyed by Samuel Polakow and others to Eugene L. Gary, the sale following the foreclosure of the second mortgage of $50,000, which, together with interest and other charges, amounted to about $78,000. There is a first mortgage of $64,000 on the property. The building is a four story structure and was erected about five years ago. It occupies a lot 66x136 feet and contains six stores, two large halls, and ten small lodge halls.

Canal Street Deal.

Record was made of the acquirement by the Hansell-Elcock company from Peter Marshall and others of the property at the northwest corner of Twenty-third place and Canal street, 50x125 feet, improved with a two story building occupied under lease by the Tobey Furniture company for stable purposes. It adjoins the Twenty-third place frontage of the purchasing company's plant and will be used by the company in connection with its business.

Record was made of the transfer by the Hanna Color Manufacturing company to George S. and Lizzie L. Mepham of St. Louis, Mo., of the property at the southeast corner of Hawthorne avenue and Weed street, 155x164 feet, a nominal consideration being given.

Record of Transfer.

Record has been made of the transfer by Albert Weisberg to James J. Quinn of the property in Crawford avenue, 48 feet north of Addison street, lot 75x125 feet, west front, with store and flat improvements, and other property, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $16,700.

The property in Milwaukee avenue, 282 feet northwest of Robey street, lot 24x72 feet, southwest front, with business improvements, has been conveyed by Harry Sex to Michael Herman and wife, Martha, the consideration being nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $10,000.

William F. Denneman has conveyed to Webster H. Burke et al. the property in Curtis street, 116 feet north of Madison street, 48x115 feet, east front, consideration nominal, subject to $4,000 incumbrance.

Lyddia Children's Home Buys Tract of 14 Acres

7 The Lyddia Children's Home association has purchased from Caroline A. Walsh a tract of about fourteen acres on Harlem avenue, north of Higgins road, for a reported consideration of about $7,000. It is backed by the Salem Evangelical Free church, but it is stated no plans have yet been made regarding the improvement of the property.

Leases and Loans.

There was much doing of an important character in the way of leases of business space in the downtown district during the week, the showing being the best for several weeks. The most important of these were two negotiated by E. F. Keebler & Co. covering space in the new Morrison hotel building. In one of these Keebler & Co. leased for Harry C. Moir of the Morrison Hotel company to Isadore Lipcowitz a store on Madison street in the New Morrison Hotel building for ten years from Oct. 1 at a term rental of $160,000. The store, which is 22x40 feet in size, will be occupied by the lessee as a men's furnishing goods store and will give him four stores in the loop district. The others are in the Hartford building, Madison and Dearborn streets; the John R. Thompson building, 206 South State street, and in the building at the southeast corner of Clark and Lake streets.

Keebler & Co. also have leased for Mr. Moir to Holmes & Schubert, Brockton, Mass., a store in Madison street adjoining the hotel entrance in the New Morrison hotel, 22x40 feet, for ten years at a term rental of $160,000, which will be occupied as a popular priced men's shoe store to be known as the Morrison hotel boot shop.

J. P. Strickland & Co. have leased for Lee J. Lesser and Landon C. Rose to the Western Union Telegraph company the store at 166 West Washington street, in the Federation building, for a term rental of $31,750, and space on the upper floors of the same building to various tenants at aggregate term rentals of $10,000.

The same brokers have leased for Thornton M. Pratt to J. L. Kraft & Bros., cheese manufacturers, the five upper floors in the building at 361-65 River street for a term rental of $25,000, and for the same owner the store and basement at 342 North Michigan avenue to the Battery Vim company for a term rental of $1,800; also for the United Cigars company and Howard G. Grey to Sam Limperus the store at 153 West Randolph street for a term rental of $5,000; for George F. Harding to the Air Device company the two story building at 2575-77 Cottage Grove avenue for a term at an annual rental of $1,500; for Martha E. Brown, in connection with F. S. Pagin & Co., to the Sellers-Brown Coffee company of St. Louis the store and basement at 325-27 River street at a term rental of $5,250.

Record was made of the lease by Tom Chamales to Aaron J. Jones, Adolph Linick, and Peter J. Schaefer of the theater part of the store, theater, and hotel building at the southwest corner of Broadway and Lawrence avenue for a term of ten years from Sept. 1, 1917, at a stated annual rental of $25,000. There also was filed for record an assignment of the lease by the lessees to the Broadway Hippodrome company, of which Mr. Jones is president and Mr. Linick secretary.

STEEL CUT NOT LIKELY TO HELP BUILDING MUCH

In the opinion of leading architects and building contractors there is little probability that the cut made by the government in the price of steel will result in any material stimulation of building operations, for the reason it is believed that it will be found impossible to secure the steel needed for this purpose. The opinion was expressed that if the necessary amount of steel could be secured at the price fixed by the government the result would be the renewal of building operations on a large scale, but, as a member of one of the leading firm of architects said: "The impression in the trade is that manufacturers will not be able to, or will refuse to, supply individual needs at the price fixed by the government. Local agents of manufacturers, when approached regarding the situation, almost invariably say they will refer the matter to the main office, and decline to commit themselves. From the main office nothing definite is given out, so that the impression prevails that individual needs are not likely to be met, particularly at the figures fixed by the government. If the necessary amount of steel could be secured at these figures there is little doubt there would be a sharp increase in building operations. As it is, the outlook is anything but encouraging, the tendency on the part of prospective builders being to wait for the coming of peace, which is expected to bring with it a sharp decrease in the cost of materials."

RESIDENCE DEALS LEADING FEATURE OF WEEK'S TRADE

Sale of Home of W. E. Nichols for $70,000 Chief Event.

Residence property, which has shown much activity for some time past, was one of the most conspicuous features of the week's market, the various transactions including north shore as well as city properties. The former included the most important transaction of the week. This covered the handsome home of William Edwin Nichols at Scott avenue and Sheridan road, Hubbard Woods, one of the finest properties in that picturesque locality.

The grounds comprise over three acres, handsomely timbered and improved, while the house is a twelve room structure of early Gothic design, being a replica of the old monastery of the famous Stony abbey near Leamington, England, not far from Warwick castle.

J. S. Poole appeared as the purchaser of record and, while the consideration was not disclosed, it is said that Mr. Nichols has held the property at $70,000. Frederick B. Thomas of Whiteside & Wentworth represented both parties.

Kenilworth House Sold.

In another north shore transaction Edmond B. Stevens, vice president of the Miehle Printing Press and Manufacturing company, sold to Albert H. Gunnarson of 105 South La Salle street his residence at the northeast corner of Kenilworth avenue and Essex road, Kenilworth. The house, which is one of the finest types of colonial houses on the north shore, was designed by George W. Maher and was completed by Mr. Stevens about a year ago. It is on a lot 125x193 feet, and, while the consideration is not disclosed, it is understood to have been $40,000. The sale was negotiated by James J. Parker & Co. This is the third residence sale in Kenilworth in a week.

A notable North State street deal was the sale by Adele H. Whiting to Mrs. Grace Lake, wife of William H. Lake, of the premises 1422, between Schiller street and Burton place. The lot is 28x185 feet, east front, and the house is an attractive stone front structure containing twelve rooms and fourth baths. The consideration is not disclosed, but the property is said to have been held at $30,000. Mrs. E. G. Tracy negotiated the sale and it is announced the Lakes will move into the house within a month.

Sale in Evanston.

The eight room brick dwelling on 50x150 feet of ground at 864 Sheridan road, Evanston, has been sold by H. W. Jensen of Pittsburgh to F. B. Hamlin for a reported consideration of $18,000. The purchaser has moved to Chicago from Pittsburgh and will occupy the residence as his home. E. Sumner Walker was the broker.

The four brick dwellings at the northeast corner of Wells and Menominee streets, near the intersection of Clark, Wells, and Lincoln, lot 90x70 feet, have been sold by Isabella H. Jackson to A. J. Liebman for a reported consideration of $20,000. S. A. Crowe of Crowe Bros. & Co. was the broker.
